PREFACE.

1. The text of this edition principally follows Stallbaum's published at Gotha in 1840. After examining the various readings, as Ast has given them, the editor was led to make about forty changes in the text of Stallbaum's first Gotha edition of 1828. On receiving, not very long since, the same critic's second edition of 1840, mentioned above, the editor was pleased to find a large part of these alterations, and nearly all the more important ones, made by Stallbaum himself. A number of others have since been made in reliance upon Stallbaum's long study of Plato and ability; and the text now differs from his last revision chiefly in the following places.

450. D. my ed. inserts ἦ before ἀριθμητική. — 451. A. I have given οὖν for νῦν. — 459. A. τοι νῦν δὴ for τοίνυν δή. — 460. C. Stallb. has no brackets. — ibid. D. omits the words in brackets. — ibid. reads οὕτω, vid. 522. C. not. — 461. B. vid. not. — 462. E. Stallb. has ἄρ' for δ'. — 465. B. gives ἐσθῆσιν. — 466. A. omits the words in brackets. — 472. A. has ταὐτὰ for ταῦτα. — ibid. B. has Πυθοῖ. — ibid. ἐνθάδε. — 480. D. has τοῦτο for τούτῳ. — 481. A. omits αὖ before θανάτου. — 483. E.

puts a colon after πλάττοντες. — 491. D. vid. not. — 492. B. omits the words in brackets. — 494. E. omits * το *. — 496. A. reads ἄνθρωπος. — 497. A. gives καὶ — νουθετεῖς to Callicles ; a good change. — 500. B. brackets κατὰ τὸ σῶμα after μαγειρικήν, which I have omitted. — 505. E. joins οὕτως to the next sentence. — 508. B. inserts * ἄθλιοι *. — 514. C. I have bracketed ὑφ'. — 522. C. have given οὕτως. vid. not. — 525. D. have omitted τοὺς before τούτων. — 527. C. Stallb. gives ὁ σὸς λόγος. vid. not.

In the text, like other editors of Plato, I have allowed οὐκοῦν, nonne igitur, to be thus accented, and, as I think, for good reasons. In the notes, I have followed what is I believe Hermann's practice, in treating a single Greek oxytoned word in an English sentence, just as it would be treated in a Greek one. If, for example, ἄν occurs in the middle of a clause it is not written ἄν.

2. I have had access to the following editions of Gorgias, which include all the modern ones of much value. 1. Routh's, Oxford. 1784. 2. Findeisen's,— an edition of indifferent judgment. Gotha and Amsterdam. 1796. 3. Heindorf's second, edited by Buttmann. Berlin. 1829, excellent, especially for the Commentary. 4. Bekker's. 5. Stallbaum's Leipzig ed. These are concerned only with the text. Bekker's has some Scholia. 6. Coray's, Paris, 1825, together with Xenophon's Memorab. 7. Ast's, in his Plato. The bulky Commentary on Gorgias is in vol. 11. Leipzig. 1832 ; valuable, but ill-arranged and tedious, and not always judicious. 8. Stallbaum's in his Gotha ed. of Plato. 1828 and 1840. Both text and interpretation owe much to him, and he has collected most of what is useful in other editions.

From these editions, above all from the last, I have derived great assistance, which is often acknowledged and often not. In a work like this, it would be plainly impossible to trace every thing up to its source, but nothing has been adopted without examination; much also is original, but I fear that if any one should pass the severe judgment upon the edition, that most of what is good in it is borrowed, and of what is faulty is original, he would not be very far out of the way.

Besides these editions, I have consulted several of those works relating to Plato, to which an editor of his dialogues would naturally think of turning for aid. Of this description are Ast's Lexicon Platonicum, (the three first vols.) which is of no great use after all, Ast's, Socher's, and the first vol. of C. F. Hermann's Introduction to Plato, Schleiermacher's and Cousin's translations, and Dobson's translation of Schleiermacher's Prefaces.

3. An introduction is prefixed to the text of the dialogue, with a view to give an explanation and critique of the argument. To this are added, in notes, translations, — rude, it must be confessed, — of a few illustrative passages out of very many from Plato's other writings, most of which I have read with reference to the present edition during its preparation. I had intended to add an index, in which some things omitted in the notes were to find their place, and had made some progress in it, but was tempted by the overpowering tediousness of the task to lay it aside until too late. If a second edition should chance to be called for, it may be appended.

4. I have said nothing, thus far, as to the propriety of laying the Gorgias before American students of Greek, rather than some other dialogue of the same great author. To persons familiar with the Platonic dialogues, perhaps nothing need be said on this point. Let me say, however, that while many of the dialogues would not have suited my design on account of their abstruseness or their length, the Gorgias deserved to be preferred to others equally finished in style, on account of its positive inculcation of truth and its high moral tone. Something better is to be found in it than the miserable doctrine of instruction, and the duty of the politician to obey the popular will.

INTRODUCTION.

The times in Greece, which just preceded the age of Socrates, gave birth to a class of men denominated the Sophists. This title, which before was honorably applied to such as excelled in wisdom or ingenuity, was then chiefly confined to those, who, with mercenary views, professed a vain and shallow kind of wisdom. Such is in substance Aristotle's definition of a Sophist. In the successive sketches of Plato's Sophistes, he is hit off as a mercenary hunter after rich young men ; a dealer and huckster in intellectual wares, especially of his own production ; a logomachist ; one who, by his power of taking the opposite on all subjects, gets a reputation for wisdom ; one who is employed about that which is false, or merely appearing, instead of the invariable objects of true science, and who conceals his ignorance of true science, by artificial and crafty turns of words. This last characteristic is one, which gives the relation of the Sophist to philosophy. He denied all objective truth, and stood only on the fluctuating, uncertain ground of subjective opinion. Hence, as to truth, he was an unbeliever. He could accommodate himself to one side or its opposite, contending for or against any point, as interest might dictate. Finding nothing in philosophy to employ himself with, he withdrew from the study of it to the arts of practical life, and aimed, by attracting admiration and educating the young, to gain wealth and honor. Gratification or pleasure was the immediate object in his view, and he could have no higher, for to instruct in virtue would imply the existence of unalterable moral differences, which he denied. Or, if he professed to teach virtue and justice, it was only in accommodation to a vague opinion of those who employed him ; and it was necessary for him to pervert these notions, in order to make his instructions consistent with the rule of gratification by which he was governed.

It would carry us far beyond our bounds, were we to attempt to exhibit at any length the causes to which this class of men owed their origin and their prominence. These causes lay partly in the unsatisfactory results to which the prevailing systems of Greek philosophy had arrived, and partly in the circumstances of the times. On the one hand, many of the philosophers either wholly denied the existence of truth within the reach of man, or so contracted its dimensions as to make it not worth pursuing. Hence arose skepticism, despair, and the fading away of a serious regard for truth, which were succeeded by frivolity and by the purpose to gain immediate selfish ends through pretensions to superior knowledge. On the other hand, the decay of religious belief, which attends upon increasing civilization in heathen countries, and the disregard of political morality so prevalent in Greece, threw uncertainty into the opinions of men upon the most important subjects. Thus, the same disease attacked the roots of philosophy, religion, and morals.

In the schools of the philosophers, the art of reasoning and its instrument had received by degrees some attention. Thus Logic had been cultivated by the Eleatic Sect, but was turned, in the hands of the Sophists, into an art of disputing, applied to puzzle the unpractised and display their own dexterity. The right and elegant use of words was employed by other Sophists to procure for themselves admiration and pupils. Many of this class of men exhibited their knowledge in public by answering any question that might be proposed to them, or gave lectures prepared with great care ; while in private they imparted such instructions to young men as would give them polish and ability in civil and political life. All of them took money for their instructions, — a practice not regarded as entirely honorable at that time in Greece.

The sophistical principles of the time were brought into closer connexion with public affairs by means of the art of rhetoric, which arose at about the same era. Rhetoric began to be taught as a means of gaining a cause in the courts at Syracuse after the year 466, when a popular government, succeeding to the sway of Hiero's family, greatly multiplied judicial proceedings. An art like this was calculated to be popular in free states, and especially in Athens, where the judicial function of the people was the most important one ; where the crowds of ignorant judges were easily deceived by sophistry ; and where there was an uncommon fondness for displays of skill in the use of words.

The sophistical tendency which we have represented as one in its origin, affected all branches of truth and every art which can be referred to scientific principles. In metaphysics it may be exemplified by the tenets of Protagoras, that all knowledge consists in sensation, and that whatever appears true to any man is true to him ; and by the doctrine of Gorgias, that there is no truth which men can ascertain or communicate to one another. In morals and politics it appeared in the opinions, that there is no natural justice, or that justice is the interest of the stronger ; and that pleasure is the chief good. In the use of rhetoric, it showed its nature when Protagoras offered to teach how to prevail by the worse argument, (τὸν ἥττω λόγον κρείττω ποιεῖν,) and when Tisias and Gorgias said, that the probable must be held in higher esteem than the true.

The Sophists could not fail to disgust a man like Socrates, who hated show and pretension, and who had a deep veneration for truth. Hence he was sometimes brought into collision with them, and in a degree his doctrines, as well as those of Plato, were shaped by opposition to theirs. And in accordance with this, Plato, especially in his first works, represents Socrates arguing against some false opinion or other maintained by a person imbued with this spirit.

One of the more prominent Sophists, with whom Socrates was contemporary, was Gorgias, after whom this dialogue is named. Gorgias was a Sicilian Greek of Leontini, a Chalcidian town, which lay some twenty miles to the north of Syracuse, and suffered much from its nearness to that powerful Doric state. The birth of Gorgias is assigned by Foss* to the first year of the 71st Olympiad, or 496 B. C. But there is good reason, I think, for putting it several years later. For the art of rhetoric began to flourish at Syracuse after 466 B. C., and Gorgias learned this art from Tisias, a scholar of Corax, the first preceptor.† And with this it accords, that Gorgias heard Empedocles in philosophy, whose birth even Foss places no earlier than the 71st Olympiad, while the ancients say, that he flourished from forty to sixty years afterward.

* De Gorgia Leontino Commentatio. Halle. 1828.

† This is asserted by the author of the prolegomena to the Rhetoric of Hermogenes, (in Walz's Collection, Vol. 4, p. 14.) The passage is inserted by Spengel into his valuable book entitled Artium Scriptores. Stuttgardt. 1828. Foss denies it without authority, "tum propter alius testimonii inopiam, tum propter Tisiæ ætatem."

From this time we know nothing of Gorgias until he was 60 years old or upwards. In the interval he may have taught rhetoric in Sicily, for Polus of Agrigentum appears at Athens as his disciple, and he probably stood high in his native state. In the second year of the 88th Olympiad, he came to Athens on the following occasion. "The Leontines (Diodor. 12. 53) who were emigrants from Chalcis, and of the same stock with the Athenians, were invaded by the people of Syracuse. As they were pressed by the war, and in danger of being reduced by the superior might of Syracuse, they sent ambassadors to Athens, begging the people to help them as speedily as possible, and rescue their state from its dangers. The principal ambassador among those who were sent was Gorgias, the orator, a man who excelled all of his time in eloquence, and first invented the artifices of rhetoric* (τέχνας ῥητορικάς). — On his arrival at Athens he was introduced into the assembly, and discoursed before the people concerning the alliance. The Athenians, who were fond of displays of genius and skill in the use of words, were struck with wonder by the novelty of his style, by his various antitheses, his clauses of equal length, his words of similar forms and endings, and the like artifices; which then, being new, met with favor, but now seem to be a waste of labor, and are ridiculous if repeated so often as to produce satiety. At last, having persuaded the Athenians to form an alliance with the Leontines, and gained admiration at Athens for his rhetorical art,

* See Spengel, u. s. p. 81.

he returned to his native town." The sensation which his rhetoric produced at Athens is spoken of by others also. The days on which he made his exhibitions were called festivals, and his discourses themselves torches.* "He won great praise," says Socrates in Plato's Hippias Maj. (282, B.), "by his speeches in the assembly, and by his private displays of his eloquence. By the instructions he imparted to the young (συνὼν τοῖς νέοις) he gained a large amount of money, and carried it with him from Athens." If Plato, who is sometimes careless about precise facts and dates, may here be relied upon, he must have stayed long enough at Athens to act the part of a teacher before he went elsewhere. It is probable, that, after discharging his mission, he soon returned to Greece, where the rest of his life seems to have been spent. Thessaly was his principal residence, and that he passed no very long time in Athens may be argued from the fact, that Isocrates, an Athenian, received his instructions in that country. There, also, he taught Meno, and Aristippus, one of the nobles of Larissa, and there, or in Bœotia, Proxenus, the comrade of Xenophon. The wealthy families of Thessaly had that rude taste, which would make them fond of the glitter and ostentation of Gorgias, and were able to pay him well. He lived in splendor, affecting in his dress the same show and parade which marked his eloquence. (Ælian Var. Hist. 12. 32.) Owing to his habits of temperance, he attained to a very great age, to six or eight years over a century, and acted the rhetorician to the last by saying, according to Ælian (u. s. 2. 35), when invaded by a lethargic sleep, premonitory of his end, "sleep is now beginning to lay me in the hands of his brother." His works, in his capacity as a rhetorician, were, 1. One on the art, or on one branch of it, the art of speaking suitably to the occasion ; 2. A number of orations, declamatory and laudatory. One of these was delivered at the Olympic festival, in which, like Isocrates afterwards, he tried to unite the Greeks against the Persians. Another was a funeral discourse in honor of Athenians slain in battle, a fragment of which, preserved by a scholiast on Hermogenes, supplies us with the longest extant specimen of his style. These works exhibited a stately, uncommon, and poetical diction, together with frequent rhetorical figures, which must have been tedious and frigid in the extreme.* Two declamations still extant, bearing his name, are unlike his fragments in style, and ought probably to be regarded as spurious.

* This is said by the commentator on Hermog. u. s., by Olympiodor. apud Routh, p. 562, and other late writers.

Gorgias was, as we have said, at bottom a Sophist,† but he avoided the title, which was not very popular, "and laughed at the Sophists, who professed to know how to make men better, confining himself to instructions concerning the art of teaching." (Plat. Meno. 95, C.) His literary labors in the more appropriate sphere of the Sophist, were confined, so far as we know,

* The fragments, which are few, are collected by Foss, but not completely. Thus, Clem. Alex. Strom. 1. 11. § 51, cites some words of Gorgias, apparently from his Olympian oration. The following words are a good sample of the style of Gorgias, and show some just thought. They are cited by Foss from Plutarch. Γοργίας τὴν τραγῳδίαν εἶπεν εἶναι ἀπάτην ἣν ὅ τε ἀπατήσας δικαιότερος τοῦ μὴ ἀπατήσαντος καὶ ὁ ἀπατηθεὶς σοφώτερος τοῦ μὴ ἀπατηθέντος.

† And so the men of that time regarded those, who displayed their talents after the manner of Gorgias. Thucyd. 3. 38, ἀκοῇς ἡδονῇ ἡσσώμενοι καὶ σοφιστῶν ϑεαταῖς ἐοικότες καϑημένοις. For the estimation in which the Sophists were held, comp. Protag. 316, seq.

to a work entitled, περὶ φύσεως ἢ τοῦ μὴ ὄντος, which may have been unknown to Plato, but is analyzed in a little treatise among the works of Aristotle. In this work, with such an ominous title, he attempts to prove, first, that nothing exists, then, if any thing exists that it cannot be known, and, finally, that if known it cannot be made known to others. Olympiodorus (in Routh's ed. of Gorgias, p. 567), says, that this work was written in the 84th Olympiad, that is, sixteen years or thereabouts before his embassy to Athens. For the sophistries out of which, with the help of the principles of the Eleatic Sect, he built up this triple wall against truth, I must refer to the treatise of Aristotle,* and to Ritter's history of philosophy.

Such was Gorgias. Of Polus, another speaker in the dialogue, little is known. He was a Sicilian of Agrigentum, a scholar of Gorgias in rhetoric, and perhaps of Empedocles in philosophy. He wrote, together with other works, a treatise, probably on rhetoric, to which Plato refers in the Gorgias. As we learn from the Phædrus and other sources, he gave great prominence to the figures of that artificial rhetoric of which his master was so fond ; such as equality of periods and correspondence of adjoining words in sound ; and taught the mode of using maxims and similes under separate heads, to which he gave pedantic names.

Callicles is an unknown Athenian, not a Sophist, as some have regarded him, but rather a contemner of the Sophists, although he carried out in practical life those principles which they laid down. He is a specimen of a considerable number of Athenians of his time, who while they courted the people despised it ; who would have grasped at tyrannical power, without scruple as to the means; who looked down upon the pursuits of philosophy, when compared with the honors of political life; who had no faith in the distinction between right and wrong, and held pleasure to be the supreme good.

Besides these and Socrates, Chærephon appears in the dialogue, though he says but little. He was an early friend and a follower of the philosopher, ardent in whatever he undertook, whose variance with his brother is mentioned in Xen. Memorab. 2. 3, and who obtained a response from the Pythia commendatory of Socrates, according to the Apologies of Plato and Xenophon. He went into exile in the time of the thirty tyrants, and died soon afterwards, before his friend's condemnation. He injured his health and complexion through his studies, and received the nick-names of νυκτερίς, νυκτὸς παῖς (Aristoph. Birds, 1564, and Horarum frag.) for never coming abroad during the day, and of πίτυινος θάψινος, for his sallow hue, (Eupolis in a frag., Aristoph. Wasps, 1413,) as well as other ridicule from the comic poets.* When, according to the Scholiast on Plato's Apology, these reckless jesters proceeded further to call him a sycophant, a parasite, and a thief, we may put by the side of these aspersions the testimony of Xenophon, who classes him among those friends of Socrates, who sought his company to improve themselves in household and civil relations, and who, at no time of their lives either did, or were charged with doing any wrong.

* In the procœmium to Philostrat. vitæ Sophist. another Chærephon, as we are there expressly told, is brought into connexion with Gorgias. He asked the Sophist a foolish question, διὰ τί οἱ κύαμοι τὴν μὲν γαστέρα φυσῶσι τὸ δὲ πῦρ οὐ φυσῶσι; To which the other replied, τοῦτο σοὶ καταλείπω σκοπεῖν· ἐγὼ δὲ ἐκεῖνο πάλαι οἶδα ὅτι ἡ γῆ τοὺς νάρθηκας ἐπὶ τοὺς τοιούτους φύει. I have seen the opinion somewhere expressed, that the story was first told of this Chærephon; the declaration of Philostrat notwithstanding.

The persons of the dialogue are represented as having met in the year after the sea-fight at Arginusæ. Gorgias being then on a visit at Athens, was lodging at the house of Callicles, and there, it is generally supposed, the dialogue was spoken. There is, however, good reason, I think, to accede to the opinion of Schleiermacher, who lays the scene in some public place, like the Lyceum, where the parties in several other dialogues convened.* At the opening of the work, Socrates and his friend find that they have reached the place, where Gorgias and others were assembled, too late to witness his exhibitions of rhetorical skill. In the hope, however, of drawing from him his views concerning his art they approach and begin the conversation. Gorgias being fatigued, the younger rhetorician, Polus, volunteers to take his place, and answer to the inquiries concerning the nature of rhetoric ; but as it is soon apparent, that he is unwilling or unable to observe a logical method, Socrates transfers the discourse to Gorgias, from whom he professes to think, that more brevity and accuracy of definition may be expected. (447 – 449.) By a series of questions in his peculiar manner, he gathers from Gorgias, that he is a rhetorician, and able to make others such ; and that his art is employed about words as instruments of thought. Socrates asks whether the definition is not too general, since several arts called by other names are also employed about words. To this Gorgias replies, that other arts ask principally " What is to be done," and use words as a secondary thing ; but that rhetoric inquires "What is to be said." (–450, B.) Socrates objects that there are other arts, such as those of calculation and astronomy, which mainly depend on words, and demands to what the words relate which rhetoric employs. The most important of human affairs, says Gorgias. (–451, B.) But what are the most important, asks Socrates, for other arts might make a similar claim. The good, replies Gorgias, to which rhetoric opens the way is liberty for men in general, and sway over others for the orator, and this it effects by the power of persuading public assemblies. By this power it brings every other art under its control. (–453.) Socrates still is not satisfied. For although Gorgias has defined rhetoric to be the art of persuasion, he inquires whether other arts, which have to do with words, do not aim at persuasion also. What, then, is the province and the nature of rhetorical persuasion. Gorgias is brought to admit, that its province is to persuade judicial and other popular assemblies concerning things right and wrong; and that it attains its end rather by plausible arguments, than by proofs drawn from absolute truth. (–455.) But Socrates still finds it hard to comprehend what is the peculiar sphere of rhetoric. In all public deliberations the artificer, the general, or other person acquainted with the point in question can give the best counsel. Where, then, is the orator's place? In reply, Gorgias refers to matters of fact. It was the advice of the political leaders, which led to the building of the Athenian walls and docks, and not that of the artificers. He himself had often persuaded sick persons to comply with the directions of physicians, who had exhausted their arguments in vain. There was no occasion, when an orator was opposed to an artificer, without gaining an easy victory. Such was the power of rhetoric, but, like other arts, it might be abused by those who learned it. Yet that abuse was no good cause of complaint against the teacher. (– 457, C.) Socrates, after offering an apology for his seemingly contentious spirit, now forces Gorgias to allow, that the orator may be ignorant of the subject matter of other arts ; all his study being concerned with finding the means of appearing to "those who do not know to know more than those who do." This Gorgias regards as an advantage, since it furnishes the orator with power acquired by small pains.* Socrates, without stopping to examine into the extent of this advantage, inquires whether the case is the same with justice and injustice, good and evil and the like ; whether without knowing what these are in themselves the orator can gain a reputation for such knowledge ; and whether, as a master in rhetoric, Gorgias would teach a scholar justice, who should come to him unacquainted with its nature. Gorgias has here to reply, either that there is no need of knowing anything about right and wrong in order to be an orator, and that, too, when he is perpetually employed upon questions involving right and wrong ; or, that he will teach his students their nature. He chooses the latter alternative, although the previous conversation shows, that to be consistent he should have taken the former. Socrates now forces him to admit, that he who knows justice is just. The rhetorician, then, under his training must be a just man. But he had before said, that the art might be used for a good or a bad purpose, — to favor justice or injustice. Socrates brings forward this inconsistency as needing explanation,

* Philebus. 58, A. "I heard Gorgias say, on a variety of occasions, that the art of persuasion far surpassed all the other arts, since it brought all things under its sway, not by force, but by their own will."

when this the first part of the dialogue is broken off by the impatience of Polus (– 461, B.).

There are two remarks, which this portion of the discussion seems to demand. The first is, that while it ends with an argumentum ad hominem, and with fastening upon Gorgias an inconsistency of no importance in itself to philosophical truth, it is not without its use. It shows how little the Sophists had reflected upon the nature of their arts, and how little they cared for truth or justice.* The

* Several passages of Phædrus, a work which treats of the worthlessness of rhetoric when not dependent on philosophy, may be adduced in illustration of what is here said. On 260, A. Phædrus tells Socrates that he hears the remark made, "that one who wishes to be an orator has no need to learn true justice but only what may seem to be such to the multitude, who will exercise the office of jurymen; nor the truly good or beautiful but only the seeming; for from these sources, and not from the truth, persuasion is derived." And, again, 272, D. "They say that there is no need of making so much of this, or of taking such a long round-about course to reach it. For the orator, who would be well versed in his art, (they maintain,) has no occasion to possess true views in regard to just or true actions, or in regard to men that are such either by nature or education. In fact they assert, that no one in the courts cares for the truth about these things, but only for that which is adapted to persuade. And this is the probable," etc. Plato goes on to illustrate this by an example drawn from Tisias, one of the rhetoricians. If a brave man of weak body should have beaten and stripped of his garment a strong but cowardly man, and the case be brought before a court, neither ought to tell the truth; the coward ought to deny that the weak but courageous man was alone in beating him; while the other should ask, "how he, being so deficient in bodily strength, could have attempted it." He then shows how weak, at its very foundation, that unphilosophical rhetoric is, which is built on merely empiric rules; since he who knows what is true must know, also, what is like truth, and he, who studies the classes of human minds with philosophy for his guide, will know by what arguments each class of minds is most influenced. "But," he adds, very nobly, "the virtuous man will not study this art of rhetoric for the sake of speaking and acting before art itself, having in its own nature no reference to truth, but merely to the force of arguments upon the minds of others, and, at the same time, being employed in discussions concerning what is good and just, could in its best estate be as easily used against truth as in its behalf. But, as it then was, it was based on sophistical principles and opposed to sound philosophy, its aim being something else than the greatest good. It was an art of acting on the ignorant, and of acting on them by pretending to knowledge. It must use such arguments as were suited to persuade the masses who are not capable of taking the true philosophical view of things. What arguments could a person ignorant of justice use before an audience also ignorant, when the question was, is this just or not, but such as almost necessarily mislead ?

But, in the second place, if the art taught or presupposed the teaching of justice, its scholars would be a very different sort of persons from what even Gorgias allows that they were. For he who has learned justice is just. This looks to us like sophistry, on the part of Socrates himself, as if the knowledge and practice of virtue could not exist apart. But whatever of untruth there is in the proposition, it was not meant for sophistry ; it is a part of the system of Socrates and Plato. In the view of Socrates, and in that of Plato at first, all virtue was resolvable into science ; all vice into ignorance.* Nor was the reason voluntarily ignorant, but men, but that he may be able to speak in a manner acceptable to the divinities, and to act so as to please them to the extent of his power."

Plato's opinion of advocates, which was none of the highest, may be found in Book XI. of the laws, at the end.

* Comp. Aristot. Ethic. Eudem. 1, 5, ἐπιστήμας (Σωκράτης) ᾠέτ' εἶναι πάσας τὰς ἀρετάς, ὥσθ' ἅμα συμβαίνειν εἰδέναι τε τὴν δικαιοσύνην καὶ εἶναι merely deceived by the conceit of knowledge, and false opinion. When this was removed, and knowledge took possession of the mind, there was no cause why he who knew should not act in conformity with his knowledge.

In the second part of the dialogue, Polus takes his master's place. He begins with complaining that Socrates had unfairly involved Gorgias in inconsistency. Gorgias had said, that he would teach justice to a scholar ignorant of it, only in accommodation to the prejudices of men, who regarded instruction upon that point as of high importance. A discussion now arises in which Socrates explains in part his views of rhetoric. It is not an art but a knack or practical observation of rules aiming to produce pleasure. It belongs to a nature which is adroit, courageous, and skilled in mingling with mankind. It is reducible to flattery ; like cookery, the cosmetic and the sophistic art, being mere routine or practice, not guided by the laws of absolute truth, and aiming at gratification. The real arts relating to the soul and body are two, with a twofold division each : the one, — the political art, or that which conserves the public good, — when it seeks to secure that good is called the legislative art, when to restore it is called justice. To these two arts, two touching the body correspond ; gymnastics, aiming to preserve bodily good or health, and medicine, to bring it back. To these four arts four arts of flattery answer, and, acting adroitly without settled principles, slip into their places. These are sophistry, answering to legislation, rhetoric to justice ; cosmetics to gymnastics, and cookery to medicine. Aiming at pleasure, and not at the highest good, these false arts address and deceive the ignorant and thoughtless. And, being incapable of exact limits from their want of a scientific basis, they run into one another. (– 466.) Polus is displeased at this brand of flattery put upon rhetoric, and asks if good orators are so regarded in the states where they live. Socr. They are not regarded at all. Pol. How not regarded? Have they not the greatest power in their countries? To this Socrates replies by admitting, that they do what seems good to them, but denies that they do what they wish. In explaining this he shows, that what men wish is not what they do, but that for the sake of which they do it. It is a good in prospect which moves to action. Unless, then, the great power which enables orators to dispose, as Polus says, of the lives and fortunes of others is a good, it is not what they wish. And if to have great power is a good, orators cannot have it, seeing they use that which they call such as an evil. They may do, then, what seems good to them, without either really having great power, or doing what they wish. (– 469.) Polus sneers at these views expressed by Socrates. "Just as though you would not choose the liberty of doing what seemed good to you in the state, and would feel no envy if you saw one killing whom he liked, or stripping him of his goods, or binding him." [Socrates earnestly declares, that he regards such a one, if doing this unjustly, as most wretched, and to do wrong as the greatest of evils. Polus is surprised that he should think so, and affirms, that to be wronged is a greater evil than to wrong; and, that the possession of supreme power in the state, — which is won by the orator, — is to be desired as enabling him to do what he thinks fit, to wrong, if he pleases, and to keep others from wronging him.

Upon this, Socrates makes his opponent own, that uncontrolled power in the state, if it is a good, may also be an evil. It cannot, therefore, be a good in itself, and something beyond it must determine when it is good and when the contrary. This criterion is, that it shall be justly or unjustly exercised. (– 470, C.) Polus responds in a superior tone to this, as going against the common sense of men, and appeals rhetorically to the prosperity of Archelaus, King of Macedon, which was begun by atrocious crimes. If you wish, says Socrates, to support yourself by examples and by testimony, you will have no want of them. But I shall not consider the matter settled until I force you with whom I hold the argument, to acknowledge, that the unjust man is unhappy, or you compel me to the contrary admission. (– 472, D.)

The discussion during the rest of this part of the dialogue, embraces two points arising out of the proposition, that it is better to wrong than to be wronged. 1. That the unjust man is, in every event, miserable; and 2. That if he escapes punishment for his crimes, he is more miserable than if he suffers. And hence no man can prefer doing wrong to being wronged, which Polus says is the choice of all men.

1. Polus acknowledges, that it is baser (αἴσχιον, more ugly) to wrong, but denies that it is more evil (κάκιον). This leads to an analysis of the ideas of the beautiful and the base (τὸ καλόν, τὸ αἰσχρόν), in which Socrates shows, that a thing is beautiful owing to its utility or pleasure, or both; and base, owing to its evil or pain. But to wrong, — which has been owned to be baser than to be wronged, — is not more painful; therefore it must be more evil. Neither Polus, then, nor any other man, as desirous of the highest good, can prefer the more evil and base to the less. (– 476.)

2. Polus admits, that to be the object of justice (διδόναι δίκην), and to be justly punished for wrong doing are the same ; that a just punisher supposes one who suffers what is just, and that every thing just is καλὸν as far as it is just. If, then, what is suffered is just it is καλόν, and if so, either useful or pleasant. But suffering for doing wrong is not pleasant ; therefore, it is useful or good. This goodness consists in removing pravity of soul, which, of all kinds of badness, is the greatest. Justice, the medicine of the soul, effects this removal : hence, to escape from punishment is more miserable than to be punished. It is better to go unhealed of a disease, than not cured of this inward severer malady. And not to seek this cure from justice, is like fearing the pain necessary for attaining to health. (–480.)

If these things are so, of what use is rhetoric ? For if it place a man in a situation where he can wrong more easily than be wronged, it does him so much the more harm ; and if he is enabled by it to escape the punishment of his misdeeds, again it does him so much the more harm. If it help him to punish an enemy, it benefits that enemy, — an object at which he is far from aiming. He cannot even defend himself against an enemy without doing the enemy this good.* (–481, C.)

The end reached in this second division of the Gorgias, is to set forth in a clear light, that a pretended art, like the rhetoric of Gorgias and Polus, which has the gratification of others, as well as one's own in view, fails, by running against the law of right, to attain to any thing good or useful, defeats its own objects, and falls into inconsistency with itself. It will not be doubted by the reader, that the moral tone of this discussion is worthy of the highest praise, and the conclusion most gratifying, considering it is formed by a heathen. But there are several places in the stream of the argument, where we may fancy, that we see shallows or touch upon the ground. In the first place, we may question the accuracy of the comparison of the legislative art and justice, with the self-styled arts of sophistry and rhetoric. What is the truth of the distinction, and what sphere must we suppose that Plato assigns to rhetoric? In reply, it must be owned, I think, that Plato fluctuates a little,* owing to his analogy between rhetoric and medicine on the one hand, and between rhetoric and justice on the other. If we press the resemblance to medicine, rhetoric must be confined to the reparation of injustice, and restoration of the public health. If we follow the parallel with justice, rhetoric must embrace within its limits every case where the question of conformity to the rule of right is involved; the rule of true right being laid down at the outset by the legislative art, and that of seeming right or gratification, in the place of justice, by sophistry. In this part of the dialogue, the narrower notion of rhetoric, determined by comparing it with medicine, seems to prevail in Plato's mind: the art has to do with the courts. And in this Plato was fully justified by the practice of writers on this art, who all, as Aristotle affirms (Rhet. 1. 1. 10), said nothing about the popular assembly, and confined their rules of art to the judicial; (περὶ τοῦ δικάζεσθαι πάντες πειρῶνται τεχνολογεῖν.) But, in the latter division of this work, Plato treats the rhetorician and the political man as the same, which accords with the analogy between rhetoric and justice. This is the truer view of the subject, for otherwise the assembly of the people, where there lay open a wide field for false art, must be unoccupied.* We must recollect, that Plato himself speaks of the boundaries of rhetoric as uncertain; and, also, that he is not opposing "the bare art of inventing and arranging arguments," but a sophistical art opposed to truth.†

In the second place, we may doubt, whether the analysis of the beautiful into the pleasant and the good, that is, the useful; and of the opposite of the beautiful into the painful and the harmful, is correctly made out, and, consequently, whether the principles of the latter part of

* With more justice still, Socrates, in Phædr. 261, A. regards it "as the art of bending men's minds by words without respect to the occasion, not only in courts and other public assemblies, but also in private meetings; being the same in nature, whether small or great affairs are in question." To which, in reply, Phædrus says, that the rules of art are used in speaking and writing when suits at law are brought, and in speaking, when addresses are made to the assembly; but that he has not heard of a wider application of rhetorical precepts.

† Whately's definition. Aristotle's is, δύναμις περὶ ἕκαστον τοῦ θεωρῆσαι τὸ ἐνδεχόμενον πιθανόν. It is worthy of remark how Aristotle alludes to this dialogue without naming it. He begins with saying, that rhetoric is ἀντίστροφος τῇ διαλεκτικῇ. In speaking of its abuse he says, "it tries to put on the garb (ὑποδύεται) of the political art;" and, soon afterwards, ἔστι γὰρ μόριόν τι τῆς διαλεκτικῆς. Comp. 464, B, C. — This conduct of rhetoricians is ascribed to ignorance, or vanity, or other human reasons (1. 2. 7); and doubtless he joined with Plato in condemning the sophistical rhetoric of the preceding age. (Comp. 1. 1. 3.) But when he says, that the judge himself ought to know, whether a thing is just or not, and not learn it from the parties, whose only duty is to discuss the fact, it must be regarded, not only as opposing Plato's views (454, B.), but as a condemnation of the Athenian and every other system, where the judges were ignorant.

the discourse between Socrates and Polus, true as we feel them to be, are not built upon the sand. If I am not deceived, Plato does not here intend to enter into a close dialectical exposition of what is meant by τὸ καλόν, the beautiful. But, still, his definition is exact enough for the argument and the purposes of the dialogue. The attempts of others to analyze this idea, prove this. Whether the term beautiful is or is not applied on account of pleasure derived from contemplating the object so called, or on account of the perception of a certain fitness, implying a relation of the parts to the whole, and of the whole to some good or pleasant end ; — whatever we may decide to be the primary and essential characteristic of beautiful objects, it is sufficient, I think, for the argument to say, that pleasure or utility, or both, invariably attend on objects so called, and the author was not required to stop and subject this idea to a closer examination. It is also to be remarked, that the good and the useful are treated here as identical.* Upon this point we need only say, that it is assumed, that whatever is good tends to promote the perfection or well-being of the person ; in other words, is useful in reaching a good end.

Again, it may be thought, that the last argument concerning the good or utility of punishment, renders it necessary, that punishment should reform the offender, whereas, Plato, in this work and elsewhere, speaks of incorrigible criminals.* If to suffer δίκαια, = to suffer

* On the design and efficacy of punishments in society, a number of passages from the Laws give us Plato's views. One is found in Book XI. 934, A. "Not suffering for the sake of his crime, — for what he has done can never be undone, — but in order that for the future he and they who see him suffering justice (δικαιούμενον) may either altogether hate wrong-doing, or, at least, that a considerable part of so great an evil may cease." Another occurs in Book IX. 854, D. "For, perhaps, if he suffer this penalty, he may become better, by being rendered more sober-minded (σωφρονισθείς). For no penalty which is inflicted by law is inflicted for evil (γίγνεται ἐπὶ κακῷ), but has, for the most part, one of two effects: it improves him who is punished, or, at least, checks the growth of his depravity." He then goes on to speak of incurable offenders doing good as examples. On page 862, E., after remarking on the excellence of legal expedients by which transgressors shall be made "to hate wrong, and to love or not hate the nature of right," he continues thus: "When a lawgiver finds men incurable, he will provide some law and penalty for them, being assured, that for such persons themselves, it is not the better part to live, and, that by withdrawing from life, they will confer a twofold benefit on others: they will serve as an example to others to deter from evil, and will rid the state of bad inhabitants. Thus, (that is, on these principles,) in the case of such persons must the lawgiver establish death as the penalty for crimes, and in no other way."

In Book V. 728, C., he speaks of becoming like the wicked, and being separated from the good, as the greatest penalties for wrong-doing. "Though this is not penalty (δίκη), — since justice and penalty are always beautiful, — but vengeance, which is suffering attendant on iniquity. And, as well he who has suffered this vengeance is miserable, as he who avoids suffering it; the one, because there is no cure for him; the other, because he is lost, that many may be saved." In these passages, the end of punishment is to cure and deter, or, at least, such is its result. And with these may be compared such places as Repub. 1. 335, where it is said, that a just man cannot harm even an enemy and a bad man. It is true, that the notion of harm is confined there to making such a man worse, but the reason appears to include pain if unproductive of good. Cousin, in his καλά, = to suffer ὠφέλιμα or ἀγαθά, can the criminal help being profited? and does not the argument look like a dead algebraic formula, more than like living moral truth? This difficulty must attend the argument at the first view of it. Nor can it be removed, unless we allow δίκαια and καλὰ to be what they are, not only in themselves, but also in the apprehension of the sufferer, while ὠφέλιμα is simply objective. The argument now becomes tenable. Punishment can be a good to none who do not receive it as just; nor can it, in the arrangements of this world, fail of being more or less of a good to him who feelingly owns that it is rightly inflicted. But there may be some who do not own this, and they are the incorrigible.

Polus being reduced to silence, Callicles steps forth as the third champion of the arts of show. He begins with doubting whether Socrates is in earnest in maintaining these principles, which would throw human life and conduct off from their old foundations. To this Socrates answers, that he follows wherever philosophy shows the way, just as implicitly as Callicles obeys the popular will, and that, before he can change his tone, he must hear her strike a different key. In reply Callicles says, that it was not philosophical reasoning but trick, by which Polus was beaten. He had made the incautious admission, that to do wrong is baser (αἴσχιον) than to be wronged. It is so, indeed, by law, but not by nature. This ambiguity it is between the naturally and the legally beautiful or right, which enables crafty reasoners to gain their points. When Polus spoke of that which is legally base, Socrates shuffled the natural into its room. But by nature nothing is baser which is not more harmful. The natural feelings of men, which, when injured, instantly rise against the aggressor, show, that to be wronged is no property of a man. The legal definitions of base and wrong deeds are introduced by the many and the weak, in order to keep the strong in check. But herein law is opposed to nature, which teaches that the better ought to have more* than the

Preface to Gorgias, contends very brilliantly, and in some degree justly, that the right to punish in society, is derived, not from the good effects of punishment upon the criminal or others, but from the duty of punishing, which is based on the instinctive feeling of desert of evil for doing wrong. He adds, "this theory is, without doubt, only indicated in Plato, but it occurs in a number of places briefly but positively expressed." I could wish, that the learned translator had proved this assertion, which his familiar acquaintance with Plato must have rendered easy. Doubtless Plato could not get rid of the conviction written on the heart, that the sinner ought to suffer, or of the tendency to view suffering as a debt owed to justice. But did not Plato try to go farther back than this conviction, and search into the reason of the right which it admits?

* πλεονεκτεῖν. πλεονεξία is substantially selfishness, to which cause in a very striking passage Plato ascribes all the wrong actions of men. Leges 5. 731, D. πάντων δὲ μέγιστον, etc. "The greatest of all evils is inherent in the souls of the mass of men, for which they excuse themselves and seek no deliverance from it. This is what the vulgar saying implies, that every man by nature loves himself, and that it is right so to do. But in truth the cause of all errors in every case is to be ascribed to too great self-love. For the lover becomes blind in regard to the object beloved, so that he judges wrongly of the beautiful, the good, and the just, thinking that he ought to honor what pertains to himself before the truth. The man who will be truly great ought not to love himself or his own things, but what is just and right, whether pertaining to his own actions or another man's. From this fault it comes, that all think their own ignorance wisdom. Whence, though we know next to nothing, we think we know every thing; and, being unwilling to commit to others that which we are not well skilled to do, we are forced to make mistakes in doing it. Therefore ought every man to avoid undue self-love, and to seek out some worse, and the more powerful than the less powerful. The "good old plan, that they should get who have the power," is the law of nature, — aye, and of right, — in animals and man, as they show whenever they can seize the occasion. All this is very evident to the man of the world. But philosophy makes a man blind to these truths of common sense, and, if pursued beyond the requirements of education, is the ruin of a man. It unfits him for civil and political life; it is unbecoming for a full-grown man, who should be practical and mix with his fellows; it makes one slink away to a corner with two or three disciples; and, if attacked by foes in the courts, he cannot help himself, but falls into their hands, as defenceless prey, to be slain even at their pleasure. (– 486, D.)

In this brilliant passage we see described the contempt felt by the vulgar politician for the true philosopher, and the sympathy of such a man with false and sophistical one better than himself, allowing no shame to prevent his taking such a course."

In another fine passage of the same work, (9. 875,) the necessity of law is partly ascribed to the selfishness of man. δεύτερον δέ, etc. "In the second place, should any one in theory properly comprehend that this is so, [that is, that the political art ought to care for the community more than for the individual, and that it is for the interests of both to have the community, rather than the individual, well arranged,] and then rule a state with irresponsible and autocratical power, yet can he not adhere to this persuasion, and through life keep the interests of the community foremost in the state, and his private interests subordinate; but his mortal nature will ever drive him into selfishness and the pursuit of his own ends (πλεονεξίαν καὶ ἰδιοπραγίαν), since it blindly shuns pain and seeks pleasure. Thus it will give a higher place to pleasure and pain than to the more just and good; and, by producing darkness in itself, will at length plunge the man himself and the state into all sorts of evils."

principles. He aims at pleasure rather than good, and the Sophists suit their maxims to the prudential attainment of the same end. There is a plain allusion, also, to the behaviour of Socrates at his trial, and to the charges against Socrates and Plato, — especially the latter, — of neglecting the service of the state. The ground which Callicles takes is evidently the only one which can be taken against Socrates,* but it is equally the foundation of an attack against all morality. If the idea of right is admitted, it must be supreme ; and pleasure, if opposed to it, must bow before it. The only escape is to show, that pleasure is never inconsistent with the right and the good. But right, as fixed by law, restrains the individual, and is therefore inconsistent with self-gratification. Hence the advocate for pleasure must yield, unless he can show, that natural right, — which is really such, — is another thing from what the opinions of men, expressed in their laws, call such ; and that it authorizes selfish indulgence. But, if this be natural right, it contains no moral element, implies no relation of one man to others, and sanctions obedience to every desire, which looks towards pleasure.

Socrates first answers with exquisite irony to the maxim of Callicles, that the better ought, by natural right, to have more than the worse. If his opponent

* The philosopher Archelaus, who was, perhaps, an Athenian and a scholar of Anaxagoras, taught τὸ δίκαιον εἶναι καὶ τὸ αἰσχρὸν οὐ φύσει ἀλλὰ νόμῳ. This principle is admirably ridiculed in the Clouds, 1421, seq. Plato refers to it in a striking passage, Leges 10. 890. The discussion with Thrasymachus in the first part of the Republic attacks a kindred principle, and may be read here to advantage. Hobbes went to the length of any of the ancient Sophists on this point. See Mr. Hallam's Critique, Hist. of Lit., Vol. III. 365-382, especially the close of the chapter.

means, as he admits that he does, by the better, (βελτίους,) the superior and stronger, then, since the many are stronger than the one, as is shown by their enforcing their laws, they have a natural right to make laws for the one. Now they say, in their laws, that to wrong is baser than to be wronged ; and hence, according to Callicles, it must naturally be so. (– 489, B.) 2. Callicles now shifts his ground, and makes the better the more intelligent. If so, replies Socrates, and if the more intelligent ought to have more than another of that to which his intelligence relates, then, in a mixed collection of men, a physician ought to have more food and drink than others, while yet the greater portion thus assigned to him may do him extreme harm. In short, there is no end to the absurdities, which will follow from the principle, that intelligence should move in an orbit around desire and not around good. (– 491, B.) 3. Callicles forsakes this definition, and the better now become the more intelligent and courageous in politics, such as are capable of governing.* Socrates here changes his point of attack, and takes a position nearer to the enemy's inner works. For, whatever definition Callicles gives, to have more than others (πλεονεκτεῖν), or self-gratification, is the centre of the system, and must be laid bare in all its deformity. Do you mean, says he, by governing, governing one's self ? At this the man of the world sneers, and pronounces a man's well-being to consist in having as large desires as possible, with the courage and intelligence to fulfil them. These qualities the many do not possess, whence, to hide their weakness, they praise self-restraint and blame incontinence. But it was not so

from the beginning ; the great and mighty of old acted by another rule, regarding justice and self-restraint as base and evil, and getting all they could from their enemies for themselves and their friends. Good and pleasure are the same. (– 492, C.)

Socrates answers this in two ways. He first tries, by selecting some examples of low bodily pleasures, to awaken Callicles to the consciousness of the amazing baseness and evil, which may attend a life of enjoyment.* The illustrations which form the long prologue of this part show, that a most important topic is begun. (– 495, B.) In the second place he searches for some tests of the nature of pleasure, which shall show, that it differs from good. To do this he makes Callicles allow, that courage, science, and pleasure, are not the same ; and that εὖ πράττειν and κακῶς πράττειν are opposites, so that one cannot be in both states at once, any more than be sick and well at once. The same may be said of weakness and strength, of swiftness and slowness, of good and bad, of happiness and misery. But pleasure and pain can coëxist in the same person at the same time ; as, for instance, thirst, a pain, exists, until drinking, which is pleasant, slakes it. Thus pleasure wants an essential characteristic of good, and pain of evil. (– 497, E.) Another test follows, grounded on the admission of Callicles, that the manly and intelligent are good. A foolish boy or man may be glad, and so may a wise one.† In war a coward is as glad, if not more

* Comp. Philebus, (an important dialogue, in which the nature of the good and the pleasant is closely examined,) 46, A., B.

† Comp. Philebus, 55, B., "and, besides, to be compelled to say, that a man who feels grief is bad when he feels it, though he be the best of all men, and that one who is glad, the more he is so, at the time when he is so, is the more virtuous."

so, when the enemy goes away, than the man of courage. Then the coward is as good as the courageous man or even better, and yet bad by the concession of Callicles. (– 499, B.) In other words, if good is relative to desire, as such, then its absolute nature ceases, it is in a perpetual flux, and alters with every change of desire or character.*

Callicles now admits, that some pleasures are evil and some good. He thus overthrows his argument, for if pleasure is, in itself, a good, evil cannot be predicated of it. Socrates seizes upon the acknowledgment, and carries him back to a point debated in the first part of the dialogue, — that the good being the end of all actions, the pleasant must be sought for its sake, and not vice versâ. (– 500, A.) Now to know what pleasures are good and what evil needs an artist, — a man who has studied the invariable absolute principles of true good and right ; — whilst the knowledge how to gratify, acquired by observation, and resting on no unchanging truth, has nothing of the nature of true art, and to apply that knowledge calls simply for an exercise of memory.

If this be so, we have a standard by which we may try the pursuits of men ; and, according to this standard, must condemn the music which is in vogue at the public contests, dithyrambic poetry, and even tragedy itself, with all its lofty pretensions. But how is it with rhetoric and the orators or statesmen ? Do they neglect their own, or the public interests ? do they seek to benefit or gratify the community ? To this Callicles responds, that the question admits of a double answer ; the orators of the present day seek to please the people and follow its will, but he thinks, that Miltiades, Themistocles, Cimon, and Pericles, were good men, and aimed at the highest public good. (503, D.) This Socrates denies, and to make the matter clearer, goes at some length into the motives which should influence the good orator, — the true political artist. As the physician has health in view, so has he the health of the community, which consists in justice and temperance.* (σωφροσύνη, self-restraint, soundness of mind in regard to all pleasures and excess.) Instead of flattering them and following popular desires, such a politician will restrain and chastise the people. (505, C.) This is further enforced in a most important and admirable passage, by pointing out, that the ideas of true good, of virtue, of order, of self-restraint or orderliness, of justice and piety (or the observance of the laws of moral order), of courage, of the well-being of the individual and his happiness, are closely and necessarily connected ; while the opposites of these are linked together with the pursuit of pleasure. Neither a man, then, nor a state, which would be happy, can have any end in view inconsistent with justice and temperance. If this be admitted, every thing will follow which Socrates had maintained, and his three adversaries had controverted. The orator ought to be just, and to know justice ; otherwise he cannot practise or promote it. To be wronged is better than to wrong, for it involves no violation of justice ; and to be punished for wrong doing than to go unpunished, for it reconciles the soul to justice. The wonder of Callicles, when Socrates defended these latter points, was misplaced. Furthermore, by acting on such principles, he should help himself and his friends, to do which, Callicles pronounced him unable. For by living according to these principles, he would avoid the basest and the greatest evil. (–509, C.) But cannot a man, it may be asked, gain the advantage arising from not being wronged, as well as that arising from not wronging others ? For the latter an art is needed. As no one does wrong because he prefers it, but because he thinks to gain some good by it, that art must inculcate the nature of true good ; for example, must distinguish it from self-gratification. Is there, also, an art to avoid being wronged ? The only way of preventing injuries in all cases is, to have supreme power yourself, or to be a friend of the supreme power ; — for instance, if the people is that power, to gain its friendship by catering for its desires and following all its whims. But if this is done, the other and greater good must slip out of your hands. Nor is it of any use to say, that if you do not thus conciliate the sovereign power in the state, you may lose your life. For it is not a man's business in this world to seek to save his life, nor ought the art of rhetoric to make higher pretensions because it saves life, than the art of the pilot or the engineer, by each of which the life of those intrusted to its care is preserved, no matter whether it be better for such persons to live or to die. A man's part is to leave it to God how long he shall live, and to find out on what principles he shall pass the term of life given to him; whether on those of the flattering politician, which will involve the loss of the greatest good, or on those of the man, who sacrifices pleasure to the really good and useful. (–514, A.) And the same will apply to the management of a state. Hence the apprenticeship of political life must be in philosophy, which reveals the good and just to those who search for them; and the true politician, contrary to what Callicles had maintained, must be a philosopher. A man, who seeks to play the important part of a leader in the state, must first ask himself, whether, in his private capacity, he has cultivated justice and temperance, and made men better, for the aim in the public and in the private sphere is one and the same. With this in mind, we may return to the four great Athenians, and bring their characters to the touch-stone. Did Pericles make the Athenians better? or did they not rather become idle, cowardly, talkative, and covetous through the measures of his administration? And did not those very Athenians, near the close of his long political life, show their degeneracy by ungratefully bringing against him a charge of peculation.* The other three met with even worse treatment at the hands of those whom, if skilful politicians, they must have wished and known how to make better. Their ill success is a proof, that they understood not the true art of rhetoric, — that of persuading men to aim at the good, rather than the pleasant; and, indeed, that they were ignorant of the false art, also, if that enables its possessors, as is alleged, to sail in safety amid the storms of politics. (–517, A.)

* In a fine passage, Leges, 2. 663, Plato teaches, that the good and bad judge of pleasure subjectively, or relatively to their own character. He then inquires whose judgment is to be received, as according with the truth, and answers, that of the good. Neither the lawgiver, then, should ever separate the pleasant from the right, the good, and the beautiful, nor any one else engaged in educating the young.

* For σωφροσύνη, comp. Repub. 4. 430, D. It is there compared to a concord and harmony, and called, κόσμος τις καὶ ἡδονῶν τινων καὶ ἐπιθυμιῶν ἐγκράτεια. This κόσμος consists in the subjugation of the worse part of the soul to the better. Ritter observes, (2. 474,) that the expression σωφροσύνη is vaguely used by Plato, especially in his early dialogues ; and that the definition, in the passages of the Repub. which he cites, (4. 430. u. s., and 3. 389, D.,) almost reduces its notion to that of δικαιοσύνη.

* See Appendix, No. II.

In this remarkable attack on four of the greatest men of Athens, — men certainly not inferior, in any point, to hundreds of public characters who have been extolled by Christian historians, — we discover an exasperation of feeling in Plato, produced by the unjust fate of his master, and by the wide difference between his own political views and those of his native land. Nor can his character in general be freed from the charge of fault-finding. To this he was led by that uncommonly high standard, which the nature of his mind compelled him to form ; and, dwelling aloof, as he did, from the turmoil of politics, in contemplative retirement, he could not estimate all the practical difficulties, which even a perfect statesman must encounter from a spoiled and self-willed people. But, if we strike out what is due to these prejudices, we must find something of justice left in his blame of "the four." The very fact, that he draws a broad line between them and Aristides (526, B.) is presumptive proof of a real difference. They were high-minded leaders of parties, who humored the people in many of its wishes for the sake of keeping power, and sought the greatness, but not the real well-being, of their country. Had they "to divinity aspired,

"Not on the breath of popular applause,
But through dependence on the sacred laws,
Framed in the schools where wisdom dwelt retired, Intent to trace the ideal path of right,"

had they been philosophical statesmen, aiming at justice and the highest good, the allies of Athens would have been less oppressed ; the people would not have grown worse so fast ; they themselves would have impressed something of their own virtue upon the state, and been less likely to suffer unjustly from those to whom they had done good.

But is it not strange, that Plato should reproach these politicians with their ill-success, as a proof of their want of virtuous statesmanship? This is the point which Aristides, the Sophist, presses most effectively in his long and wearisome defence of "the four." If ill-success is to be the test, what is to be argued from the two reprobate companions of Socrates, Critias and Alcibiades (Aristid. de Quatuorviris 2. 322, Dindorf., de Rhet. 2. 111)? what from Plato's abortive attempts to make a man out of Dionysius of Syracuse (302 – 4, 324)? Nor is Plato, the Sophist goes on to allege, consistent with himself, since he praises Pericles, in the Phædrus, for his rhetorical skill.* In the Apology (31, E.), he makes Socrates affirm, that no one can be safe who opposes any populace, or strives to prevent injustice in a state, unless he avoid public life and live as a private citizen. (343, 353, 366.) And, in our dialogue itself, he pronounces safety to arise from being like the sovereign power, or from having supreme power in one's own hands. Again, he says, "I should be a fool not to know, that at Athens any man may suffer any thing." And yet the fact, that these statesmen were not safe from the effects of popular ingratitude, is his proof that they did not oppose the people, or strive to prevent injustice.

How the reasonableness or consistency of Plato, as to this point, can be defended, I do not see. Ill-success could have the force which he gives it, only in case the influence of the four men outweighed the opposing influences of all other causes acting at their time upon the opposite side. In general, however, it may be said, that politicians, who complain of ingratitude, are only reaping what they have sown. They have tickled the nice palate of the people until their cookery pleases no longer; and now, by a rotation in office, which was right in their eyes until they came into power, and wrong afterwards, they are driven from the kitchen by new hands, who pay a price for the situation, and have learned some newer arts of falsehood. It was, perhaps, the sight of such flatterers of the Athenian demus fallen into disgrace, that led Plato beyond the bounds of truth, in imputing all the ill-success of politicians to their want of correct principles, — to their aiming at pleasure rather than good. Being preoccupied by this partial view, and having also in his mind the pretensions of the Sophists, — the teachers of such politicians, — that they could make men good, he loses sight of the great truth, that, in a corrupt age, a good man must suffer ill from those whom he tries to benefit.

But to return to the dialogue; — when Socrates had expressed such an opinion of these four great statesmen, Callicles replied, that no one of his own contemporaries could compare with them in the works they had done for the state. In answer, Socrates admits, that they had shown uncommon ability in gratifying the desires of the people. They had created the ships, walls, and docks, of Athens, but they differed in no respect from the politicians of the day in the motives of their administration. If the highest good of the state should be the statesman's aim, they could no more claim this title, than a cook or a writer on cookery could claim to rank with the master of gymnastics in preserving the bodily health. And, as such persons, if intrusted with the care of the body, would be blamed when the maladies arising from luxury should come on, so will the politician, who seeks to please rather than to profit, be punished for political evils, which he or his predecessors have occasioned.

The head of a state may not complain of ingratitude ; for it is by his management, that the character of those who compose it has grown worse. And the same holds good of the Sophists. They pretend that they can make their disciples better ; and yet find fault with these very scholars for keeping back the price of tuition from them, and for other acts of unthankfulness. But what good, demands Callicles, can you say of such worthless men as the Sophists ? They are the same with rhetoricians, answers Socrates, or nearly so ; only somewhat above them, because they deal with principles which rhetoricians merely apply. If, now, their pretensions are well-founded, they, as well as politicians, ought to fear no ingratitude ; they should stipulate for no fees of instruction beforehand, trusting to the generosity of those pupils, whom they had purged from vice.* (–521, A.)

Having thus compared the arts which aim at pleasure with those which aim at good, Socrates makes a personal appeal to Callicles. "Which mode of serving the state do you now exhort me to follow ; that of seeking its best interests, or that of catering for its desires ?" Callicles persists in telling over the same story, that fidelity in doing good will make him suffer the loss of all things. Socrates acknowledges, with evident allusion to his trial and condemnation, that he is exposed to such dangers from bad men, and that he could say nothing in the court which would win him the favor of his judges. If he should urge, on his defence, that he had opposed the public will, when it was basely clamorous for present gratification, that he had striven to make men good, and had their well-being in view, he would fare as a physician might fare before a jury of children with a cook for his accuser. What he called good, they called evil ; what he called hurtful, they called pleasant. It was painful to be perplexed ; and yet he must lead them through perplexity to truth. Would he not, then, before such judges, be himself perplexed, and at a loss for a defence ? "And do you think, then," says Callicles again, "that it is well with a man who cannot help himself ? " "Assuredly," replies Socrates, "it would be very ill with me, if I could not give myself that help which has been shown to be truly such, — if I could not observe the rule of right in all my relations. Let a man show me that I am not seeking to help myself thus, and I shall be ashamed of my character, and be grieved if I need punishment. But if I die for want of the flattering art of rhetoric, I shall not be sorry. For no one who is a man, and has reason, fears death in itself, but rather to do wrong. For to go into the other world with a soul full of all manner of iniquity is the worst of evils." (–523, A.)

* Schleiermacher thinks, that this is aimed at Aristippus, who, by taking pay for his instructions, brought reproach upon the Socratic philosophers. The best account of the remunerations given to the Sophists, which I have met with, is contained in Welcker's Essay on Prodicus, his Life and Writings, in Welcker and Näke's Rheinisches Museum, 1. 22 seq.

Having thus brought the two principles of action to the confines of the two states of being, he closes very nobly, by presenting them in contrast beyond the grave. His views are introduced as an explanation of the common mythus concerning a judgment after death ; which, however, Plato scruples not to alter for his own purposes. The views are these : The character formed by disregarding the good and right, and pursuing pleasure, must be lasting, while all the advantages it offers are temporary, being connected with the world and the wrong judgments of men. But, at death, men will come before a judge who will look at the bare soul, and give sentence according to its qualities. Among transgressors, there are some who are not gone too far in evil to be curable. For these, punishment, bitter as it must be, will prove a good. Others, having passed beyond the reach of a cure, will suffer eternally, as an example to all who shall behold them. Of this description, a large part will be tyrants and other men in power, who had on earth the greatest license to do evil. But, if one of these, like Aristides, rises above the temptations of his station on earth, his reward will be so much the greater. The larger number, however, of those who receive rewards, will be private persons ; and, more especially, philosophers who had not mingled in public affairs. With this trial in view, Socrates asserts, that he strives to bring his soul, in its most healthy condition, before the judge, and that he seeks to lead his fellow-men to do the same. And to this he now urges Callicles, warning him, that the trial then will be more serious than all earthly ones, and that, without such a preparation, he will be unable to help himself, but, speechless and perplexed, must submit to worse than earthly indignities. Callicles, he continues, might despise such fables, and the truth they contain, if he could show any thing better. But this, neither he, Polus, nor Gorgias, had been able to do. They should, therefore, agree with Socrates, that to be, and not to seem to be, a good man is a good thing, that the next best thing is, to become good by submitting to punishment ; that all flattery of one's self or others, of a few or a multitude, must be shunned, and that rhetoric, like every thing else, must be used to promote the right and that only. "Let us, then," he says in closing, "join together to live virtuously on such principles ; then can we best apply ourselves to politics, when we are no longer afloat on the most momentous subjects. This is the only way to live well and to die well."

With respect to the close of the Gorgias, which must be counted among the finest passages in Greek, it may be observed, that Plato shows elsewhere the same inclination to clothe in a mythical dress those truths which lie beyond the bounds of reason. It seems as if he felt the need of the venerable authority and positive assurances of a revelation upon such points, and resorted to the old traditions of his country, as the best substitute which he could find, as having for their foundation real, though distorted, truth.* The mythus is something more than mere drapery, something more than a poetical fiction, which, with a beautifully plastic hand, he shapes into a form and meaning corresponding to his awakened moral sense. And yet the freedom with which he treats the mythus, and the readiness with which he alters its form on several occasions, prove that he accepted it only in its leading outlines as true; it was to him a μῦθος, and yet a μάλα καλὸς λόγος. It is found, also, at the close of the Phædo and of the Republic. He, who compares the three passages, will perceive that they agree in affirming the rewards and punishments of another life, which are used, with all seriousness, as motives for living well here below; and also in teaching, that some criminals are healed by punishment, while others must suffer for ever without hope of a cure.* This Platonic view of the remedial nature of punishment, in certain cases, even in another

* This remark does not include those mythi which are of Plato's own invention. He was led to use them by his poetical temperament, and felt, perhaps, that the view suggested by a beautiful fable was as true as any which could be given; more true, because more beautiful, than if put into abstract propositions.

* Phædo, 113, E. "Those who are judged to be incurable on account of the enormity of their crimes, who have committed many and heinous sacrileges, or numerous unjust and lawless murders, or the like, these their appropriate destiny hurls into Tartarus, whence they never come forth." He then speaks of the punishment of those who have committed curable sins, in a passage too long to be inserted here, and then adds: — "With respect to the mythus, to affirm positively, that these things are as I have narrated them, is not the part of a reasonable man;" and then uses the truth taught in the mythus, as a motive for virtuous action. In the Republic, the narrator of the mythus is represented as near a chasm (see Gorg. 526, B., note) in the ground, by the side of a person who asked another, where Ardiæus was. "Now this Ardiæus was a tyrant in a Pamphylian city a thousand years before, and had slain his aged father and his elder brother, besides doing, as was said, many other unhallowed deeds. The person so asked replied, said the informant, 'He is not come, nor can he hereafter come hither.' Among the frightful spectacles that we saw, this was one, continued he: When we were near the mouth of the chasm, and were expecting to go upwards, after enduring all the other things appointed, on a sudden we saw this Ardiæus and others, nearly all of them tyrants; although some enormous transgressors among private persons were there also. When they thought that they should now go upwards (out of the chasm), the mouth would not let them pass, but uttered a bellowing sound, whenever any such incurably wicked person, or any one who had not paid a sufficient penalty, endeavoured to ascend. Thereupon, wild men, said he, all fiery to look upon, who stood by, when they heard the bellow, picked out and carried off a part of the transgressors; but Ardiæus and others they bound hand and foot, and threw them down, and beat them hard, and dragged them along on one side of the road, scraping them upon thorns, while to the by-standers they told the reasons why these sinners suffered these things, and that they were drawn along to be plunged into Tartarus. There, said he, of all the fears many and various which fell upon us, this was the greatest, — lest, when each one was going upwards, the mouth should utter that bellow, and most gladly did each one hear no sound as he ascended." A conception worthy of the highest flights of Dante!

life, seems to have recommended the doctrine of purgatory to some of the Christian fathers.*

Having thus exhibited the argument of the Gorgias at some length, it will be in order for us to ask, What is the main subject of the dialogue ? A question which it is almost as difficult to answer, in regard to some of the Platonic dialogues, as it would be to express the sum total of an evening's conversation among refined and intelligent persons : the delight you have felt, the instruction you have received, you are conscious of, and you carry away much in your memory ; but it is hard to say, what was the leading topic of the discourse, or whether there was any. The subject of the Gorgias is more easy to be perceived, and yet all have not been agreed concerning it. Olympiodorus (apud Routh) mentions three opinions besides his own : Some say, that it treats of rhetoric ; others, of justice and injustice, considered especially in their relations to happiness ; others still, absurdly enough, make it relate to the demiurgus or divine builder of the world, on account of the mythus at the close. "But we say," continues the Platonic commentator, "that the scope is, to treat of the principles which lead men to political happiness." With the first of these opinions, Cousin and Stallbaum agree. The latter says, however, that "though the principal point of the discussion is, to blame the civil and rhetorical art at that day in vogue, and to show, that it could not attain to excellence without the knowledge and practice of philosophy,"—yet several other topics are closely united with this, as the difference of the just and the pleasant, the end of human actions, and the constancy of a good man in bearing evils and injuries. Nearly the same is the view taken by Ast. The Gorgias, says he, "has a decidedly political tendency ; and all the philosophical inquiries, which it contains, are intended to show, not only the unmeaning nature, but also the perniciousness, and, in fact, the profligacy, of the political art, when built on sophistry, that is, of the rhetoric there opposed." Another writer on the higher criticism of Plato, Socher, gives this dialogue a wider range. "The whole presents an arena, rising in three gradations. The prize of the contest is the better, happier mode of life ; the parties are philosophy and rhetoric ; that contends for righteousness and virtue ; this for the possession of political power ; the champion of the former is Socrates ; on behalf of the latter, three step forward, Gorgias, a rhetorician, Polus, a Sophist, and Callicles, an Athenian politician." Finally, Schleiermacher and C. F. Hermann, in the words of the latter, regard "the kernel of the dialogue to be, that the good alone is truly useful, and that men harm themselves by wrong-doing ; that, accordingly, the rule of pleasure must give way to the higher rule of the good."*

* All these opinions may be found in the works of their respective advocates, viz. Cousin's in his transl. 3. 130, seq., Stallbaum's in Vol. II. Sec. 1. p. 38 of his second ed., Ast's in his work on Plato's life and writings, p. 133, Socher's in his similar work, (Munich, 1820,) p. 237, in which he is polemical towards Ast. C. F. Hermann's is contained in his Introd. to Plato, (Heidelberg, 1838 – 9, the second vol. I have not seen,) p. 476, and Schleiermacher's — the critic to whom the thorough understanding of Plato owes most — in Dobson's translation of his prefaces. While I am upon this subject, let me say, that, in this translation, Schleiermacher is too often traduced (traduire), and too seldom done into English. His style, indeed, offers serious difficulties to a translator ; his mind was not, "though deep, yet clear." It may be forgiven, therefore, to a translator, that sometimes he constructs, out of Schleiermacher's formidable German

Most of these opinions have something of justice in them, but, with the exception of the last, appear to me to look at a part of the dialogue, rather than at the whole. If rhetoric is the subject, why have the researches into the nature of pleasure, the comparison between suffering injustice and committing it, and the discussion of the efficacy of punishment, so great prominence? Much is said about rhetoric, but it is the vehicle for conveying thought, rather than the subject, the starting-point of the dialogue, rather than its goal. I should entertain just the opposite opinion to that of Ast above quoted: that the scientific part of the dialogue is the main thing, and rhetoric only an example. Schleiermacher's view, so far as I understand it, or one very similar to it, appears to me to deserve the preference. The main subject is, the worthless nature of pleasure, and of the pursuits founded on pleasure, as opposed to the right and the good. Rhetoric, including politics in its corrupt condition at that time, is selected as the most prominent and most esteemed of the arts which minister to pleasure. This exhibition of the subject being admitted, we see a propriety in the introduction of every topic. The right and the good are inseparably linked to each other, and, in fact, united with all that pertains to man's excellence and well-being. But to these, pleasure, pursued for its own sake, is opposed. It is sentences, something not exactly English, as though he were only half conscious of the meaning. But, when such things as the turning of André Dacier, the French translator of parts of Plato, into Madame Dacier occur, notwithstanding Schleiermacher's "dem Dacier," and "Seiner einleitung," it may be suspected, that the translation was made before sufficient knowledge of German was acquired, — a suspicion from which only gross carelessness can free the translator.

opposed to true good, for it blindly seeks present gratification, however pernicious or debasing. It is opposed to right or justice, for it tries to avoid suffering wrong by inflicting wrong on others. It is opposed to both, because its impulse is to escape from deserved punishment, without regard to the good effects of punishment on virtue and happiness. The arts which minister to pleasure, — one of which, and the chief in its pretensions, is false rhetoric, — fall under the same condemnation. As truth is on the side of good, they have no communion with truth ; they are arts of imposition or flattery, calculated to persuade the ignorant, and reared upon no basis of unchanging truth or scientific principles. In the end, as they sacrifice the highest good of those whom they please to their present gratification, they involve in ruin him who practises them, and those who are practised upon. Politics, especially, which, when genuine, aims at the public good, is, when based on these principles, a mischievous trade. And this supreme pursuit of pleasure affects the condition of man, not only in this life, but in the life to come.

Such appears to me to be the subject of the Gorgias. But it should be added, that Plato has so handled the subject, that the dialogue answers, also, for a defence of himself and his master. The allusions to the trial of Socrates have been noticed already. He stands before us, as the philosopher who suffers reproach and death for seeking men's good rather than their pleasure. But Plato defends himself, also, against friends, apparently, who blamed him for not publicly serving the state, and against public men, who thought philosophy a useless pursuit. Politics, he asserts, must be founded on the theory and practice of philosophy. No man is a true politician until he becomes τεχνικός, — an artist, a philosopher able to distinguish useful from harmful pleasures, and reduces his science to practice by making men better. That this is a fair defence I do not assert ; for, with true good in view at the outset, the practice perfects a man in the science. He might have said, what he must have felt, that the corruption of the times, the necessity of using flattering arts to which he could not resort, would have altogether prevented his success. In such an age, — and such an age is a very long one, — the philosophical statesman, — let me add, the truly enlightened Christian statesman, — the sound pilot of the state, is thrust from the helm, and ignorant apprentices usurp his place. Plato's part, therefore, was to act on a few, and on future times.

I would gladly now draw the attention of my younger readers to the Gorgias, as a display of the mind and style of Plato ; but the limits of an Introduction forbid me to enlarge upon this topic. I must, therefore, omit to speak of the exquisite style of Plato, and the dramatic form in which he clothes his works. I must only glance at the Platonic Socrates, the centre of Plato's writings ; at his admirable irony, now playful and now severe, his unruffled good-nature, his hatred of show and pretence, his attitude, as an inquirer, rather than as already wise, his unaffected modesty, his propensity to illustrate the great by the small, philosophical truth by common life, his high estimate of moral truth above physical. There are, however, one or two points to be noticed, in which Gorgias differs from many of Plato's works. One is, the earnestness, almost amounting to bitterness, with which the argument is carried on. There is less here of playful irony than elsewhere. Another is, that Socrates expresses his opinion, and lays down his principles, more than in most of the dialogues of an earlier date. Another still is, that, compared with the Platonic works of the first period, it has less of the dramatic about it; we have no embellished preface, like that of Protagoras, but at the beginning, Socrates, without any delay on the part of the writer, enters into the discussion. All these characteristics may be explained by a predominance of moral feeling, which rises even into indignation, and deprives him of part of his usual tranquillity. With all this the form is admirable.* The argument grows in interest and importance, until it ends in a strain of highest mood. To mention but a single characteristic, nothing can be finer than the way in which Socrates deals with Callicles in the third part, where he retorts his language upon him, and shows that the indignities, which he had described as the rewards of the just man on earth, will be heaped upon the unjust in a higher degree hereafter.

The opinion of the greater number of critics assigns the composition of the Gorgias to one of the years not long after the death of Socrates, while that event was still fresh in Plato's mind. Athenæus has a story (11. 505, D.), that Gorgias read the work, and said, "How well Plato knows how to lampoon"; and another, that Gorgias declared, that "he never heard or said such things as Plato reported." If Gorgias died soon after Socrates,

* Stallbaum, in his Introd. to the Repub., says: "Hoc monere juvat disserendi quoque elegantiam in Politia tantam regnare ut paucissimi sermones præter Gorgiam, Protagoram, Phædonem, Phædrum, et Symposium, hoc in genere ad eam comparandi sint." Ritter, 2. 192. "In regard to Plato's imitative art in dialogue (dialogisch-mimische kunst), we consider as his most finished works, Protagoras, Gorgias, and Symposium, next to which, though at some distance, come Phædrus and Phædo." Here, however, style, rather than form, is spoken of. As a work of art, I should place Phædrus first among all the Platonic dialogues.

as Foss maintains, these anecdotes, which may not be wholly unworthy of credence, would supply us with the latter term for the composition of the dialogue. But there is no certainty in regard to the dates of the birth of Gorgias, and of his age when he came to Athens as ambassador, on which the date of his death depends. A comparison of this dialogue with Plato's other works enables us to come somewhere near the time of its composition in another manner. It occupies a middle place as Schleiermacher teaches us, between the elementary writings of Plato's first years, and the constructive ones of his maturer life. This critic conceives that it was written after Plato's first visit to Sicily, in 389, B. C., when he was forty years of age. Stallbaum brings it much nearer to the death of Socrates, in 399. To this conclusion he is led by a strong resemblance he discovers between the Gorgias and Meno, which latter dialogue he carries back even to a time before the death of Socrates, on account of Plato's mildness there in attacking Anytus, the accuser of his master. But neither of these considerations has much weight; Plato might and does resemble himself in works written at considerable intervals from one another, and the more gentle tone of Meno may be owing to a frame of its author's mind which is not to be accounted for. It is safer to say, that the date cannot be ascertained precisely.

ποιεῖν; ΓΟΡ. Ἐπαγγέλλομαί γε δὴ ταῦτα οὐ μόνον ἐνθάδε, ἀλλὰ καὶ ἄλλοθι. ΣΩ. Ἆρ' οὖν ἐθελήσαις ἄν, ὦ Γοργία, ὥσπερ νῦν διαλεγόμεθα, διατελέσαι τὸ μὲν ἐρωτῶν, τὸ δ' ἀποκρινόμενος, τὸ δὲ μῆκος τῶν λόγων τοῦτο, οἷον καὶ Πῶλος ἤρξατο, ἐσαῦθις ἀποθέσθαι; ἀλλ' ὅπερ ὑπισχνεῖ, μὴ ψεύσῃ, ἀλλὰ ἐθέλησον κατὰ βραχὺ τὸ ἐρωτώμενον ἀποκρίνεσθαι. ΓΟΡ. Εἰσὶ μέν, ὦ Σώκρατες, ἔνιαι τῶν ἀποκρίσεων ἀναγκαῖαι διὰ C μακρῶν τοὺς λόγους ποιεῖσθαι· οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ πειράσομαί γε ὡς διὰ βραχυτάτων. καὶ γὰρ αὖ καὶ τοῦτο ἔν ἐστιν ὧν φημι, μηδένα ἂν ἐν βραχυτέροις ἐμοῦ τὰ αὐτὰ εἰπεῖν. ΣΩ. Τούτου μὴν δεῖ, ὦ Γοργία· καί μοι ἐπίδειξιν αὐτοῦ τούτου ποίησαι, τῆς βραχυλογίας, μακρολογίας δὲ ἐσαῦθις. ΓΟΡ. Ἀλλὰ ποιήσω, καὶ οὐδενὸς φήσεις βραχυλογωτέρου ἀκοῦσαι.

Ὅτι, ὦ Σώκρατες, τῶν μὲν ἄλλων τεχνῶν περὶ χειρουργίας τε καὶ τοιαύτας πράξεις, ὡς ἔπος εἰπεῖν, πᾶσά ἐστιν ἡ ἐπιστήμη, τῆς δὲ ῥητορικῆς οὐδέν ἐστι τοιοῦτον χειρούργημα, ἀλλὰ πᾶσα ἡ πρᾶξις καὶ ἡ κύρωσις διὰ λόγων ἐστί. διὰ ταῦτ' ἐγὼ τὴν C ῥητορικὴν τέχνην ἀξιῶ εἶναι περὶ λόγους, ὀρθῶς λέγων, ὡς ἐγώ φημι.

νων καὶ ὑπ' ἐμοῦ, ἀπόκριναι τί ἐστι τοῦτο, ὃ φῂς σὺ μέγιστον ἀγαθὸν εἶναι τοῖς ἀνθρώποις καὶ σὲ δημιουργὸν εἶναι αὐτοῦ. ΓΟΡ. Ὅπερ ἐστίν, ὦ Σώκρατες, τῇ ἀληθείᾳ μέγιστον ἀγαθὸν καὶ αἴτιον ἅμα μὲν ἐλευθερίας αὐτοῖς τοῖς ἀνθρώποις, ἅμα δὲ τοῦ ἄλλων ἄρχειν ἐν τῇ αὑτοῦ πόλει ἑκάστῳ. ΣΩ. Τί οὖν δὴ τοῦτο λέγεις; E ΓΟΡ. CAP. VIII. ΣΩ. Νῦν μοι δοκεῖς δηλῶσαι, ὦ Γοργία, ἐγγύτατα τὴν ῥητορικὴν ἥντινα τέ-453 χνην ἡγεῖ εἶναι, καί, εἴ τι ἐγὼ συνίημι, λέγεις, ὅτι πειθοῦς δημιουργός ἐστιν ἡ ῥητορική, καὶ ἡ πραγματεία αὐτῆς ἅπασα καὶ τὸ κεφάλαιον εἰς τοῦτο τελευτᾷ. ἢ ἔχεις τι λέγειν ἐπὶ πλέον τὴν ῥητορικὴν δύνασθαι ἢ πειθὼ τοῖς ἀκούουσιν ἐν τῇ ψυχῇ ποιεῖν; ΓΟΡ. Οὐδαμῶς, ὦ Σώκρατες, ἀλλά μοι δοκεῖς ἱκανῶς ὁρίζεσθαι· ἔστι γὰρ τοῦτο τὸ κεφάλαιον αὐτῆς. ΣΩ. Ἄκουσον δή, ὦ Γοργία. ἐγὼ γὰρ εὖ ἴσθ' ὅτι, ὡς ἐμαυτὸν B πείθω, εἴπερ τις ἄλλος ἄλλῳ διαλέγεται βουλόμενος εἰδέναι αὐτὸ τοῦτο, περὶ ὅτου ὁ λόγος ἐστί, καὶ ἐμὲ εἶναι τούτων ἕνα· ἀξιῶ δὲ καὶ σέ.

ΣΩ. Οὐδεμία ἔμοιγε δοκεῖ, ὦ Πῶλε, ὡς γε πρὸς σὲ τἀληθῆ εἰρῆσθαι. ΠΩΛ. Ἀλλὰ τί σοι δοκεῖ ἡ ῥητορικὴ εἶναι; ΣΩ. Πρᾶγμα, ὃ φῂς σὺ ποιῆσαι τέχνην ἐν τῷ συγγράμματι, ὃ ἐγὼ ἔναγχος ἀνέγνων. ΠΩΛ. Τί τοῦτο λέγεις; ΣΩ. Ἐμ- C πειρίαν ἔγωγέ τινα. ΠΩΛ. Ἐμπειρία ἄρα σοι δοκεῖ ἡ ῥητορικὴ εἶναι; ΣΩ. Ἔμοιγε, εἰ μή τι σὺ ἄλλο λέγεις. ΠΩΛ. Τίνος ἐμπειρία; ΣΩ. Χάριτός τινος καὶ ἡδονῆς ἀπεργασίας.

ΠΩΛ. Οὐκοῦν καλόν σοι δοκεῖ ἡ ῥητορικὴ εἶναι, χαρίζεσθαι οἷόν τ' εἶναι ἀνθρώποις; ΣΩ. Τί δέ, ὦ Πῶλε; ἤδη πέπυσαι παρ' ἐμοῦ ὅ τι Βούλει οὖν, ἐπειδὴ τιμᾷς τὸ χαρίζεσθαι, σμικρόν τί μοι χαρίσασθαι; ΠΩΛ. Ἔγωγε. ΣΩ. Ἐροῦ νῦν με, ὀψοποιία ἥτις μοι δοκεῖ τέχνη εἶναι. ΠΩΛ. Ἐρωτῶ δή, τίς τέχνη ὀψοποιία; ΣΩ. Οὐδεμία, ὦ Πῶλε. ΠΩΛ. Ἀλλὰ τί; φάθι. ΣΩ. Φημὶ δή, ἐμπειρία τις.

E ΠΩΛ. Τίνος; φάθι. ΣΩ. Φημὶ δή, χάριτος καὶ ἡδονῆς ἀπεργασίας, ὦ Πῶλε. ΠΩΛ. Ταὐτὸν δ' ἐστὶν ὀψοποιία καὶ ῥητορική; ΣΩ. Οὐδαμῶς γε, ἀλλὰ τῆς αὐτῆς ἐπιτηδεύσεως μόριον. ΠΩΛ. Τίνος λέγεις ταύτης; ΣΩ. Μὴ ἀγροικότερον ᾖ τὸ ἀληθὲς εἰπεῖν· οἶκνῶ γὰρ Γοργίου ἕνεκα λέγειν, μὴ οἴηταί με διακωμῳδεῖν 463 τὸ ἑαυτοῦ ἐπιτήδευμα. ἐγὼ δὲ εἰ μὲν τοῦτό ἐστιν ἡ ῥητορικὴ ἣν Γοργίας ἐπιτηδεύει οὐκ οἶδα· καὶ γὰρ ἄρτι ἐκ τοῦ λόγου οὐδὲν ἡμῖν καταφανὲς ἐγένετο τί ποτε οὗτος ἡγεῖται· ὃ δ' ἐγὼ καλῶ τὴν ῥητορικήν, πράγματός τινός ἐστι μόριον οὐδενὸς τῶν καλῶν. ΓΟΡ. Τίνος, ὦ Σώκρατες; εἰπέ, μηδὲν ἐμὲ αἰσχυνθείς.

Cap. XVIII. ΣΩ. Δοκεῖ τοίνυν μοι, ὦ Γοργία, εἶναί τι ἐπιτήδευμα τεχνικὸν μὲν οὔ, ψυχῆς δὲ στοχαστικῆς καὶ ἀνδρείας καὶ φύσει δεινῆς

Τί δέ; δοκοῦσαν μὲν εὐεξίαν, οὖσαν δ' οὔ; οἷον τοιόνδε λέγω· πολλοὶ δοκοῦσιν εὖ ἔχειν τὰ σώματα, οὓς οὐκ ἂν ῥᾳδίως αἴσθοιτό τις, ὅτι οὐκ εὖ ἔχουσιν, ἄλλος ἢ ἰατρός τε καὶ τῶν γυμναστικῶν τις. ΓΟΡ. Ἀληθῆ λέγεις. ΣΩ. Τὸ τοιοῦτον λέγω καὶ ἐν σώματι εἶναι καὶ ἐν ψυχῇ, ὅ τι ποιεῖ δοκεῖν μὲν
B εὖ ἔχειν τὸ σῶμα καὶ τὴν ψυχήν, ἔχει δὲ οὐδὲν μᾶλλον. ΓΟΡ. Ἔστι ταῦτα.

Cap. XIX. ΣΩ. Φέρε δή σοι, ἐὰν δύνωμαι, σαφέστερον ἐπιδείξω ὃ λέγω. Δυοῖν ὄντοιν τοῖν πραγμάτοιν δύο λέγω τέχνας· τὴν μὲν ἐπὶ τῇ ψυχῇ πολιτικὴν καλῶ, τὴν δὲ ἐπὶ σώματι μίαν μὲν οὕτως ὀνομάσαι οὐκ ἔχω σοι, μιᾶς δὲ οὔσης τῆς τοῦ σώματος θεραπείας δύο μόρια λέγω, τὴν μὲν γυμναστικήν, τὴν δὲ ἰατρικήν. τῆς δὲ πολιτικῆς ἀντίστροφον μὲν τῇ γυμναστικῇ τὴν νομοθετικήν, ἀντίστροφον δὲ τῇ ἰατρικῇ τὴν δικαιο-
C σύνην. ἐπικοινωνοῦσι μὲν δὴ ἀλλήλαις, ἅτε περὶ τὸ αὐτὸ οὖσαι, ἑκάτεραι τούτων, ἥ τε ἰατρικὴ τῇ γυμναστικῇ καὶ ἡ δικαιοσύνη τῇ νομοθετικῇ· ὅμως δὲ διαφέρουσί τι ἀλλήλων. τεττάρων δὴ τούτων οὐσῶν, καὶ ἀεὶ πρὸς τὸ βέλτιστον θεραπευουσῶν, τῶν μὲν τὸ σῶμα, τῶν δὲ τὴν ψυχήν, ἡ κολακευτικὴ αἰσθομένη, οὐ γνοῦσα λέγω ἀλλὰ στοχασαμένη, τέτραχα ἑαυτὴν διανείμασα, ὑποδῦσα ὑπὸ ἕκαστον τῶν μορίων, προσποιεῖται εἶναι τοῦτο, ὅπερ ὑπέδυ, καὶ τοῦ μὲν βελτίστου οὐδὲν φροντίζει, τῷ δὲ ἀεὶ ἡδίστῳ θηρεύεται τὴν ἄνοιαν καὶ ἐξαπατᾷ, ὥστε δοκεῖ πλείστου ἀξία εἶναι. ὑπὸ μὲν οὖν τὴν ἰατρικὴν ἡ ὀψοποιικὴ ὑποδέδυκε, καὶ προσποιεῖται τὰ βέλτιστα σιτία τῷ σώματι εἰδέναι, ὥστ', εἰ δέοι ἐν παισὶ διαγωνίζεσθαι ὀψοποιόν τε καὶ ἰατρὸν ἢ ἐν ἀνδράσιν οὕτως ἀνοήτοις ὥσπερ οἱ παῖδες, πότερος ἐπαΐει περὶ τῶν χρηστῶν σιτίων καὶ πονηρῶν, ὁ ἰατρὸς ἢ ὁ ὀψοποιός, λιμῷ ἂν ἀποθανεῖν τὸν ἰατρόν. κολακείαν μὲν οὖν αὐτὸ καλῶ, καὶ αἰσχρόν φημι εἶναι τὸ τοιοῦτον, ὦ Πῶλε, — τοῦτο γὰρ πρὸς σὲ λέγω, — ὅτι τοῦ ἡδέος στοχάζεται ἄνευ τοῦ βελτίστου· τέχνην δὲ αὐτὴν οὐ φημι εἶναι, ἀλλ' ἐμπειρίαν, ὅτι οὐκ ἔχει λόγον οὐδένα ἃ προσφέρει ὁποῖ' ἄττα τὴν φύσιν ἐστίν, ὥστε τὴν αἰτίαν ἑκάστου μὴ ἔχειν εἰπεῖν. ἐγὼ δὲ τέχνην οὐ καλῶ ὃ ἂν ᾖ ἄλογον πρᾶγμα. τούτων δὲ πέρι εἰ ἀμφισβητεῖς, ἐθέλω ὑποσχεῖν λόγον.

Cap. XX. Τῇ μὲν οὖν ἰατρικῇ, ὥσπερ λέγω, ἡ ὀψοποιικὴ κολακεία ὑπόκειται· τῇ δὲ γυμναστικῇ κατὰ τὸν αὐτὸν τρόπον τοῦτον ἡ κομμωτική, κακοῦργός τε οὖσα καὶ ἀπατηλὴ καὶ ἀγεννὴς καὶ ἀνελεύθερος, σχήμασι καὶ χρώμασι καὶ λειότησι καὶ ἐσθήσει ἀπατῶσα, ὥστε ποιεῖν ἀλλότριον κάλλος ἐφελκομένους τοῦ οἰκείου τοῦ διὰ τῆς γυμναστικῆς ἀμελεῖν. ἵν' οὖν μὴ μακρολογῶ, ἐθέλω σοι εἰπεῖν ὥσπερ οἱ γεωμέτραι — ἤδη

γὰρ ἂν ἴσως ἀκολουθήσαις — ὅτι ὃ κομμωτικὴ
C πρὸς γυμναστικήν, τοῦτο ὀψοποιικὴ πρὸς ἰατρικήν. μᾶλλον δὲ ὧδε, ὅτι ὃ κομμωτικὴ πρὸς γυμναστικήν, τοῦτο σοφιστικὴ πρὸς νομοθετικήν, καὶ ὅτι ὃ ὀψοποιικὴ πρὸς ἰατρικήν, τοῦτο ῥητορικὴ πρὸς δικαιοσύνην. ὅπερ μέντοι λέγω, διέστηκε μὲν οὕτω φύσει· ἅτε δ' ἐγγὺς ὄντων φύρονται ἐν τῷ αὐτῷ καὶ περὶ ταὐτὰ σοφισταὶ καὶ ῥήτορες, καὶ οὐκ ἔχουσιν ὅ τι χρήσονται οὔτε αὐτοὶ ἑαυτοῖς οὔτε οἱ ἄλλοι ἀνθρωποι τούτοις.
D καὶ γὰρ ἂν, εἰ μὴ ἡ ψυχὴ τῷ σώματι ἐπεστάτει, ἀλλ' αὐτὸ αὑτῷ, καὶ μὴ ὑπὸ ταύτης κατεθεωρεῖτο καὶ διεκρίνετο ἥ τε ὀψοποιικὴ καὶ ἡ ἰατρική, ἀλλ' αὐτὸ τὸ σῶμα ἔκρινε σταθμώμενον ταῖς χάρισι ταῖς πρὸς αὐτό, τὸ τοῦ Ἀναξαγόρου ἂν πολὺ ἦν, ὦ φίλε Πῶλε· σὺ γὰρ τούτων ἔμπειρος· ὁμοῦ ἂν πάντα χρήματα ἐφύρετο ἐν τῷ αὐτῷ, ἀκρίτων ὄντων τῶν τε ἰατρικῶν καὶ ὑγιεινῶν καὶ ὀψοποικῶν. ὃ μὲν οὖν ἐγώ φημι τὴν
E ῥητορικὴν εἶναι, ἀκήκοας· ἀντίστροφον ὀψοποιίας ἐν ψυχῇ, ὡς ἐκεῖνο ἐν σώματι. Ἴσως μὲν οὖν ἄτοπον πεποίηκα, ὅτι σε οὐκ ἐῶν μακροὺς λόγους λέγειν αὐτὸς συχνὸν λόγον ἀποτέτακα. ἄξιον μὲν οὖν ἐμοὶ συγγνώμην ἔχειν ἐστί· λέγοντος γάρ μου βραχέα οὐκ ἐμάνθανες, οὐδὲ χρῆσθαι τῇ ἀποκρίσει ἣν σοι ἀπεκρινάμην οὐδὲν

ἔα με χρῆσθαι· δίκαιον γάρ. καὶ νῦν ταύτῃ τῇ ἀποκρίσει εἴ τι ἔχεις χρῆσθαι, χρῶ.

Cap. XXI. ΠΩΛ. Τί οὖν φῄς; κολακεία δοκεῖ σοι εἶναι ἡ ῥητορική; ΣΩ. Κολακείας μὲν οὖν ἔγωγε εἶπον μόριον. ἀλλ' οὐ μνημονεύεις τηλικοῦτος ὤν, ὦ Πῶλε; τί τάχα δράσεις [πρεσβύτης γενόμενος]; ΠΩΛ. Νὴ τὸν κύνα· ἀμφιγνοῶ μέντοι, ὦ Πῶλε, ἐφ' ἑκάστου ὧν λέγεις, πότερον αὐτὸς ταῦτα λέγεις καὶ γνώμην σαυτοῦ ἀποφαίνει, ἢ ἐμὲ ἐρωτᾷς. ΠΩΛ. Ἀλλ' ἔγωγε σὲ ἐρωτῶ. ΣΩ. Οὐκ ἄρτι οὕτω πως ἔλεγες, ὅτι ἀποκτιννύασιν οἱ ῥήτορες οὓς ἂν βούλωνται, ὥσπερ οἱ τύραννοι, καὶ χρήματα ἀφαιροῦνται καὶ ἐξελαύνουσιν ἐκ τῶν πόλεων ὃν ἂν δοκῇ αὐτοῖς; ΠΩΛ. Ἔγωγε.

CAP. XXII. ΣΩ. Λέγω τοίνυν σοι, ὅτι δύο ταῦτ' ἐστὶ τὰ ἐρωτήματα, καὶ ἀποκρινοῦμαί γέ σοι πρὸς ἀμφότερα. φημὶ γάρ, ὦ Πῶλε, ἐγὼ καὶ τοὺς ῥήτορας καὶ τοὺς τυράννους δύνασθαι

Μὴ κατηγόρει, ὦ λῷστε Πῶλε, ἵνα προσείπω σε κατὰ σέ· ἀλλ' εἰ μὲν C ἔχεις ἐμὲ ἐρωτᾶν, ἐπίδειξον, ὅτι ψεύδομαι, εἰ δὲ μή, αὐτὸς ἀποκρίνου. ΠΩΛ. Ἀλλ' ἐθέλω ἀποκρίνεσθαι, ἵνα καὶ εἰδῶ ὅ τι λέγεις.

Cap. XXIII. ΣΩ. Πότερον οὖν σοι δοκοῦσιν οἱ ἄνθρωποι τοῦτο βούλεσθαι, ὃ ἂν πράττωσιν ἑκάστοτε, ἢ ἐκεῖνο, οὗ ἕνεκα πράττουσι τοῦθ', ὃ πράττουσιν; οἷον οἱ τὰ φάρμακα πίνοντες παρὰ τῶν ἰατρῶν πότερόν σοι δοκοῦσι τοῦτο βούλεσθαι, ὅπερ ποιοῦσι, πίνειν τὸ φάρμακον D καὶ ἀλγεῖν, ἢ ἐκεῖνο, τὸ ὑγιαίνειν, οὗ ἕνεκα πίνουσι; ΠΩΛ. Δῆλον, ὅτι τὸ ὑγιαίνειν, οὗ ἕνεκα πίνουσιν. ΣΩ. Οὐκοῦν καὶ οἱ πλέοντές τε καὶ τὸν ἄλλον χρηματισμὸν χρηματιζόμενοι οὐ τοῦτό ἐστιν ὃ βούλονται, ὃ ποιοῦσιν ἑκάστοτε· τίς γὰρ βούλεται πλεῖν τε καὶ κινδυνεύειν καὶ πράγματ' ἔχειν; ἀλλ' ἐκεῖνο, οἶμαι, οὗ ἕνεκα πλέουσι, πλουτεῖν· πλούτου γὰρ ἕνεκα πλέουσι. ΠΩΛ. Πάνυ γε. ΣΩ. Ἄλλο τι οὖν οὕτω καὶ περὶ πάντων; ἐάν τίς τι πράττῃ ἕνεκά του, οὐ τοῦτο βούλεται, ὃ πράττει, ἀλλ' ἐκεῖνο, οὗ ἕνεκα πράττει; ΠΩΛ. Ναί. ΣΩ. Οὔκ, ἀλλὰ ταῦτα. ΣΩ. Πότερον οὖν τὰ μεταξὺ ταῦτα ἕνεκεν τῶν ἀγαθῶν πράττουσιν, ὅταν πράττωσιν, ἢ τἀγαθὰ τῶν μεταξύ; ΠΩΛ. Τὰ μεταξὺ δή-
B που τῶν ἀγαθῶν. ΣΩ. Τὸ ἀγαθὸν ἄρα διώκοντες καὶ βαδίζομεν, ὅταν βαδίζωμεν, οἰόμενοι βέλτιον εἶναι, καὶ τὸ ἐναντίον ἕσταμεν, ὅταν ἑστῶμεν, τοῦ αὐτοῦ ἕνεκα, τοῦ ἀγαθοῦ. ἢ οὔ; ΠΩΛ. Ναί. ΣΩ. Οὐκοῦν καὶ ἀποκτίννυμεν, εἴ τιν' ἀποκτίννυμεν, καὶ ἐκβάλλομεν καὶ ἀφαιρούμεθα χρήματα, οἰόμενοι ἄμεινον εἶναι ἡμῖν ταῦτα ποιεῖν ἢ μή; ΠΩΛ. Πάνυ γε. ΣΩ. Ἕνεκ' ἄρα τοῦ ἀγαθοῦ ἅπαντα ταῦτα ποιοῦσιν οἱ ποιοῦντες. ΠΩΛ. Φημί.

CAP. XXIV. ΣΩ. Οὐκοῦν ὡμολογήσαμεν, ἃ
C ἕνεκά του ποιοῦμεν, μὴ ἐκεῖνα βούλεσθαι, ἀλλ' ἐκεῖνο, οὗ ἕνεκα ταῦτα ποιοῦμεν; ΠΩΛ. Μάλιστα. ΣΩ. Οὐκ ἄρα σφάττειν βουλόμεθα οὐδ' ἐκβάλλειν ἐκ τῶν πόλεων οὐδὲ χρήματα ἀφαιρεῖσθαι ἁπλῶς οὕτως, ἀλλ' ἐὰν μὲν ὠφέλιμα ᾖ ταῦτα, βουλόμεθα πράττειν αὐτά, βλαβερὰ δὲ

ΠΩΛ. Ἀληθῆ. ΣΩ. Οὐκοῦν εἴπερ ταῦτα ὁμολογοῦμεν, εἴ τις ἀποκτείνει τινὰ ἢ ἐκβάλλει ἐκ πόλεως ἢ ἀφαιρεῖται χρήματα, εἴτε τύραννος ὢν εἴτε ῥήτωρ, οἰόμενος ἄμεινον εἶναι αὐτῷ, τυγχάνει δὲ ὂν κάκιον, οὗτος δήπου ποιεῖ ἃ δοκεῖ αὐτῷ. ἦ γάρ; ΠΩΛ. τῃ, εἴπερ ἐστὶ τὸ μέγα δύνασθαι ἀγαθόν τι κατὰ τὴν σὴν ὁμολογίαν; ΠΩΛ. Οὐκ ἔστιν. ΣΩ. Ἀληθῆ ἄρα ἐγὼ ἔλεγον, λέγων, ὅτι ἔστιν ἄνθρωπον ποιοῦντα ἐν πόλει ἃ δοκεῖ αὐτῷ μὴ μέγα δύνασθαι μηδὲ ποιεῖν ἃ βούλεται. ΠΩΛ. Ὡς δὴ σύ, ὦ Σώκρατες, οὐκ ἂν δέξαιο ἐξεῖναί σοι ποιεῖν ὅ τι δοκεῖ σοι ἐν τῇ πόλει μᾶλλον ἢ μή, οὐδὲ ζηλοῖς, ὅταν ἴδῃς τινὰ ἢ ἀποκτείναντα ὃν ἔδοξεν αὐτῷ ἢ ἀφελόμενον χρήματα ἢ δήσαντα. ΣΩ. Δικαίως λέγεις ἢ ἀδίκως; ΠΩΛ. Ὁπότερ' ἂν ποιῇ, οὐκ ἀμφοτέρως ζηλωτόν ἐστιν; 469
ΣΩ. Εὐφήμει, ὦ Πῶλε. ΠΩΛ. Τί δή; ΣΩ. Ὅτι οὐ χρὴ οὔτε τοὺς ἀζηλώτους ζηλοῦν οὔτε τοὺς ἀθλίους, ἀλλ' ἐλεεῖν. ΠΩΛ. Τί δαί; οὕτω σοι δοκεῖ ἔχειν περὶ ὧν ἐγὼ λέγω τῶν ἀνθρώπων; ΣΩ. Πῶς γὰρ οὔ; ΠΩΛ. Ὅστις

Τὸν ἀδίκως γε, ὦ ἑταῖρε, ἀποκτείναντα, καὶ ἐλεεινόν γε πρός· τὸν δὲ δικαίως ἀζήλωτον. ΠΩΛ. Ἡ που ὅ γε ἀποθνήσκων ἀδίκως ἐλεεινός τε καὶ ἄθλιός ἐστιν. ΣΩ. Ἧττον ἢ ὁ ἀποκτιννύς, ὦ Πῶλε, καὶ ἧττον ἢ ὁ δικαίως ἀποθνήσκων. ΠΩΛ. Πῶς δῆτα, ὦ Σώκρατες; ΣΩ. Οὕτως, ὡς μέγιστον τῶν κακῶν τυγχάνει ὂν τὸ ἀδικεῖν. ΠΩΛ. Ἦ γὰρ τοῦτο μέγιστον; οὐ τὸ ἀδικεῖσθαι μεῖζον; ΣΩ. Ἥκιστά γε. ΠΩΛ. Σὺ ἄρα βούλοιο ἂν ἀδικεῖσθαι μᾶλλον ἢ ἀδικεῖν; ΣΩ. Βουλοίμην μὲν ἂν ἔγωγε οὐδέτερα· εἰ δ' ἀναγκαῖον εἴη ἀδικεῖν ἢ ἀδικεῖσθαι, ἑλοίμην ἂν μᾶλλον ἀδικεῖσθαι ἢ ἀδικεῖν. ΠΩΛ. Σὺ ἄρα τυραννεῖν οὐκ ἂν δέξαιο; ΣΩ. Οὐκ, εἰ τὸ τυραννεῖν γε λέγεις ὅπερ ἐγώ. ΠΩΛ. Ἀλλ' ἔγωγε τοῦτο λέγω, ὅπερ ἄρτι, ἐξεῖναι ἐν τῇ πόλει, ὃ ἂν δοκῇ αὐτῷ, ποιεῖν τοῦτο, καὶ ἀποκτιννύντι καὶ ἐκβάλλοντι καὶ πάντα πράττοντι κατὰ τὴν αὑτοῦ δόξαν.

Cap. XXV. ΣΩ. Ὦ μακάριε, ἐμοῦ δὴ λέγοντος τῷ λόγῳ ἐπιλαβοῦ. εἰ γὰρ ἐγὼ ἐν ἀγορᾷ πληθούσῃ λαβὼν ὑπὸ μάλης ἐγχειρίδιον λέγοιμι πρὸς σέ, ὅτι Ὦ Πῶλε, ἐμοὶ δύναμίς τις καὶ τυραννὶς θαυμασία ἄρτι προσγέγονεν· ἐὰν γὰρ ἄρα ἐμοὶ δόξῃ τινὰ τουτωνὶ τῶν ἀνθρώπων ὧν σὺ ὁρᾷς αὐτίκα μάλα δεῖν τεθνάναι, τεθνήξει

ΣΩ. Οὐκοῦν, ὦ θαυμάσιε, τὸ μέγα δύνασθαι πάλιν αὖ σοι φαίνεται, ἐὰν μὲν πράττοντι ἃ δοκεῖ ἕπηται τὸ ὠφελίμως πράττειν, ἀγαθόν τε εἶναι, καὶ τοῦτο, ὡς ἔοικεν, ἐστὶ τὸ μέγα δύνασθαι· εἰ δὲ B

τίονός τε καὶ κρείττονος τὰ τῶν χειρόνων τε καὶ ἡττόνων. Cap. XL. τὸ μὲν οὖν ἀληθὲς οὕτως ἔχει, γνώσει δέ, ἂν ἐπὶ τὰ μείζω ἔλθῃς ἐάσας ἤδη φιλοσοφίαν. φιλοσοφία γάρ τοί ἐστιν, ὦ Σώκρατες, χαρίεν, ἄν τις αὐτοῦ μετρίως ἅψηται ἐν τῇ ἡλικίᾳ· ἐὰν δὲ περαιτέρω τοῦ δέοντος ἐνδιατρίψῃ, διαφθορὰ τῶν ἀνθρώπων. ἐὰν γὰρ καὶ πάνυ εὐφυὴς ᾖ καὶ πόῤῥω τῆς ἡλικίας φιλοσοφῇ, ἀνάγκη πάντων ἄπειρον γεγονέναι ἐστίν, ὧν χρὴ ἔμπειρον εἶναι τὸν μέλλοντα καλὸν κἀγαθὸν καὶ εὐδόκιμον ἔσεσθαι ἄνδρα. καὶ γὰρ τῶν νόμων ἄπειροι γίγνονται τῶν κατὰ τὴν πόλιν, καὶ τῶν λόγων, οἷς δεῖ χρώμενον ὁμιλεῖν ἐν τοῖς συμβολαίοις τοῖς ἀνθρώποις καὶ ἰδίᾳ καὶ δημοσίᾳ, καὶ τῶν ἡδονῶν τε καὶ ἐπιθυμιῶν τῶν ἀνθρωπείων, καὶ συλλήβδην τῶν ἠθῶν πανάπασιν ἄπειροι γίγνονται. ἐπειδὰν οὖν ἔλθωσιν εἴς τινα ἰδίαν ἢ πολιτικὴν πρᾶξιν, καταγέλαστοι γίγνονται, ὥσπερ γε, οἶμαι, οἱ πολιτικοί, ἐπειδὰν αὖ εἰς τὰς ὑμετέρας διατριβὰς ἔλθωσι καὶ τοὺς λόγους, καταγέλαστοί εἰσι. συμβαίνει γὰρ τὸ τοῦ Εὐριπίδου· λαμπρός τ' ἐστὶν ἕκαστος ἐν τούτῳ, NOTES.

N. B. The references follow the marginal pages and letters of the text. Soph. or Soph. Gr. stands for Sophocles' Grammar : Mt. for Matthiæ's.

447 A. οὕτω μεταλαγχάνειν, so to take part in ; i. e. in the present instance, to take no part in at all. Callicles says, " It were well to have such a share in a battle, as you have had in listening to Gorgias ; " i. e. it were well to arrive too late for an unpleasant employment, but not for a feast such as we have had. For the selection of war in this phrase, comp. Phædr. 242, B., οὐ πόλεμον ἀγγέλλεις, what you tell me is not at all disagreeable ; and so Laws 702, D. —— τὸ λεγόμενον, as the saying is. Soph. Gr. § 167. N. 2. This epexegetical or appositional accus. may be regarded as a sort of object of the main idea. —— ἐπεδείξατο. This verb in the middle, with an accus. (e. g. σοφίαν or a neuter adjective,) or without, especially denotes that ostentatious display of their art, which the sophists and rhetoricians at this time were wont to make. —— τούτων refers to ἤκομεν καὶ ὑστεροῦμεν. As the verbs denote but one act, τούτου might be used equally well.

B. ἐγὼ γὰρ καὶ ἰάσομαι. καὶ, also, refers to a suppressed clause. No matter : for if I did the harm, I will also find the remedy. According to Olympiod. and a Schol. the words are drawn from the Telephus of Euripides, being spoken by Achilles, who wounded that hero. —— τί δαί ; usually, where δαὶ is found, δὲ is in some MSS. as a various reading. The longer form, it is now admitted, is properly retained after καὶ and πῶς, where wonder or indignation is expressed. —— οὐκοῦν . . . ὑμῖν. Stallb., Ast and others, explain the construction by regarding ἥκειν as used imperatively (Soph. Gr. § 219. N. 6), ἀκοῦσαι Γοργίου being understood. I incline to regard ἐπιδείξεται ὑμῖν as the proper apodosis, which, owing to the intervention of the clause beginning with γὰρ, deserts its own construction for that of the interposed clause. The sense is, well, then, whenever you wish to come to my house, Gorgias will exhibit to you, for he lodges with me. So, apparently, Heindorf. Comp. Soph. Œd. R. 227–229, where the clause πείσεται γὰρ οὐδὲν turns the apodosis following it, which would be naturally γῆς ἀπίτω ἀβλαβής, into γῆς δ' ἄπεισιν ἀβλαβής. —— εὖ λέγεις, i. e. you are very civil in inviting us to your house, and quite right in wishing to spare Gorgias further fatigue. But, etc.

C. διαλεχθῆναι, here to discourse by way of question and answer, tacitly contrasted with an ἐπίδειξις, in which Gorgias would be the sole speaker. Hence, to hold a discussion, or search for truth in that way, as Socrates did. Socrates in Xen. Mem. 4. 5. 12, defines it κοινῇ βουλεύεσθαι διαλέγοντας κατὰ γένη τὰ πράγματα. In the end, the notion of question and answer faded away from the derivatives of this word ; and that of logical reasoning, or that of the science of unchangeable, absolute truth remained. —— δύναμις, essence, nature. —— τοῦ ἀνδρὸς pronominis fere partes agit, ut exprimi possit pronomine possessivo. Ast. —— τὸ αὐτὸν ἐρωτᾶν, ipsum interrogare, the accus. with which αὐτὸν is taken not being expressed.

D. ἐροῦ, second aor., not ἔρου. No present is used by the Attics. Soph. Gr. § 118, sub voce.

A. ἦ που . . . ἀποκρίνει, no doubt, then, you answer with 448 ease, O Gorgias. Ast translates ῥᾳδίως libenter, but his power to answer, and not his willingness, is in question.

—— τί δὲ . . . ἱκανῶς; but what difference does that make, if I answer well enough for you? To the common formula τί τοῦτο; is sometimes added διαφέρει, which Stallb. here supplies. But τί can well be a nominative, τί τοῦτο, what is that, i. e. of what importance is it.

B. Ἡρόδικος, a brother of Gorgias, of whom we know nothing besides his name and calling. He is not to be confounded, as the Scholiast well observes, with another man often mentioned by Plato, Herodicus of Selymbria in Thrace, and originally of Megara; who first taught gymnastics, but on the failure of his health gave himself up to the attempt to recover it; and was among the earliest to cure diseases by exercise. —— τίνα ἂν ὠνομάζομεν. The predicate-accusative with καλεῖν, ὀνομάζειν, may be τίνα, referring to any one by name or by some appellation taken from his art, business, etc.; or τί, which is neuter on account of ὄνομα. Here in τίνα ἄν . . . οὐχ ὅπερ both forms occur together. —— ἢ ὁ ἀδελφὸς αὐτοῦ. Polygnotus of Thasos, the most celebrated of this family of painters. He painted upon the walls of the Stoa Pœcile at Athens gratuitously, and at Delphi. Of his pictures from epic subjects in a hall near the Delphian temple, Pausanias gives a minute account (10. 25. seq.), which has enabled two artists of the present day to reproduce his designs in the spirit of ancient art.

C. νῦν δ' ἐπειδή. In this sentence both the main clause and that which furnishes the reason are interrogative, a usage which sounds awkwardly in English. —— ὦ Χαιρεφῶν. The words which follow are plainly not in the style of conversation. The juxtaposition of words from the same root (ἐμπειριῶν ἐμπείρως, ἄλλοι ἄλλων ἄλλως, ἀρίστων ἄριστοι), αἰῶνα for βίον, and the antithetical form of the clauses all show, that either the style of Polus is imitated by Plato, or that words from a treatise of his are here put into his mouth. They are quoted as his by Syrianus on Hermogenes. (4. 44. Walz.) See 462, B.

D. σοὶ βουλομένῳ ἐστίν. Soph. Gr. § 196. N. 2. —— δῆλος γὰρ . . . διαλέγεσθαι, for it is plain to me, even from what he has said, that Polus has studied the art of rhetoric, so called, rather than how to discourse (logically,) by way of question and answer. δῆλος, etc., for δῆλόν ἐστι, ὅτι Πῶλος by attraction, as it is sometimes called. The tendency to give prominence to the main word, — here the subject, — of the second clause, caused it to be pushed forward into the leading clause. This made that clause personal instead of impersonal, and bound the two clauses together more closely.

E. ἐρωτᾷ. So all the MSS. but the editor's give ἠρώτα,* on account of ποία τις εἴη. But this is unnecessary, for the present may be rhetorically for the imperfect, or may include it. Nobody asks you = nobody asked you or now asks you. In this sentence ποῖος and τίς, which belong to direct inquiry, are found in company with ὅστις, by which indirect questions are introduced. Comp. ποῖα and ὁποῖα together 500, A.

A. ὥσπερ . . . ἡμᾶς. The second clause begins at καὶ 449
νῦν οὕτως. —— τὰ ἔμπροσθεν. Soph. Gr. § 141. N. 1. —— ὑποτείνεσθαι, est quæstionem ita proponere ut alteri subjicias quid respondendum sit, et in universo proponere quæstionem. Ast. —— ὡς τίνος . . . τέχνης. Another form of compound interrogation, when one clause has the participial structure (ἐπιστήμονα, sc. ὄντα). —— ἀγαθόν γε not bene moratum, as Routh translates it, but plainly egregium certe.

B. ἀλλ' ὅπερ, etc., but be not false to the promise you make. Socrates takes for granted that he will consent.

* Stallb. has ἐρωτᾷ in his second edition.

Hence ὅπερ, which Ast would change into εἴπερ, is justly defended by Stallb. —— εἰσὶ . . . ποιεῖσθαι, = ἀναγκαῖόν ἐστιν ἐνίας (Heind.) or ἐν ἐνίαις ποιεῖσθαι. See 448, D. In some of the answers it is necessary to discourse at length.

C., D. ὡς διὰ βραχυτάτων = ὡς βραχύτατα, or ὡς οἷόν τε διὰ βραχυτάτων, just below. — With this boast of Gorgias comp. the ironical passages in Protag. 329, B., 334, D. The latter runs thus: "O Protagoras, I happen to be an oblivious sort of person, and if I have a long speech made to me, I forget what is the topic of discourse; therefore, as, in case I were somewhat deaf, you would think that you ought to talk in a louder tone with me than with others, to carry on a conversation with me; so, seeing I am so forgetful, abridge your answers, and make them shorter to enable me to follow you." —— πάνυ ἐπιεικῶς, quite sufficiently, or very well.

E. ποίους τούτους . . . ὑγιαίνοιεν; What kind of words? Are they those which make known by what sort of regimen the sick can get well? Understand περὶ with ποίους τούτους; as in 450, A. line 4. This is a condensed expression for ποῖοί εἰσιν οὗτοι περὶ οὕς ἐστιν; The subject of ὑγιαίνοιεν is attracted forwards to δηλοῦσι as its object. ὡς is quomodo, not ut, and to be taken with διαιτώμενοι. The two words are the same as τίνι διαίτῃ. Comp. 453, C. —— οὐκοῦν περὶ ὧνπερ, etc. = οὐκοῦν ποιεῖ δυνατοὺς καὶ φρονεῖν περὶ τούτων περὶ ὧνπερ λέγειν δυνατοὺς ποιεῖ.

450 B. οὕτως ἔχουσιν· ἑκάστη. One of a number of the instances of asyndeton which occur in this dialogue. Some are owing to earnestness of feeling (449, A. ὥσπερ . . . ἀπεκρίνω); some heighten the effect of contrast by bringing clauses closely together, (503, E. τοὺς ζωγράφους . . . τοὺς ἄλλους), or making a word more emphatic (510, C.); but in the greater number the second clause is added without a particle to explain the first, and, like a noun in apposition, would rather be separated than connected by a particle. —— ὡς ἔπος εἰπεῖν. This common phrase nearly always, in this work, moderates the force of some universal word, as πᾶς, οὐδείς. According to Lobeck, (paralipom. Gram. Græc. 59,) ἔπος εἰπεῖν occurs millies, εἰπεῖν ἔπος perraro. It denotes, 1. prope dixerim, as here ; 2. speaking inaccurately, the opposite of ἀκριβεῖ λόγῳ. —— τῆς δὲ ῥητορικῆς. The sense is, but there is no such manual operation pertaining to rhetoric, but all its activity and efficiency are exercised by means of words. The Scholiast says, that χειρούργημα and κύρωσις are provincial words brought by Gorgias from his native town, Leontini. This is probably a mere random assertion, unlikely in itself, and resting on so much truth as this : that these words are of Gorgias' own coining, affectedly used for the common χειρουργία and κῦρος.

C. ἆρ' οὖν . . . καλεῖν ; Indeed I perceive what sort of art you wish to call it. So Ast. "Formula ἆρ' οὖν eodem modo ut οὐκ οὖν initio per interrogationem cum negatione junctam affirmaret." Hermann on Soph. Antig. 628, (632.) Or, we need only say that ἆρα, as it often does, requires an affirmative answer. Stallb. retains the interrogative force of ἆρα, and supposes the question to require a negative answer. Do I understand, etc., i. e. I do not understand. But μανθάνω can denote a perception that is not yet clear. —— For τῶν μὲν . . . ἔνιαι δὲ comp. Soph. Gr. § 142. N. 3.

E. οὐχ ὅτι . . . εἶπες, although in the expression which you make use of you so said. οὐχ ὅτι is properly elliptical for οὐ λέγω, or οὐκ ἐρῶ ὅτι, and sometimes, followed by ἀλλά, means not only, or not only not. Comp. Mt. § 624. 4. —— δυσχεραίνειν, to be captious in the discourse or discussion.

B. εἴποιμ' ἂν . . . ὄντα. Complete the sentence by τις 451 τῶν κῦρος ἐχουσῶν, I would say that it is one of those arts that exert their power with regard to (whose efficiency consists in inquiring concerning) the odd and even, how many there can be of each, i. e. that it is an art, which asks, how many there are, and whose elements are odd and even numbers. ὅσα, a relative, is sometimes, as here, put for its correlative ὁπόσα in indirect inquiry. γνῶσις is due to a copyist, who thought the structure deficient. —— ὥσπερ οἱ ἐν τῷ δήμῳ συγγραφόμενοι, As those say, who draw up written motions in the meetings of the people, i. e. who offer amendments in the assembly. The Scholiast explains this of cases where two or more bills proposed by the same person followed one another in succession. It was the custom to prefix the names of the citizen, of his father, his demus and tribe to his resolution. In such cases the herald, says he, to save time would say τὰ μὲν ἄλλα κατὰ ταὐτά, the same as before. But this explanation is unfortunate for several obvious reasons. Still more so is Coray's, who understands οἱ συγγραφόμενοι of public contractors. The clearest light, however, has been thrown upon the phrase recently by Boeckh in his Inscriptiones Græcæ, Vol. I. No. 84. The allusion is to the formula τὰ μὲν ἄλλα καθάπερ τῇ βουλῇ sc. ἔδοξεν, which was used by those, who, in the assembly, made amendments to the decrees or probouleumata brought down from the council. They employed the phrase to avoid the trouble of reading over those parts of the decree which they left unaltered. σύγγραμμα is so used of a clause in a decree by Æschines c. Ctes. § 127 Bekker.

C. διαφέρει δὲ τοσοῦτον, etc., but they differ thus much: that the art of calculating considers how the odd and the even are related to themselves (i. e. odd to odd and even to even) and to each other in respect to number. For πῶς ἔχει πλήθους, see Soph. Gr. § 188, N. This definition of λογιστικὴ is found again in Charmides, 166, A. Arithmetic seems in Plato's definition to be employed with number in general, and λογιστικὴ to be the vulgar art of reckoning, in which numbers are considered in their relations. A later distinction in the science of number was into Arithmetic which inquired περὶ τοῦ ποσοῦ καθ' ἑαυτό, and Music περὶ τοῦ πρὸς ἄλλο, i. e. concerning the relations of numbers. Sometimes, as here, the former term included the whole science of number, but was used ἰδιαίτερον περὶ τοῦ καθ' αὐτό, more especially of numbers in themselves considered.

E. τοῦτο τὸ σκολιόν. This scolium or table-song is ascribed by the Scholiast to Simonides or to Epicharmus. It is often quoted, as by Athenæus at the end of his work. Comp. a fine passage, Laws 1. 631. The whole song is

> "ὑγιαίνειν μὲν ἄριστον ἀνδρὶ θνατῷ, > δεύτερον δὲ καλὸν φυὰν γενέσθαι,
> τὸ τρίτον δὲ πλουτεῖν ἀδόλως,
> καὶ τὸ τέταρτον ἡβᾶν μετὰ τῶν φίλων."

Plato does not allude to the last line, because no trade or employment is concerned with it.

A. ἰατρός τε . . . χρηματιστής. They are named in the 452 order suggested by the scolium. Heindorf wished to read ὁ ἰατρός τε, but Buttmann observes (the remark does not appear in the second ed. of Heind.), that the article so used would denote, that one person had all the attributes mentioned : ὅ τε ἰατρὸς καὶ, on the contrary, would sufficiently discriminate the persons ; (the article being omitted often where there is no ambiguity before all but the first.)

B. θαυμάζοιμί γε ἄν . . . εἰ ἔχει. The reason, according to Stallb., why there is here an indic. in the protasis with an opt. in the apodosis is, that the words of the pædotribe "interlocutoris mentem potius quam suam ipsius opinionem respiciat." As, however, ἔχει ἐπιδεῖξαι is, in his own opinion, only a possibility, he says θαυμάζοιμι. —— τέχνης depends on ἀγαθόν, good pertaining to his art.

C. πάνυ καταφρονῶν ἁπάντων is added in satire, to show the higher pretensions of the meanest of the three employments. Gorgias and the sophists held philosophy in like contempt, compared with the arts of show. One of the comic poets, Anaxandrides (Athenæus, 694, F.), proposes to comply with these high claims so far as to change the place of the second and third lines of the scolium. He says, "when the author of it named making money as the third best thing,"

"τοῦθ', ὁρᾷς, ἐμαίνετο, μετὰ τὴν ὑγίειαν γὰρ τὸ πλουτεῖν διαφέρει· καλὸς δὲ πεινῶν ἐστιν αἰσχρὸν θηρίον.

D. καὶ σὲ . . . αὐτοῦ. There is here a change not unknown to our language from the relative to the demonstrative construction. —— αὐτοῖς τοῖς ἀνθρώποις, to men in themselves considered, to the mass of men contrasted by αὐτοῖς with ἑκάστῳ, each individual ruler. There is here a certain rhetorical coloring, which may be intended as an imitation of the style of Gorgias.

E. τὸ πείθειν ἔγωγ' οἷόν τ' εἶναι, I certainly pronounce it, or mean by it the being able to persuade, etc. —— ἐν ἄλλῳ συλλόγῳ, facile intelligas τοὺς συλλεγέντας. Stallb. —— ἐν ταύτῃ τῇ δυνάμει, i. e. when in or invested with this power. —— ἀλλὰ σοὶ is added as if ἄλλῳ had not gone before. Comp. 521, D. οὐ πρὸς χάριν . . . ἀλλὰ πρὸς τὸ βέλτιστον οὐ πρὸς τὸ ἥδιστον.

453 A. τὸ κεφάλαιον εἰς τοῦτο τελευτᾷ, i. e. its sum and substance, its essential quality ends in this or tends to this as its result. τοῦτο is used on account of πείθειν, suggested by and contained in πειθοῦς just above. τελευτᾶν, meaning to end, takes the preposition εἰς and adverbs of motion to a place after it, as including the previous rest, together with the end itself; = to come to an end. So ἄρχειν, to begin, is joined with ἀπὸ, ἐκ, and adverbs of motion from a place, = to start. —— ἢ ἔχεις ... δύνασθαι. Here τι seems to be taken with δύνασθαι, and ἐπὶ πλέον is to a greater extent, plus. Comp. ταῦτα ἐπὶ πλέον εἰπεῖν, Laws 697, C. ἐπὶ πλέον τι δύναται, Politicus 305, B. So also ἔπ' ἔλαττον, ἐπὶ πολὺ, ἐπὶ σμικρὸν (Soph. Electr. 414), are used.

B. ἐγὼ γὰρ ... τούτων ἕνα, be assured that I, as I flatter myself, — if any other person engages in conversation with another, because he wishes to know the very nature of that about which the discourse is held, that I also, I say, — am a person of that description. It is often the case, as here, that an infinitive and its subject are introduced after ὅτι. This happens, for the most part, when a clause intervening between ὅτι and the infinitive renders the change from the grammatical construction to its equivalent one less obvious. But here there is an anacoluthon also. Owing to the change just mentioned, ἐγὼ is left by itself, and ἐμὲ takes its place.

C. οὐ σοῦ ἕνεκα ... λέγεται, not on your account (to draw any thing further from you), but on account of the discussion, that it may go on in the way in which it can make the subject discussed most clear to us. Some authorities have ποιῇ, which arose from not perceiving that ὡς here is quomodo, and not ut. See 449, E. —— ὥσπερ ἄν. ἄν belongs to ἡρόμην, and is repeated on account of its distance from the verb, occasioned by the conditional clause. Comp. 447, D. —— Ζεῦξις. As this great painter painted for Archelaus, king of Macedon, who died in the same year with Socrates, there is here no anachronism, and Pliny's date for his entrance on his art (Olymp. 95. 4, after the death of Socrates,) must be incorrect. —— καὶ ποῦ. These words have given no little trouble to the interpreters, because the place where a painter's works are, which is their natural meaning, has nothing to do with the definition of his art. Ast's explanation of ποῦ as meaning where, in what thing, in regard to what (i. e. what animals and what properties of them, etc.), and Cousin's where, on what, as canvass or stone, are hardly deserving of mention. Others suppose the text corrupt. Heind. conjectures πόσου, for how much, and Coray, τοῦ, whose son. But how the compensation or the father of Zeuxis had any thing more to do with the definition of his art, than the place where he painted, they do not inform us. Stallb., after Routh, would read πῶς, which makes good sense, though it departs too much from the letters of the actual text. I conjecture, (that I likewise may contribute my mite), that the sentence originally ended at γράφων ; which, indeed, may be argued from the fact, that Plato afterwards only alludes to τὰ ζῶα. To this τὰ ποῖα τῶν ζώων, and ἄλλα πολλὰ ζῶα point ; and no other definition of the art of Zeuxis is hinted at. Next to γράφων came ἢ οὔ ; ΗΟΥ ; which was corrupted into ΠΟΥ ; and then καὶ was added to bring ποῦ into grammatical connexion with the sentence. For the confusion of Η and Π in the MSS., Bast's Epist. Palæograph. in Schæfer's Gregory Corinth., p. 716, may be consulted. A similar corruption of ἢ οὔ ; into που, in Repub. 437, D., is removed in modern editions.

D. καλῶς ἂν σοι ἀπεκέκριτο ; would your answer have been a good one ? This verb, like several other deponents, is used both actively and passively, — a usage almost confined to the perfect, pluperfect, and aorist. Comp. Soph. Gr. § 208. N. 2. —— οὐ δῆτα denies the latter part of the alternative, οὐ πείθει.

454 A. τὸν λέγοντα, him who makes this assertion, that rhetoric is the art of persuasion.

B., C. ἀλλ' ἵνα μὴ θαυμάζῃς, etc. The form of this sentence changes a little as it proceeds. ὅπερ γὰρ λέγω is written as if μὴ θαύμαζε had gone before. The proper apodosis of ἵνα — θαυμάζῃς is ἐρωτῶ etc., but the connexion is broken up by γάρ. The sense of ὅπερ . . . λέγω is, for as I say (i. e. as I was just saying, 453, C.), I put the inquiry for the purpose of finishing the discourse in due order, — not on your account, but that we may not be in the habit of too soon catching up each other's words on mere suspicion (of what they mean, and without giving one another time for explanation). With προαρπάζειν τὰ λεγόμενα, comp. Herodot. 9. 91, ὃ δὲ ὑπαρπάσας τὸν ἐπίλοιπον λόγον.

A. πιστευτικῆς, productive of belief. διδασκαλικῆς, able to 455 impart instruction or knowledge, i. e. knowledge founded upon absolute unchangeable principles. —— ἄλλα πιστικὸς μόνον, able to cause belief and nothing more (aiming at conviction, and not at truth). This word has been altered into πειστικὸς by Stephens, Heindorf, Coray, and Buttmann; and some MSS. favor the change. Bekker, Stallb., and Ast, with reason, retain πιστικός. For, as is shown by Ast at great length, πειστικὸς denotes able to produce πειθώ, and is the more general word, and not necessarily opposed to διδασκαλικός; while πιστικὸς means able to produce πίστιν, which has just been contrasted with ἐπιστήμην (454, D.). Again, as to the form of the word, — which, according to Buttmann, cannot analogically be derived from πίστις, — Ast observes, that adjectives in -ικός are freely derived, not only from verbals, but also from nouns (ἀρχή, ἀρχικός), adjectives (φίλος, φιλικός), and imaginary forms (νουθετικὸς from νουθέτης). What objection, then, is there to regarding πιστός, or πίστις (comp. φύσις, φυσικός, φθίσις, φθισικός), as the source of πιστικός. However derived, such words may take a genitive. But here there is no necessity of supplying a genitive with πιστικός.

B. ἴδωμεν τί ποτε καὶ λέγομεν. The force of καὶ in such a case, before a verb, seems to me to correspond with that of even. Let us see what we are even saying, where an emphasis is thrown on the verb ; = what we can mean. A few MSS. have λέγωμεν, which gives the inapposite sense of let us see what we shall say. —— περὶ ἰατρῶν αἱρέσεως. "The ancient states maintained public physicians at a salary; and Hippocrates is said to have been so employed at Athens. Such physicians had assistants, especially slaves, who practised among the poorer sort of people. The famous Democedes of Crotona, about Olymp. 60, when as yet little money was in circulation, got the large salary of thirty-six Æginetic minæ or an Attic talent of silver ($1,017). When he was called to Athens he received one hundred minæ ($1,692), until Polycrates, tyrant of Samos, engaged his services for two talents ($2,034)." Boeckh's Civil Econ. of Athens, I. § 21. —— ἄλλο τι ἢ (literally, is there any thing else than, is it not true,) is a very common formula in Plato, meaning no more than nonne. Very often ἄλλο τι, without ἤ, is found in the same sense at the beginning of a sentence ; and Bekker always prefers it to ἄλλο τι ἤ. According to Hermann on Viger, note 110, when the latter is used, the interrogation extends to the end of the sentence ; but when ἄλλο τι, it stops with those words. —— αἱρεῖσθαι is in the middle. —— A passage precisely like this occurs in Protag. 319, B.

C. τὸ σὸν σπεύδειν, tuis rebus studere. Comp. Soph. Electr. 251. —— τινας σχεδὸν καὶ συχνούς. τινὲς includes many, and few, as the more generic word (Wyttenbach on Phædo, p. 116), and therefore πολλοί, ὀλίγοι, and similar words, often follow to define it. Here καί, on account of the position of σχεδὸν, seems to me not to be and, but even.

The sense is, some, almost even many, i. e. some, indeed even quite a number.

D. αὐτὸς καλῶς ὑφηγήσω, you led (the way) right yourself, i. e. in speaking about the docks, etc., just now you suggested a good answer.

E. τὰ δ' ἐκ τῆς Περικλέους. τὰ δὲ is used as if τὰ μὲν had preceded : and partly through that of Pericles. —— ἐκ τῶν δημιουργῶν, through the advice of the artificers. Heind. and Buttmann wish to read τῆς δημιουργῶν. But there is no need of this, because a man effects what his advice effects ; and such brevity is common in Greek. Thus in Alcibiad. I. 135, E., cited by Ast, we have πελαργοῦ ἄρα ὁ ἐμὸς ἔρως οὐδὲν διοίσει, my love then will not differ from a stork, i. e. from a stork's love. Comp. Soph. Gr. § 186. N. 1. —— τοῦ διὰ μέσου τείχους. According to Colonel Leake, (Topography of Athens, 354 – 357,) this expression denotes both the long walls, which, as he supposes, reached from Athens to Piræeus and Port Phalerum ; so named as being between the city and the seaports, and also called τεῖχος in the singular, as forming a sort of fortification. Plutarch (Vita Pericl. § 13), alluding to this passage, interprets the words, — perhaps carelessly, — by τὸ μακρὸν τεῖχος, and thus sanction's Leake's view. But Harpocration, s. v. διὰ μέσου τείχους, explains the phrase of the southern of the two long walls, so styled as being between the northern and the Phaleric wall ; and this southern wall it is, says he, which Plato mentions in Gorgias. This is so confirmed by Thucyd. 2. 13, — who speaks of a Phaleric wall reaching to the city, and also of the long walls reaching, both of them, from the city to Piræeus, the outer or northern one of which was guarded, — that it is not easy to see how the opinion of Leake can stand. See the commentators on Thucyd. l. c., especially Dr. Arnold. Now this inner or southern leg of the long walls, τὸ μακρὸν τεῖχος τὸ νότιον (Æschin. de Fals. Leg. § 174, Bekker,) was built after the thirty years' peace with Sparta, i. e. after B. C. 445, when Pericles began to be at the head of affairs and when Socrates was over twenty years old.

456 A. οἱ νικῶντες τὰς γνώμας, Soph. Gr. § 164. N. 2. —— εἰ πάντα γε εἰδείης. The apodosis must be something like δαιμονία ἂν καταφαίνοιτο, which is pointed at by γε.

B. ἢ τεμεῖν ἢ καῦσαι, etc., to put himself into the physician's hands, to be cut or cauterized. A heated iron was applied to the wound for the purpose of stanching blood by the ἰατρός, who, as Routh observes, exercised both the medical and the surgical arts. παρασχεῖν sc. ἑαυτόν; comp. 475, D. For τεμεῖν, καῦσαι, see Soph. Gr. § 219. 2. An infinitive so used, if it have the direct object of the leading verb for its subject, is in the passive, but otherwise in the active.

C. οὐδαμοῦ φανῆναι, would be of no account. Comp. Soph. Antig. 183, τοῦτον οὐδαμοῦ λέγω; Xen. Memorab. 1. 2. 52, μηδαμοῦ εἶναι, to be nowhere, in no estimation. —— εἰ βούλοιτο is elegantly added, says Stallb., to denote the arrogance and pretension of Gorgias, = if he chose to give himself the trouble.

D. ἔμαθε, sc. τις. Soph. Gr. § 157. N. 8. This omission of the indefinite subject τις is common in this dialogue, as is also the transition from a singular verb to a plural, or the contrary, where the subject is an indefinite one. —— ἐν ὅπλοις μάχεσθαι dicuntur qui veris armis certare discunt. Nam vulgo juventus non veris armis se exercebat sed rudibus, aut pilis præpilatis, quæ dicuntur Græcis ἐσφαιρωμένα ἀκόντια [i. e. with a ball covering the point]. Quæ sunt verba Casauboni ad Theophrast. Charact. p. 79, ed. Fischer. Stallb.

E. ἐκεῖνοι μὲν γάρ, etc., for they intrusted (them to their scholars) for the purpose of using them aright against those foes, and those who wrong them, in defending themselves, not in beginning an assault. τούτοις refers to ὅπλοις. The subject of χρῆσθαι is to be gathered from the context, viz. such persons as learn to box, and beat their friends. The forms of ὑπάρχειν, and those of ἀμύνομαι, are often contrasted, in the senses of acting on the offensive and defensive. —— μεταστρέψαντες, turning round, i. e. on the contrary. Comp. μεταβαλών, 480, E.

A. ἐμβραχύ, in short, is taken with περὶ ὅτου ἂν βούληται, 457 to show that that phrase comprises all that can be said, or is used in its widest sense. Its force is like that of omnino; and prope, by which Stallb. renders it, seems incorrect.

B. κᾆτα. Post participia καὶ εἶτα, καὶ ἔπειτα inferuntur, ubi εἶτα et ἔπειτα expectes. Stallb. A frequent idiom.

C. δύνανται, sc. οἱ λέγοντες, implied in τῶν λόγων; or, more exactly, the subject is indefinite, and plural, because the action of conversing requires more than one. —— οὕτω repeats and recalls the participles.

D. μὴ σαφῶς, i. e. μὴ φῇ (deny) τὸν ἕτερον σαφῶς λέγειν. —— καὶ κατὰ φθόνον, etc., and they think that they are (i. e. each thinks that the other is) speaking out of envy, or with ill feelings towards each other, having a contentious spirit, and not seeking after that which was proposed in the discussion. For ἑαυτῶν = ἀλλήλοιν, Soph. Gr. § 145. N. 2. —— οἷα καὶ, etc., so that even the bystanders feel vexed for themselves, because they consented to be listeners to such people. The infinitive follows οἷα, here, as it so often does ὥστε.

E. διελέγχειν, to go on, or through with a refutation of. διὰ has the same force in διερωτῴην below. In the next words, the sense is, lest you should suppose that I speak with my zeal for debate not directed towards the subject, that it may become plain, but against you. For τοῦ γενέσθαι, comp. Soph. Gr. § 187. 1. With genitives in this relation, ἕνεκα is often found.

458 A. τῶν ἡδέως ἂν ἐλεγχθέντων = τούτων οἳ ἡδέως ἂν ἐλεγχθεῖεν. Soph. § 222. 6. Comp. Euthyphro 3, D., where Socrates says, that he converses not only without taking pay for it, ἀλλὰ καὶ προστιθεὶς ἂν ἡδέως, sc. μισθόν, but even with a willingness to give pay, if any one is disposed to hear him. Here προστιθεὶς without ἂν would mean, that he actually paid his listeners. —— Just below, for εἴ τι μὴ ἀληθὲς λέγω, we should expect εἴ τι . . . λέγοιμι, parallel to the succeeding λέγοι. The reason for using λέγω seems to be that given by Stallb., which Ast opposes: that Socrates, in speaking of himself, denotes the probability of his being in an error, by εἰ with an indicative; but only the possibility of error on the part of another by εἰ and an optative.

B. ὅσον δόξα ψευδής. Græci in hujusmodi comparationibus modo casus præcedenti nomini accommodant, modo nominativum ponunt, intellecto verbo superiore. Stallb. Comp. Repub. 334, B., τοῦτο μέντοι ἔμοιγε δοκεῖ ἔτι, ὠφελεῖν μὲν τοὺς φίλους ἡ δικαιοσύνη, where τὴν δικαιοσύνην would have been more common. —— τὸ τῶν παρόντων, the interests or feelings of the present company. —— The Schol. thinks, that Gorgias is here finding an excuse to break off. But probably nothing more than polite attention to the wishes of the auditors is intended. Gorgias is uniformly polite to Socrates, and willing to continue the discourse. Comp. 506, A.

C. πόῤῥω ἀποτενοῦμεν, we shall extend too far, be too prolix. The verb is here used without an object, or, if any thing is understood, it is ἑαυτοὺς rather than τὸν λόγον. —— ἐμοὶ δ' οὖν, etc., and as for that (οὖν), may I myself also never have so much business, that it may be of more importance for me to do any thing else, being obliged to leave (ἀφεμένῳ) a conversation such as this, and so carried on (i. e. on a subject of such importance, and so interesting).

D. τὸ ἐμὸν is the subject of κωλύει. —— καὶ ταῦτα, etc., and that too (i. e. and especially) when I myself announced, that whatever questions any one wishes to put he may do so.

A. ἔλεγές τοι νῦν δή, you were saying certainly just now. 459
I have written τοι νῦν δὴ for τοίνυν δή, at Bekker's suggestion, on account of the sense. —— τὸ ἐν ὅχλῳ τοῦτο, this expression ἐν ὅχλῳ. —— ἐν τοῖς μὴ εἰδόσιν. Compare the negative μὴ here, and in ὁ μὴ ἰατρός, with οὐ in ὁ οὐκ εἰδὼς — ἐν τοῖς οὐκ εἰδόσιν, just below. In the two first cases, the negation is general and indefinite : "before such as do not know, whoever they are," "he who is no physician, supposing such a person to exist." In the other two cases, the negation being made concerning something definite and particular, (the orator and the crowd,) οὐ is properly used.

C. ῥᾳστώνη, saving of trouble, convenience. —— ἐάν τι ἡμῖν πρὸς λόγου ᾖ, if it come at all within the scope of our discourse. πρός, (literally,) on the side of, in favor of, to the advantage of.

D. οὕτως ἔχων. This clause is afterwards defined by αὐτὰ μὲν οὐκ εἰδώς.

A. ὥσπερ ἄρτι εἶπες. See 455, D. —— οἶμαι is paren- 460
thetical : hence μαθήσεται follows, and not μαθήσεσθαι. —— ἔχε δή, as Ast says, is a formula of exhorting, like ἄγε δή ; as Heindorf, "a formula subsistendi et inhibendi" ; as Stallb., after Hermann, one of admonishing another to remember something, and perceive its results. Its use, here at least, consists in drawing attention, in causing one to stop and consider something, especially some objection derived from what had been said.

B. τἆλλα οὕτω, sc. ἔχει. —— κατὰ τὸν αὐτὸν λόγον, after the same form of speech, after the same analogy. The next words, being explicative of this clause, are without a connecting particle.

C. The words here enclosed in brackets are so injurious to the sense, that there can be little doubt, I think, of their being interpolations. The reasoning is this. He who has learned justice is just. The just does justly. Therefore he wills or prefers to do justly. Therefore he never will prefer to do unjustly. The orator, if taught justice by Gorgias, is just, and therefore will never will or prefer to do unjustly. For this passage, consult the Introduction. —— ἐκ τοῦ λόγου, from what has been said; as follows from the argument. These words show that Socrates begins here to apply what has been conceded by the rhetorician, which is proof that the words in brackets are indefensible.

D. ἐκβάλλειν, sc. αὐτούς, and so with ἐξελαύνειν, just below. When the same noun follows two verbs, or a participle and a verb, in different cases, the Greeks content themselves usually with expressing it once. Comp. Mt. § 428. 2. —— ὡσαύτως οὕτω, in the selfsame way. These adverbs answer, as Coray observes, to ὁ αὐτὸς οὗτος.

E. φαίνεται, οὐκ ἄν ποτε ἀδικήσας, appears incapable of ever doing injustice, = φαίνεται ὅτι οὐκ ἄν ποτε ἀδικήσειε. F. A. Wolf, on Demosth. c. Leptin. (p. 468, ed. Reiske), lays down the rule that φαίνομαι with an infin. = videor, but with a particip. palam sum. But this distinction is now, I believe, regarded as untenable. —— ὅ γε ποιεῖται. Here ὅ, which refers to ἡ ῥητορική, is put in the gender of the predicate πρᾶγμα, by attraction. Comp. 463, E.

461 A. εἶπον . . . ὅτι . . . ἄξιον εἴη. Here ἄν is not used, because the sense is, I said that it was worth while. With ἄν the sense would be, I said that it would be worth while. The first is a direct assertion, in oratio obliqua; the second a hypothetical one, in the same form.

B. μὰ τὸν κύνα. A very common oath in the mouth of Socrates, concerning which much has been written. In 482, B, we have μὰ τὸν κύνα τὸν Αἰγυπτίων θεόν, i. e. "latrator Anubis," which is either a comic addition to the original formula, μὰ τὸν κύνα, or else shows the oath to be of Egyptian origin. Mr. Mitchell (Aristoph. Wasps, Appendix, Note D.) is of the latter opinion. We refer those who wish to pursue this point further, to the Comment. and the Schol. on that play, v. 83, Solanus on Lucian's Vit. Auct. (Vol. III. p. 520, ed. Lehm.), and Coray on this place. The ancients thought that such oaths were introduced by Rhadamanthus, to avoid swearing by a divinity on a common occasion. Zeno, the Stoic, in imitation of Socrates, swore by the caper-bush. —— οὐκ ὀλίγης συνουσίας, haud exigui est sermonis. —— καὶ . . . δοξάζεις. According to Ast, καὶ affects δοξάζεις, being a little out of its place. Do you even or really think. —— ἢ οἴει . . . ἐρωτήματα. A passage of some difficulty. I must first notice some of the attempts to explain it. 1. Ast gives to οἴει the sense of νομίζεις, and supplies οὕτω. Or do you think so because, etc. 2. Stallb. in his first ed. translates thus: an putas Gorgiam præ pudore negasse, etc. But this perverts the whole sense. Comp. 482, C., D., where the passage is in part explained. He also ends the sentence beginning with ἢ οἴει at ἔπειτα, — a strange and flat close to the period. 3. In his second ed., — where he blames Ast for his "mira commenta," forgetting, of course, his own greater ones relating to this passage, — deserting his former view, he continues the sense, in an unbroken period, to ἐν τοῖς λόγοις, and treats οἴει as though it did not affect the structure. The sense then becomes, because Gorgias, etc. . . . did therefore, — do you suppose, — an inconsistency arise, etc. But an inconsistency did arise, for the very reason contained in the words ὅτι Γοργίας, etc. The words of Polus then become unmeaning. 4. Schleierm. seems to regard the sentence as a broken one, in which I think he is right; and only wrong when he supplies a close from τοῦθ' ὃ δὴ ἀγαπᾷς. His version in English is, "Or do you think, because Gorgias, etc. . . . to find your pleasure therein." I have put a dash after διδάξειν, to show that the sentence is incomplete. Polus is so eager, that he cannot end his words grammatically. He must make a rhetorical exhibition of his feelings. The sense is, Or do you think, because Gorgias was ashamed not to admit, both that the orator must understand the just, beautiful, and good; and that he himself would give instruction in these subjects, if one should come to him (to study oratory) ignorant of them; — Then, perhaps, from this admission, an inconsistency arose in the discussion, to wit (δή) the very thing which you take satisfaction in, though you yourself led the way to such questions (i. e. though you alone, by your artful questions, are to blame for the inconsistency). The first sentence might perhaps have run thus: "Do you think, because Gorgias through shame made certain admissions, that therefore his inconsistency is to be charged to rhetoric." —— μὴ προσομολογῆσαι . . . μὴ οὐχί. μὴ οὐ sometimes follows a simply negative expression, = quin before a subjunctive. But more usually it follows a verb of negative import, when οὐ precedes such a verb. Thus ἀπαρνοῦμαι μὴ ἐπίστασθαι, but οὐκ ἀπαρνοῦμαι μὴ οὐκ ἐπίστασθαι, which occurs just below 461, C.

D. ἐπανορθοῖτε. Optativus post particulas finales in hujusmodi ennutiatis usurpatur, si vel ex aliena mente et cogitatione loquimur, vel nihil nisi finem et consilium significamus, adjuncta notione optandi. Stallb. —— δίκαιος δ' εἶ, and it is right for you so to do. For δίκαιος, see Mt. § 297. It is for δίκαιόν ἐστί σε, etc., owing to the cause explained in the note on 448, D. —— ἀναθέσθαι, to retract, properly, to put a piece over again, to change a move in playing draughts. Comp. Xen. Memorab. 2. 4. 4.

Cicero, in a frag. of his Hortensius, says, "Itaque tibi concedo, quod in duodecim scriptis solemus, ut calculum reducas, si te alicujus dicti pœnitet," borrowing his figure perhaps from Plato. —— φυλάττῃς, if you will only observe one thing. The middle, if you will guard against, would be equally appropriate.

E. οὗ . . . λέγειν, where of all Greece there is the greatest liberty of speech. —— ἀντίθες, put over against it, sc. that which I can say. —— τοι, though.

B. νῦν δή, nunc igitur. —— ἐν τῷ συγγράμματι. Aristotle 462 (Metaphys. init.) refers to this treatise, or to the words of Polus of like import on 448, C., and approves of his opinion ascribing art to experience.

C. οὐκοῦν καλὸν . . . ἀνθρώποις, does not rhetoric, then, namely, to have the faculty of giving pleasure to men, seem to you to be a good thing? The last clause of the sentence explains, and is in apposition with ἡ ῥητορική. οἷόν τ' εἶναι = τινα οἷόν τ' εἶναι.

D. βούλει οὖν, etc., are you willing, then, since you prize giving pleasure, to give me a little pleasure. For the play on χαρίζομαι, comp. 516, B. In this sentence, the present infinitive denotes the habit of Polus; χαρίσασθαι, that which Socrates wishes him to do in this instance.

E. τίνος λέγεις ταύτης. Comp. 449, E., note on ποίους τούτους. —— μὴ ἀγροικότερον ᾖ, I fear that it may seem too rude. For δέδοικα omitted, comp. Soph. Gr. § 214. N. 4. The comparative, which here denotes a lower degree of the quality than the positive, is usual in such apologies.

A. δοκεῖ τοίνυν μοι . . . ἀνθρώποις, it seems to me, then, to 463 be a sort of study, that has not indeed the properties of an art, but which belongs to a mind dexterous in attaining its ends, and manly, and possessed of a natural talent to communicate with men.

B. ὡς δὲ ὁ ἐμὸς λόγος, etc., yet, as I maintain, is not an art but experience, or a routine and practice, i. e. has nothing to do with absolute truth, and the reason, but proceeds from accidental discovery, that a certain end is gained by certain means. —— κομμωτικὴ differt a κοσμητικῇ quâ honestus ornatus quæritur. Stallb.

C. τέτταρα . . . πράγμασιν, four divisions these (of flattery or the art of show) relating to four matters or subjects. These four subjects, according to Coray and Stallb., are words, food, the ornamenting of the body, and philosophical disquisitions. —— ἀποκεκριμένος. Comp. 453, D. note. —— πρὶν ἂν ἀποκρίνωμαι. With πρὶν "subjunctivum non usurpant tragici, nisi in priore membro adsit negandi aut prohibendi significatio." Elmsley on Medea, 215. In which case ἄν accompanies πρίν, with some exceptions almost confined to poetry, and the subjunctive has the sense of the exact future of Latin ; e. g. here priusquam respondero. For the reason why the subjunctive follows πρίν, see Mt. § 522, C.

D. πολιτικῆς μορίου εἴδωλον, a shadow or semblance of a division of the political art, "civilitatis particulæ simulacrum," as translated by Quintil. 2. 15. 25, where this passage is examined.

E. Πῶλος δὲ ὅδε. There is here probably an allusion to the meaning of the name, colt, as Schleierm. remarks. Comp. Aristot. Rhet. 2. 23, which no one, I believe, has cited: ὡς Κόνων Θρασύβουλον "Θρασύβουλον" ἐκάλει, καὶ Ἡρόδικος (comp. 448, B., note,) Θρασύμαχον, "αἰεὶ Θρασύμαχος εἶ," καὶ Πῶλον, "αἰεὶ σὺ πῶλος εἶ," καὶ Δράκοντα τὸν νομοθέτην, ὅτι οὐκ ἀνθρώπου οἱ νόμοι ἀλλὰ δράκοντος. —— In τυγχάνει ὂν τοῦτο, the predicate τοῦτο determines the gender of ὄν by attraction, instead of ῥητορικὴ to which it refers. Comp. 460, E.

464 A. οἷον τοιόνδε λέγω, for instance I mean as follows, literally, "of which sort I mention such a thing as this, viz." This, with or without the article before τοιόνδε, is a common formula in Plato, when examples are adduced.

B. ἔχει δὲ οὐδὲν μᾶλλον, i. e. εὖ. The subject of ἔχει is supplied by the preceding accusatives, σῶμα and ψυχήν. —— τὴν δὲ ἐπὶ σώματι, etc., but the art for the body I am not able to name to you off-hand by one name. σῶμα and ψυχὴ freely have and lose the article (comp. 465, D.). They lose it, perhaps, as approaching the nature of abstract nouns. In 463, E, they could not have it. μίαν is the predicate-accusative. οὕτω, thus, in these present circumstances, often is equivalent to illico. Comp. 509, A. —— τῆς δὲ πολιτικῆς, etc. Here λέγω is to be supplied in thought, and τῆς πολιτικῆς depends on τὴν νομοθετικὴν its part. The sense is, and of the political art I mention (one branch) the legislative as the counterpart to the gymnastic art, and (the other) justice as the counterpart to medicine. The political art, or the general art of securing the public good, has two divisions, first, that which consists in securing the moral welfare by law which prescribes what is right, and according to which the public health will be preserved; and secondly, that which restores this health, when once impaired, or justice, the judge's art. (See Introduction.) Analogous to these arts for the body are gymnastics, or the art of preserving, and medicine, or that of restoring health. Plato elsewhere insists on the analogy between the healing art and justice, e. g. in Repub. 444, — a fine passage, where, however, justice is taken in the higher sense of that controlling virtue, which brings all the parts of the soul, like those of a well regulated state, into their due place and order.

C. πρὸς τὸ βέλτιστον, with a view to the greatest good. —— οὐ γνοῦσα λέγω ἀλλὰ στοχασαμένη. As αἰσθομένη is a general word denoting mental perceptions, whencesoever derived, it is explained by this clause, not guided by knowledge, I would have you understand, but by guess. See 463, A., 458, E., 455, A. —— ὑποδῦσα ὑπὸ ἕκαστον, having slipped under, or by stealth put on the garb of each of the four divisions.

D. θηρεύεται τὴν ἄνοιαν, hunts for, seeks to captivate ignorance, or the unwary. —— τῷ ἀεὶ ἡδίστῳ, by that which is at the time most agreeable.

465 A. τοῦτο γὰρ πρὸς σὲ λέγω alludes to 463, D., where Polus puts the question concerning the quality of rhetoric. Comp. 448, C. – E. —— ὅτι οὐκ ἔχει λόγον οὐδένα ἃ προσφέρει, because it cannot explain what sort of things those are in their nature, which it makes use of. Here we see what Plato thought a τέχνη must be. The MSS. give, almost unanimously, ᾧ προσφέρει ἃ προσφέρει, and the editors without MS. authority, ὧν προσφέρει. I have restored a part of the MS. reading, and have since observed that Stallb. in his second ed. has made the same change. —— ὑποσχεῖν λόγον, to submit the reason, or rationale, to explain and defend a position.

B. ὑπόκειται, puts itself under, puts on the form or mask of, = ὑποδύνει above. —— ὥστε ποιεῖν . . . ἀμελεῖν, so as to make men attach to themselves adventitious beauty, and neglect their own, obtained through the gymnastic art.

C. ὅπερ μέντοι λέγω. In the ensuing words down to ὀψοποικῶν, the thoughts seem to be only half expressed, as if Socrates, anxious to avoid a long speech, were hastening to an end. Some editors suppose, that the text has sustained an injury, but as I think without reason. Such, says Socrates, are these arts in their nature ; but in practice the Sophists' art and rhetoric are confounded together; and the like would be true of cookery and medicine, if the body judged of them without a presiding mind. The thoughts are not essential to the argument, and are only thrown out en passant. ὅπερ . . . λέγω, refers to what has just preceded ; but as I say, or was just saying. —— διέστηκε. The subject of this verb, according to Buttmann in Heindorf's ed., is all the arts before mentioned, and ὄντων has the same subject, which is ταῦτα understood, referring to these arts. Stallb. restricts διέστηκε, with reason, I think, in his first ed. to σοφιστικὴ καὶ ῥητορική. ὄντων may be used instead of ὄντες, referring to σοφισταὶ καὶ ῥήτορες, next following. A participle is sometimes found in the genitive absolute, when its subject is the same as that of the verb ; the cause of which seems to be a desire of the writer to express the thought contained in the participle more distinctly. The grammatical construction is caused by Plato's passing in thought from the arts to those who pursue them. —— ἅτε δ' ἐγγὺς ὄντων, etc., but, inasmuch as they are conterminous arts, sophists and orators are (mixed together in the same place and about the same things, i. e. are) confounded together, and indiscriminately give themselves to the same pursuit, and they know not what to make of themselves, nor their fellow-men of them (i. e. neither they nor others have any exact idea of their so-called arts).

D. τὸ τοῦ Ἀναξαγόρου ἂν πολὺ ἦν, what the well-known (τοῦ) Anaxagoras said (his tenet) would hold extensively (in regard to these arts). For the uses of the article, see Soph. § 176, and § 139. N. 1. Anaxagoras taught, that all things were in a chaos at first : then came MIND and arranged them. In other words, he ascribed to an intelligent author, not creation, nor motion and quality, but only arrangement, which was, however, a step beyond the earlier Ionic philosophers, who accounted for all phenomena by the physical properties of matter. —— σὺ γὰρ τούτων ἔμπειρος. The Schol. of the Clarke MS. supposes these words to allude to the rhetorical figure called παρίσωσις, which takes place when similar words, as φίλε Πῶλε here, are brought together. Another Schol. explains them of the acquaintance of Polus with the philosophy of Anaxagoras, — to which sect, says he, Polus belonged, — a piece of information probably picked out of the text. Perhaps nothing more than ironical praise of Polus for great knowledge is intended. Comp. 462, A.

E. ὡς ἐκεῖνο ἐν σώματι, sc. ἀντίστροφόν ἐστι τῆς ῥητορικῆς. The clause might be removed without injury to the sense. ἀντίστροφον here governs a genitive, but a dative 464, B. Some other compounds of ἀντὶ vary in the same way as to their regimen. ἐκεῖνο refers to ὀψοποιίας, as neuter pronouns often do to nouns of another gender, = that thing.

466 A. Init. If, therefore, I too, when you answer, shall not know what to make (of it), do you likewise prolong your discourse; but if I shall, let me make use of it. The dative, which should follow χρήσωμαι, is contained in ἀποκρινομένου.

B. οὐδὲ νομίζεσθαι, not even to be thought of, i. e. to be held in no estimation at all. This verb, which just above has a predicate φαῦλοι, is here used absolutely. Our verbs to regard, to consider, and others, are capable of the same twofold use.

C. The colon, which most editors put after κύνα, ought, as it seems to me, to be erased. Comp. μὰ τὸν Δία . . . ἀλλ', 463, D., νὴ τοὺς θεοὺς ἀλλ', 481, C., where the formula of swearing unites in one clause with what follows.

E. οὐδὲν γὰρ ποιεῖν, etc. Comp. Repub. 9. 577, E. "Is not the state that is enslaved and under a tyrant far from doing what it wishes? Very far. And the soul, accordingly, that is governed by a tyrant, will be very far from doing what it may wish (if we speak of the whole soul); and, drawn along forcibly by urgent lust, will be full of agitation and repentance." For ὡς ἔπος εἰπεῖν qualifying οὐδέν, see 450, B. —— μὰ τόν. The Schol. on Aristoph. Frogs, 1421, thinks that the name of the divinity is omitted out of reverence. But the omission seems intended rather for comic effect, as though the right divinity did not readily occur to the mind. —— καὶ τέχνην τὴν ῥητορικήν. Supply οὖσαν. Comp. 495, C.

A. ἐμὲ ἐξελέγξας. The aorist participle, which Heindorf 467 declares to be used for the present, has its own force. He could prove what he wished, when he had refuted, or by refuting. In the first case, the aorist is needed; the present, if used, would have the second sense. —— ἐξελεγχθῇ . . . ὅτι. The verb is here used in sensu prægnanti, unless Socrates be refuted, and it be shown that, thus answering nearly to our verb convince.

B. οὗτος ἀνήρ. An instance of aposiopesis or reticentia, a figure often caused by excited feelings, which cannot find the language to express themselves. "In hac formula recte omittitur articulus, quoniam dicitur δεικτικῶς de eo qui præsens est." Stallb. οὗτος contains a shade of contempt sometimes like iste. Comp. 489, B., 505, C. —— καὶ γὰρ non est etenim, sed καὶ pertinet ad νῦν. Stallb.; i. e. καὶ is also. —— ἵνα προσείπω σε κατὰ σέ, that I may address you in your own style. This refers to λῷστε Πῶλε, and the artificial juxtaposition of words of equal length, or of similar form or sound. Comp. 465, D.

C. πίνοντες παρά, i. e. πίνοντες τὰ φάρμακα, λαβόντες αὐτὰ παρὰ τῶν ἰατρῶν, a constructio prægnans.

D. οἱ πλέοντες, i. e. who make voyages for commercial purposes. —— ἀλλ' ἐκεῖνο . . . πλουτεῖν, when a demonstrative pronoun thus prepares the way for the infinitive, the latter often loses its article. Comp. τοῦτο . . . ἐξεῖναι, 469, C. But just above we have not only τοῦτο, πίνειν, but also ἐκεῖνο, τὸ ὑγιαίνειν. —— ἄλλο τι . . . οὕτω. Supply ἔχει. Is it not so, then, in all cases?

E. πολλὴ ἀνάγκη. The preceding question of Socrates is equivalent to a negative proposition, which is here to be supplied; sc. that there is nothing which is not either good or bad, etc.

468 A. · πράττουσι, on fait, like λέγουσι, on dit. The same indefinite subject appears just before in the first person plural βαδίζομεν, etc.

C. ἁπλῶς οὕτως, thus in themselves considered, without respect to something further.

E. ἐν τῇ πόλει ταύτῃ. Not in this city, Athens, as Heindorf understood it, but in this just-mentioned city, i. e. in the supposed city. If Athens had been intended, Socrates, living there, would have said, as Stallb. after Boeckh. on Pindar (Notæ Crit. in Olymp. 6. 102) observes, ἐν τῇδε τῇ πόλει. Comp. this formula so used, 469, D., fin. Leges 932, A. ὅδε seems to be the strongest, and, so to speak, most objective of the demonstratives, and to point especially at that which has a close outward relation, (as that of place,) to the speaker. —— ἔστιν . . . δύνασθαι. ἔστιν = fieri potest. —— ὡς δή, as forsooth, just as though. Stallb. translates these words by quasi vero, Ast by nam revera.

469 A. περὶ ὧν . . . τῶν ἀνθρώπων. Comp. Soph. § 151. 3.

B. καὶ ἐλεεινόν γε πρός· præpositioni πρὸς absolute positæ (præterea) adjungi solet particula γε. Ast. = yes, and pitiable besides. —— πῶς, cur. οὕτως ὡς, for this reason that. And so, in English, we say how is this? nearly in the sense of why is this? the reason of which is, that the manner in which a thing is done often involves the cause why it is done.

C. αὐτῷ sc. τῷ τυράννῳ, implied in τὸ τυραννεῖν. —— ἐξεῖναι, supply τινι.

D. τῷ λόγῳ is added to explain the sense in which ἐπιλαβοῦ is used, attack in your discourse, refute by argument. δὴ seems to belong to the imperative, with the usual hortatory sense. —— ἐν ἀγορᾷ πληθούσῃ, in the agora, when it is crowded, which it was between morning and mid-day. This phrase denotes place, — not time, as Stallb. says, to which ἐν is opposed. περὶ ἀγορὰν πλήθουσαν is a common phrase for time. ἀγορά, even when definitely used, is often without an article, like πόλις, πατήρ, and many other nouns. And this is particularly frequent after prepositions. Comp. 447, A. —— τεθνήξει, he shall be dead, the meaning of τέθνηκα put into a future. This appears to be the received form in old Attic, and τεθνήξεται came into use afterwards. See Elmsl. on Aristoph. Acharn. 590. —— τινα . . . τῆς κεφαλῆς αὐτῶν κατεαγέναι, that any of them shall have his head broken, like συντριβῆναι τῆς κεφαλῆς, Aristoph. Peace, 71. But the accusative may also follow this verb, as in 515, E. Yet the accusative of κεφαλή was disallowed by the Atticists, although used by Lysias and others of the best writers.

E. τριήρεις, desidero articulum. Stallb. αἱ, which may have been absorbed by καὶ (KAI for KAIAI), is added by Coray. But the article is unnecessary, being implied or contained in τά, as Ast observes. One article often suffices, even for two substantives of different genders, or for two words separated by disjunctive particles. Comp. Hermann on Eurip. Hec. 593 of his second ed.

A. τὸ μέγα δύνασθαι, etc. In this passage, the words 470 just written must be supplied, as the predicate of φαίνεται, and return again after εἰ δὲ μή. It sometimes happens, in Greek, that when the same word belongs to the subject and predicate, it is omitted in the latter. Comp. 508, B., and Meno 89, A. οὐκ ἂν εἶεν φύσει οἱ ἀγαθοί, the good cannot be good naturally. We in like cases use so, such, in the predicate. The sense is, to have great power appears to you to be such, if a man is attended with success while he does what seems to him best, and (it then appears) to be a good ; and this, as it seems, is to have great power; but otherwise, to have great power is a bad thing, and is to have little power. Socrates shows the absurdities into which Polus falls upon his ground. The words ἀγαθόν τε εἶναι are singularly enough joined by τε to the omitted predicate of φαίνεται.

B. εἰπὲ τίνα ὅρον ὁρίζει. τις is here used like ὅστις in indirect inquiry.

C. χαλεπόν γέ σε ἐλέγξαι. These words are obviously spoken in irony.

D. ἀλλ' ἀκούω γε. Routh and other editors since suppose, that by this form of words Socrates conveys ridicule of ὁρᾷς just above, which is used quite rhetorically. This may be so, but ἀκούω is often thus used for ἀκήκοα. Comp. 515, E. —— οὐκ οἶδα. The noble passage down to ἀλλὰ μὲν δὴ is freely translated by Cicero, Tusc. Quæst. 5. 12. —— αὐτόθεν, ex ipsa re. Stallb., from the nature of the case itself.

E. παιδείας ὅπως ἔχει. See 451, C. —— τὸν ἄνδρα . . . καὶ γυναῖκα. See 469, E., note.

471 A. Archelaus began his reign by the foul means mentioned in the text, in 413 B. C., and died by assassination in 399. He seems to have been an able prince, and he made, according to Thucyd. (2. 100) more internal improvements in Macedonia than all his predecessors. His desire of the society of men of letters is well known: besides Euripides, the poet Agathon and others resorted to his court. (Ælian. Var. Hist. 2. 21.) Socrates also is said to have been invited, and to have replied ὕβριν εἶναι μὴ δύνασθαι ἀμύνασθαι ὁμοίως εὖ παθόντα ὥσπερ καὶ κακῶς. (Aristot. Rhet. 2. 23.) He said also, that Archelaus had spent 400 minæ in getting his palace painted by Zeuxis, but had spent nothing on himself. (Ælian. u. s. 14, 17.) Athenæus, in a bitter passage, filled with aspersions of Plato (Lib. 11. sub fin.), says, that the philosopher was, according to the testimony of his nephew, Speusippus, on very good terms with the man whom he here speaks so ill of. But as Plato was scarcely thirty when Archelaus died, and until that time a man of little distinction, the story is probably distorted and exaggerated. —— ἐδούλευεν ἄν. Some few MSS. give ἐδούλευσεν. Heindorf condemns Routh for adopting ἐδούλευεν, saying that the latter with ἄν is serviret; the former servisset. But this is not so. The imperfect indicative with ἄν, "plerumque refertur ad præsens. Sæpe vero etiam ad præteritum, ejusmodi quidem, quod diuturnitatem aliquam vel repetitionem facti continet." Hermann de partic. ἄν. II. 10.

B. μεταπεμψάμενος, etc. "Insignis est hic locus eo, quod plurima participia cumulantur, copula non intercedente." Stallb. In this, the style of rhetoric is, I think, imitated. The circumstances are compressed into one sentence, and vibrated, so to speak, one after another with rapidity, for the sake of the greater effect.

C. ἐμβαλὼν εἰς φρέαρ, according to Ast and Stallb., denotes the manner in which the action of ἀποπνίξας took place, having drowned him by throwing him into the well. I know not whether it may not suit the rhetorical style here better, if they are taken side by side, as if καὶ were in the text, having thrown him into the well (and so) drowned him. For ἀποπνίξας, comp. 512, A. —— ἀρξάμενος ἀπὸ σοῦ, tuque imprimis, seu interque eos tu primus. Heindorf, who has adduced a number of examples of the phrase.

D. τοῦ ... ἠμεληκέναι. This clause is brought, by a negligent freedom of style, under the influence of ὅτι, although Socrates of course did not praise Polus for ignorance of the art of conversation. δὲ has the force of quanquam; although you seem to have neglected the art of discussing. —— πόθεν; comp. my note on Eurip. Alcest. 95.

A. Νικίας. This well known wealthy general perished 472 in the Sicilian disaster, some seven years before the time when this dialogue is feigned to have been held. He is, however, without anachronism, selected as a witness, in the same way that the testimony of Homer might be appealed to. The men here named were not selected on account of their unjust actions, — for they were, perhaps all of them, among the best Athenian public men, — but probably on account of their wealth, illustrious connexions, and ancestry. Socrates means to say, that the spirit of all the great and opulent families in the city led them to prefer prosperous injustice before depressed goodness. —— οἱ τρίποδες. A favorite kind of votive offering. The tripods here spoken of were set up on the top of small temples in the enclosure of the temple of Bacchus in commemoration of victories in which the dedicators were the choragi of their tribes. —— Ἀριστοκράτης, son of Scellias. This man, one of the more moderate aristocrats, after helping, in 411 B. C., to overturn the Athenian constitution, soon again united with Theramenes to put down the more violent revolutionists. His dislike of democracy is punned upon in Aristoph. Birds, 125. We find probably the same person acting as general with Alcibiades, 407 B. C., and one of the commanders in the great sea fight of Arginusæ, 406 B. C. With five colleagues, he perished the victim of the popular frenzy, which succeeded that event. It would not then seem very apposite to cite him the next year as a witness of the tenets of Polus, which his own experience so sadly belied. Plato, writing this dialogue perhaps some time after the death of Socrates, may have forgotten dates or neglected them. But perhaps a view of the text deserves mention, which no one seems to have taken. It is suggested by the fact, that all the individuals and families mentioned here were singularly unfortunate at the end. The decline of that to which Nicias belonged, had already begun. See Boeckh's

Civ. Œcon. of Athens, B. 4, § 3. The surviving son of Pericles, of the same name, perished in company with Aristocrates, and this illustrious race soon disappears from history. Now it is not unlikely, that Plato sarcastically introduces these examples as at once disproving the point for which they might be quoted. Perhaps Archelaus himself, who died miserably by assassination, is selected for the same reason.

B. ἐν Πυθίου, sc. ἱερῷ, in the temple of Apollo Pythius at Athens. So I have no hesitation in reading with Coray, after one MS., for the common Πυθοῖ, Delphi. For τοῦτο points at a votive offering well known and familiar to Athenians, and this temple (i. e. its sacred precinct) was the place, where those who conquered in the cyclic choruses at the Thargelia deposited their tripods. Comp. Boeckh's inscript. no. 213. —— τῶν ἐνθένδε is for τῶν ἐνθάδε, by attraction or accommodation to ἐκλέξασθαι, which contains the notion of taking from. —— ἐκβάλλειν . . . ἀληθοῦς. In these words, there is an elegant allusion to actions of ejectment. There is, also, according to Stallb., a play upon οὐσία, which means not only substance, estate, but reality, truth. ἐκβάλλειν also may allude to the tyrants before mentioned; as though Socrates had said, "You mean to act the part of one of these tyrants, whom you admire so much, and expel me from my only substance, the truth, by getting a multitude of opinions in your favor."

C. ὃν ἐγὼ αὖ οἶμαι. Supply τρόπον ἐλέγχου εἶναι, and comp. what is said in the note on 470, A.

D. ἄλλο τι . . . διανοώμεθα, shall we not suppose that you think so. For the genitive absolute with ὡς, after a verb of knowing, comp. Soph. § 192. N. 2, Mt. § 569. 5. —— ἆρα interrogative is sometimes found out of its usual place at the beginning of the sentence, like other words of the same class. It is, however, before the most important clause.

473 A. ὑπὸ θεῶν. ὑπὸ is used because τυγχάνῃ δίκης contains a passive idea, = κολάζηται.

B. ἀληθῆ . . . ἴσως. Hoc ἴσως cum irrisione dictum de re certa ut Lat. fortasse. Stallb. —— ἀλλ' ἔτι τοῦτο . . . χαλεπώτερον alludes to 470, C., χαλεπόν γέ σε ἐλέγξαι.

C. ἐκ τέμνηται, exsecetur. Ast. —— τοὺς αὑτοῦ ἐπιδὼν παῖδας. Supply λωβηθέντας. ἐπιδεῖν, (to look upon, to live to see,) "ponitur semper in rebus gravioribus, et ἐπὶ συμφορᾶς ut ait Thomas Magister, p. 335." Wyttenbach de Sera Num. Vindict. referred to by Heindorf and others. Not semper but sæpe. We have, for instance, Eurip. Med. 1025, πρὶν σφῶν ὄνασθαι κἀπιδεῖν εὐδαίμονας. —— καταπιττωθῇ, pice oblitus cremetur. —— οὗτος εὐδαιμονέστερος ἔσται. The compar. here has far less MS. authority in its favor, than either the superl. or the positive preceded by οὕτως. Stallb. inclines to the superl., but no sure example has been adduced of this degree used for the comparative and followed by ἤ. —— καὶ τῶν ἄλλων ξένων, and by strangers besides, or and by the rest of men, viz. strangers. This seemingly pleonastic use of ἄλλος is quite common. Comp. 480, D., Phædo 110, E., γῇ καὶ τοῖς ἄλλοις ζώοις, Xen. Cyrop. 7. 3, βοῦς καὶ ἵππους . . . καὶ ἄλλα πρόβατα πολλά, Leg. 7. 789, D., κάλλος καὶ τὴν ἄλλην ῥώμην.

D. μορμολύττει αὖ, etc., you are this time bringing up bugbears, and not attempting a refutation ; and just now you were bringing up witnesses. Socrates is making game of the rhetorical substitutes for philosophical proof used by Polus. —— δυοῖν γὰρ ἀθλοῖν. Supply οὐδέτερος.

E. ἄλλο αὖ τοῦτο εἶδος ἐλέγχου. This may allude to a rhetorical precept of Gorgias mentioned by Aristot. Rhet. 3. 18, that the "impression produced by the serious discourse of the adverse party must be destroyed by mirth; and that of his mirth by seriousness." —— καὶ πέρυσι βουλεύειν λαχών . . . οὐκ ἠπιστάμην ἐπιψηφίζειν. Socrates, in his ironical way, attributes to ignorance a proceeding which sprang from a conscientious regard to law, and crowned him with the highest honor. It is narrated by Xenophon, in his Hellenics 1. 7, and mentioned by him (Memorab. 1. 1. 18, and 4. 4. 2) and Plato (Apol. Socr. 32, A.) and in the dialogue Axiochus, § 12. Socrates happened to be the Epistates or president of the prytanes, and as such the presiding officer in the assembly, on the day when the generals who had conquered at Arginusæ (comp. 472, A., note,) were brought before the people on a charge of having neglected to pick up the bodies of the citizens that were floating in the water. It was proposed, contrary to the laws, to try them all at once by a summary process. Some of the prytanes, who declared that they would not put the vote contrary to the laws, were frightened from their purpose by the rage of the people, "and all promised that they would put the vote, except Socrates, the son of Sophroniscus, who only said that he would do every thing according to the laws." (Xen. Hellen. u. s.) Whether Socrates was overruled by his colleagues it does not appear. One is tempted to conjecture, that they took the affair out of his hands, and pretended that his delay in allowing the assembly to vote, proceeded from ignorance; and that to this he playfully alludes. His conduct, however, was viewed by all in its true light. There is some reason to believe, however, that for that day he stayed proceedings upon the proposition. "But on the next day, Theramenes and Callixenus, with their party, by suborning fraudulently chosen proedri, procured the condemnation of the generals without a trial." (Axiochus u. s.) This passage from a work ascribed to a disciples of Socrates, Mr. Thirlwall (4. 126, seq.) disregards as spurious, or has forgotten, for he ends the trial in one day. It is an important passage, not only for this item of information, but also for making known to us that the foul plot against the generals was consummated by means of the proedri non-contribules, as they are called, who were drawn according to a pretended lot, on the day of the assembly, by the Epistates for the day, who was the successor of Socrates.

474 A. ὅπερ νῦν δὴ ἐγὼ ἔλεγον is to be taken with ἐμοὶ . . . παράδος, as I was saying just now, hand over the proof to me in my turn. He refers to 472, C.

B. τοῖς δὲ πολλοῖς οὐδὲ διαλέγομαι. These words with some bitterness silently contrast the philosopher with the orator, who aims to persuade the many. —— διδόναι ἔλεγχον, to give an opportunity of refutation, to let (another) take up the argument. —— πολλοῦ γε δεῖ. In this formula, καὶ is often added before δεῖ in the sense of even.

D. τί δὲ τόδε; intellige λέγεις. Stallb. —— εἰς οὐδὲν ἀποβλέπων, etc. Do you call beautiful things in general (τὰ καλὰ πάντα) beautiful in each instance without having reference to any thing further? i. e. do you consider beauty a fundamental quality or resolve it into something else? —— πρὸς ὃ ἄν. These words down to τοῦτο are epexegetical of the preceding clause.

E. καὶ μὴν τά γε . . . ἀμφότερα. In this sentence, Ast wishes to write καλὰ without the article, thus making it a predicate. τὰ καλὰ is added by way of explanation. τὰ κατὰ . . . νόμους = οἱ νόμοι. The sense is, and moreover laws and studies, — those that are beautiful that is, — are not removed from (are not without) these properties, viz. the useful or pleasant, or both.

475 A. τὸ τῶν μαθημάτων κάλλος ὡσαύτως. Supply ἔχει. —— οὐκοῦν τὸ αἰσχρὸν τῷ ἐναντίῳ, i. e. οὐκοῦν καλῶς ὁρίζομαι, τῷ ἐναντίῳ ὁριζόμενος τὸ αἰσχρόν. —— καλῶς . . . ὁρίζει. This conveys a bitter satire of Polus, who by pleasure and the good, meant the same thing.

B. οὐ καὶ τοῦτο ἀνάγκη ; frequens apud Plat. dictio pro quâ quis expectet οὐ καὶ τοῦτο ἀναγκαῖον ; infra p. 499, B., οὐ ταῦτα ἀνάγκη. Stallb.

C. οὐκοῦν τῷ ἑτέρῳ λείπεται, sc. ὑπερβάλλειν αὐτό.

D. ἀντὶ τοῦ ἧττον, sc. κακοῦ καὶ αἰσχροῦ.

E. For παρέχων, see 456, B. —— ὁ ἔλεγχος . . . οὐδὲν ἔοικεν, my mode of proof when put by the side of your mode of proof is quite unlike it.

A. σκεψώμεθα, σκοπώμεθα. The present imperative, 476 and the subjunctive used for it seem sometimes to have a closer reference to the present time than the aorist ; and therefore to be more urgent. Comp. let us be going, and let us go, in English. It has been remarked, (first I believe by Elmsley,) that in the present and imperfect the Attics say σκοπῶ, ἐσκόπουν, or σκοποῦμαι, ἐσκοπούμην, but not σκέπτομαι, ἐσκεπτόμην. There is only one instance of σκέπτομαι in Plato to very many of σκοπῶ. On the contrary, they never use σκοπῶ in the future, aorist, or perfect.

B. διασκεψάμενος, after careful consideration.

C. The Attic form κάω is justly preferred by all modern editors to καίω, having, as it does, the support of several MSS.

A. ἆρα ἥνπερ ἐγὼ ὑπολαμβάνω τὴν ὠφέλειαν. Supply 477 ὠφελεῖται, to be taken with its cognate noun, and for the place of ὠφέλειαν in the sentence, comp. Soph. § 151. Rem. 7.

B. ἐν χρημάτων κατασκευῇ ἀνθρώπου, in the condition of a man's property. So Schleierm. Ast, in his translation, joins ἀνθρώπου with κακίαν.

C. ἀεὶ τὸ αἴσχιστον, etc. In every case that which is most ugly is most ugly, from what has been admitted before, either as occasioning pain in the greatest degree, or harm, or both. The student will have observed, that καλός, αἰσχρός, preserve the same sense throughout the discussion, and there seems to be no fit word except ugly, by which to translate the latter of the two. And yet ugly will not bear to be used in as wide an extent as αἰσχρός. ἀγαθός, κακός, denote the relation of any thing to our well being, especially to future and ultimate well being as opposed to pleasure in the present time.

D. οὐκοῦν ἢ ἀνιαρότατον, etc. Therefore it is either most unpleasant, and the ugliest of them because it exceeds (them) in unpleasantness, or (it is so because it exceeds them) in hurtfulness, or in both. τούτων refers to the two πονηρίαι of soul and body. —— ὑπερφυεῖ τινι ὡς μεγάλῃ βλάβῃ, by some extraordinarily great harm. This may be explained as a confusio duarum locutionum, ὑπερφυές ἐστιν ὡς μεγάλη βλάβη, it is astonishing by how great a harm, and ὑπερφυεῖ τινι βλάβῃ, by some astonishing harm. The common formula ὑπερφυῶς ὡς, θαυμαστῶς ὡς, with an adjective, can be explained in the same way, or by an attraction by which the adjectives ὑπερφυές, θαυμαστόν (ἐστιν) are changed in their form by the relative adverb.

E. ἀπαλλάττει. This means no more, than "has a tendency to free." Some are beyond the reach of cure by punishment (525, C.). Nor does Socrates teach here that the ultimate object of punishment is to free the bad man from his badness, as that of medicine is to cure the sick. The comparison is not to be pressed in all respects.

478 A. εἰ μὴ οὕτως εὐπορεῖς, if on this view of the subject you are not prepared to answer.

C. ἀπαλλάττεται. The subject is to be found in οἱ ἰατρευόμενοι, such as are cured, which being indefinite readily gives place to a singular. —— ἰατρευόμενος is added to explain οὕτως. —— ἀρχήν, omnino, used chiefly with negatives. Comp. Soph. Antig. 92. —— τὴν ἀρχὴν μηδὲ κτῆσις, the not even possessing it at all.

D. ἰατρικὴ γίγνεται πονηρίας ἡ δίκη. Hoc dictum multorum imitatione celebratum esse docuit Wyttenbach. ad Plutarch. de sera numinis vindicta, p. 23. Stallb.

E. οὗτος δ' ἦν, but this was, i. e. this is, as we proved, he who, etc.

A. διαπράξηται ὥστε. This verb and ἐκπράσσω are 479 often followed by ὥστε before an infinitive. Comp. Soph. Antig. 303. Eurip. Alcest. 298. —— ὥσπερ ἄν εἴ τις. In phrases like this, an apodosis to which ἄν belongs is to be supplied: here διαπράξαιτο is to be repeated. A little below ὡσπερανεὶ παῖς = ὥσπερ φοβοῖτο ἄν εἰ παῖς εἴη.

B. τὸ ἀλγεινὸν αὐτοῦ καθορᾶν is added to explain τοιοῦτόν τι. αὐτοῦ refers to δίκην διδόναι, implied in δίκην just above. —— μὴ ὑγιοῦς σώματος stands, with a brevity which is not uncommon in comparisons, for τοῦ συνοικεῖν μὴ ὑγιεῖ σώματι, in order to prevent the repetition of συνοικεῖν. Comp. 455, E. note, Soph. Antig. 75, and Soph. § 186. N. 1.

C. παρασκευαζόμενοι. This verb can be followed by an accusative, and by a clause beginning with ὅπως. The two constructions are here united. —— συμβαίνει μέγιστον κακόν. This verb may be united with the participle or infinitive of εἰμί, or with a simple predicate as here. Soph. Electr. 261, note in my ed.

E. τὸν . . . ἀδικοῦντα . . . διδόντα, the one who, though he commits the greatest wrongs suffers no punishment for them. —— φαίνεται, sc. ἀποδεδεῖχθαι.

A. αὐτὸν ἑαυτὸν φυλάττειν, etc. For one needs to keep 480 guard especially over himself, lest he act unjustly, on the ground that, (if he so act,) he will be possessed of a serious evil. The subject of φυλάττειν is τινά, with which αὐτὸν is to be joined ; and the same omission of the indefinite subject occurs a few lines below. ὅπως μὴ ἀδικήσῃ. One MS. has ἀδικήσει, and one other ποιήσει just below. The old doctrine of Dawes, that ὅπως μὴ cannot be followed by a first aorist subjunctive, but requires either a second aorist subjunctive, or future indicative is now exploded by all respectable scholars.

B. ἢ πῶς λέγομεν. λέγωμεν, which Bekker prefers, would be equally good here. Comp. τί φῶμεν just below. The difference is, that πῶς λέγομεν = what is our opinion ? πῶς λέγωμεν, what shall we say ? what ought to be our opinion ? what have we good reason to believe ?

C. εἰ μὴ εἴ. "Sometimes a second εἰ follows εἰ μή, as in Latin nisi si." Mt. § 617, d. —— ἐπὶ τοὐναντίον. According to Stallb. χρήσιμον εἶναι is here to be supplied, and the clause κατηγορεῖν δεῖν, being explanatory of τοὐναντίον, follows without a copula. But this view of the construction overlooks δεῖν. The clause explains (χρήσιμον εἶναι) ἐπὶ τοὐναντίον, unless one can suppose that it is useful for a contrary purpose ; viz. that a person ought first of all to accuse himself (i. e. by means of rhetoric). —— ὅς ἂν ἀεί. Here ἀεὶ = at any time. —— ἀλλὰ παρέχειν μύσαντα, etc., but to give himself up, with his eyes closed and manfully, as to a physician, etc. μύσαντα expressed endurance of calamity with determination, the impressions concerning pain derived from the sense of sight, and their effects in weakening resolution being thus prevented by the will of him who shuts his eyes. Comp. Soph. Antig. 421.

E. σοι ὁμολογεῖται. Heindorf and Coray would exclude σοι from the text. If it be the pleonastic dative, as it is called, the sense is for you, i. e. I am willing to own to you that they agree with what was said before. —— τοὐναντίον, etc. If, on the other hand, says Socrates, one would do evil to another, he must save him by the use of rhetoric from punishment. Thus the rhetoricians, who place the value of their art in doing good to a friend, and harming an enemy, do just the contrary; they harm their friends by saving them from justice, and do good to their enemies by the opposite. All this is said in the character of the rhetoricians, but upon the principles with regard to justice and injustice which Polus has admitted. The parenthesis, also, ἐὰν μόνον . . . εὐλαβητέον is so understood by Buttmann. It is as much as to say, that this method of doing evil to an enemy is only applicable in case the enemy wrongs a third person; for when the enemy wrongs the orator himself, to do evil to him thus, namely, to save him from justice, would be but exposing the orator to fresh injuries from him. By rhetoric, then, he cannot gain the point he desires, namely, to do evil to his adversary without wronging himself. —— μεταβαλόντα, mutata ratione, vicissim. Comp. μεταστέψας, 456, E. It agrees with the subject of ποιεῖν. The abundance of words to denote opposition is worthy of notice, τοὐναντίον, αὖ, and this participle. —— ἐὰν δὲ ἄλλον, etc. δὲ often resumes the subject after a parenthesis.

A. ἀναλίσκηται. This, according to Coray, is an isolated instance of the middle of ἀναλίσκω used as the active, and to be altered into ἀναλίσκῃ. This word and ἀποδιδῷ are in a different tense from the aorists preceding, as containing the signification of continuance, which, however, rather belongs to μὴ ἀποδιδῷ taken together than to the verb in itself. 481

C. Νὴ τοὺς θεοὺς ἀλλά. Comp. 466, C., note. —— πότερόν σε φῶμεν σπουδάζοντα. For verbs meaning to speak construed with a participle, see Mt. § 555, Obs. 2. —— εἰ μή τι ἦν, etc. If men had not the same state of mind, some of them some one, and others some other, (i. e. if classes or portions of mankind did not agree in one or another state of mind,) but each of us had a peculiar state of mind different from what the rest of mankind had, it would not be easy to manifest your own state of mind to another.

D. ἴδιον ἤ. This construction with ἤ, which belongs to ἄλλος, ἐναντίος, and similar words, is adopted here by ἴδιος, on account of the notion of difference implied in it. —— πεπονθότες. Soph. § 137. N. 6. Then follows ἐρῶντε, because δύο renders the duality of the persons more striking. —— Ἀλκιβιάδου. At the time when Plato would have us suppose this dialogue to be spoken, Alcibiades, then a man of forty and upwards, had retired for the last time from Athens, and long before that, the intimacy between him and Socrates had ceased. That intimacy was of the purest kind on the part of Socrates. He saw in the young Alcibiades high natural endowments, and hoped to win him over to the love of wisdom and virtue. But political ambition and his passions were more attractive. —— τοῦ Πυριλάμπους, the son of Pyrilampes, whose name was Demus. Pyrilampes was a wealthy Athenian, and a friend of Pericles. He reared peacocks, (see Plutarch. Pericl. § 13, Athenæus, p. 397, C.) as did his son Demus ; and this being then a new bird in Greece, attracted visiters from so far off as Sparta and Thessaly. On the first day of the month, and at no other time, this living picture-gallery was open to all. Demus was as much admired for his beauty as one of his peacocks. Hence the pun in Aristoph. Wasps 97, (acted seventeen years before the date of this dialogue,) καὶ νὴ Δί' ἦν ἴδῃ γε που γεγραμμένον | τὸν Πυριλάμπους ἐν θύρᾳ Δῆμον καλόν, | ἰὼν παρέγραψε πλησίον, "κἠμὸς καλός," i. e. my demus, the people, is beautiful. Pyrilampes himself, also, was considered as handsome and as large a man as any in Asia, whither he went on embassies to the great king and others. (Charmides 158, A., if another person of the name be not intended.) We find Demus commanding a galley at Cyprus before the battle of Cnidus, which happened in 394 B. C. (Lysias de bonis Aristoph. § 25, Bekker.) The object of Socrates here is, to teach Callicles, in a playful way, that he feels constrained to follow his object of attachment, philosophy, wherever it leads him ; just as Callicles obeys the whims of the people. I know not why Alcibiades is brought in, unless it be for the reason which Ast has given : that, though aside from his main object, it serves to put Socrates in contrast with the politicians and orators. "I love beauty of mind," he says, "in Alcibiades, truth and justice in philosophy ; but you love external beauty in Demus, and an ignorant, unjust Athenian people."

A. τὰ ἐμὰ παιδικά. The latter word could have an 482 honest sense. —— ἔμπληκτος, fickle. It has this sense in Lysis. 214, C., (where it is joined to ἀστάθμητος,) Soph. Ajax 1358, and elsewhere.

B. ἐκείνην ἐξέλεγξον . . . ὡς, refute her (philosophy) and show that. See 467, A.

C. νεανιεύεσθαι denotes the tone of superiority in which Socrates carried on the discussion with Polus, and to which Callicles gives a somewhat harsh name. The word is paid back at the end of the dialogue. —— ὡς ἀληθῶς δημηγόρος ὤν, being in very truth a haranguer. δημηγόρος denotes speaking in the style of a mob-orator ; that is, talking at large and verbosely for effect without reasoning fairly. Comp. 519, D., where Socrates alludes to this title.

D. ὅτι ἀγανακτοῖεν ἄν, εἴ τις μὴ φαίη, because they would be displeased if any one were to refuse. Without ἄν the sense would be, they were displeased. With ἄν, the verb, if put into oratio recta, would be in the optative ; without ἄν, in the indicative.

E. σὺ γὰρ τῷ ὄντι, ὦ Σώκρατες, etc. For, O Socrates, while you profess to be in pursuit of the truth, you in reality turn (the conversation) to such vulgar and popular things as these, which are not beautiful by nature but by law. For φορτικά, comp. Mitchell on Aristoph. Wasps 66. It may be translated also disagreeable, disgusting. Schol. φορτικά ἐστι τὰ βάρος ἐμποιοῦντα, and so Ast, Stallb. It is joined with δικανικά, in the style of pleadings, in Plat. Apol. Socr. 32, A. δημηγορικά, Schol. τὰ πρὸς τὴν τῶν πολλῶν βλέποντα δόξαν, i. e. in the style of a δημηγόρος. —— ὡς τὰ πολλὰ δέ. δὲ is rarely found after the third word of the clause. Here, however, ὡς τ. π. are in a manner one word. See Poppo's note on ἐν τοῖς πρῶτοι δέ, Thucyd. 1. 6.

483 A. τοῦτο τὸ σοφὸν is in apposition with its relative, being added to explain it. —— κακουργεῖς ἐν τοῖς λόγοις, you deal unfairly in the discussion. —— ὑπερωτῶν, asking slyly. He says, that, if a person speaks of any thing as according to law, Socrates changes the ground cunningly, and asks about it according to nature, and the contrary. —— Πώλου τὸ κατὰ νόμον αἴσχιον, etc., literally, when Polus spoke of that which was more ugly according to law, you followed up the law according to nature, i. e. in your argument you followed out law, as if it were nature. Ast, with some reason, wishes to erase τὸ κατὰ νόμον, and κατὰ φύσιν, which last words are wanting in some books. The sense would then be, when Polus spoke of that which was more ugly, you urged the law, i. e. you spoke of that which was by law more ugly. For the phrase, διωκ. κατὰ νόμον, comp. Repub. 5. 454, B. κατὰ τὸ ὄνομα διώκειν, to pursue an inquiry according to the letter, and not the idea. For ἐδιώκαθες, (which Elmsley on Medea 186 regards as an aorist, but which here seems to be an imperfect, and its infinitive, Euthyphron 15, D., a present,) I beg leave to refer to my note on Antigone 1096, second ed. —— τὸ ἀδικεῖσθαι. οἷον, though in no MS., is added before τὸ by several editors, and assists the sense; though without it ἀδικεῖσθαι, (a part,) may be regarded as added in apposition, to explain πᾶν (the general idea). Being pronounced by the scribes like the ending ιον of κάκιον, οἷον might easily be absorbed by that word.

C. ἐκφοβοῦντες. After this word, τε stands in a few MSS. It seems to have been added to do away with the asyndeton; which, however, is allowable here, as what follows is an illustration of the foregoing. —— ἀγαπῶσι γάρ, etc. For they are contented if they are put on an equality when they are inferior. —— ἢ . . . φύσις. Stallb. observes, that οἶμαι is sometimes interposed between a noun and its article or preposition.

D. δηλοῖ. Not φύσις δηλοῖ, but ταῦτα δηλοῖ, these things show that they are so. But Stallb. and Ast give the verb an intransitive sense here. These things are evident that they are so, i. e. it is evident.

E. κατὰ φύσιν τὴν τοῦ δικαίου. The three last words, though in all the MSS., are looked on by several editors as interpolated. Ast retains them, translating φύσιν δικαίου not the nature of justice, but natural justice. He remarks, that a noun governing a genitive may sometimes be resolved into an adjective qualifying that genitive; and cites, in his support, Aristoph. Plut. 268, ὦ χρυσὸν ἀγγελίας ἐπῶν, i. e. golden words; Phædrus 275, A., σοφίας . . . ἀληθειαν πορίζεις, true wisdom. —— ὃν ἡμεῖς τιθέμεθα πλάττοντες, etc. The primary idea, as Heindorf observes, is expressed by the participle. The sense is, not however, perhaps, according to that law which we enact, (thereby) moulding those among us who have the best gifts and most strength; — taking them in their youth, by our incantations and juggleries, we tame them as we would lions, etc. The asyndeton at ἐκ νέων is like a number already noticed:

the clause is epexegetical of the foregoing. ἴσως is used sarcastically, the thing being regarded as certain by Callicles.

484 A. ἀνὴρ is here used unemphatically as a man, a person. If contempt were expressed, ἄνθρωπος would have been chosen. —— ἀποσεισάμενος contains a figure drawn from a horse throwing his rider. —— γράμματα, written ordinances. —— ἐπαναστὰς, etc. He rises upon us and turns out our master, — this slave that was, i. e. this one whose spirit we had curbed by laws against nature. The aorist ἀνεφάνη denotes an action wholly indefinite in regard to time.

B. νόμος ὁ πάντων βασιλεύς. This fragment of an uncertain poem of Pindar's is often referred to, especially by Plato. It is treated of at large by Boeckh, Pind. Vol. III. 640. Boeckh makes it probable, that the words κατὰ φύσιν, or something equivalent, belong to the passage: φησίν, having the same sound, and almost the same letters, as φύσιν, may have caused that word to be omitted. οὗτος δὲ δὴ are interposed by Callicles. Something like this followed in Pindar; ἐπεὶ Γηρυόνα βόας Κυκλωπίων ἐπὶ προθύρων Εὐρυσθέος ἀναιτήτας (?) τε καὶ ἀπριάτας ἤλασεν. Coray supposes that Callicles perverted the sense of Pindar, but the same turn is given to the words in Leges 10. 890, A., and Aristides (2. 69, Dindorf) knows no other. The sense of ἄγει δικαιῶν τὸ βιαιότατον, according to Boeckh, is affert vim maximam, justam eam efficiens; i. e. law (the law of nature) makes use of might, and calls it right. ἄγει and δικαιῶν have the same object. Socrates interprets ἄγει below (488, B.) in the sense of carrying off, plundering, which is suited to the action of Hercules. Hence Ast derives his translation lex abigit s. rapit, ex suo jure agens, violentissime; where τὸ β. is treated as an adverbial phrase. But Aristides, by using the opposite phrase, ἄγει τὰ δίκαια πρεσβεύων, shows that τὸ βιαιότατον is at least the object of δικαιῶν. —— τούτου refers forward to καὶ βοῦς . . . εἶναι.

C. The changes of number here are worthy of notice: τις ἄψηται, . . . τῶν ἀνθρώπων, . . . εὐφυὴς ᾖ, . . . γίγνονται. —— ἡλικίᾳ de ætate juvenili intelligendum. Itaque πόρρω τῆς ἡλικίας est ultra juventutem. Stallb. πόρρω can take a genitive in two relations. 1. That of the thing from which one is far off; as, Phædrus 238, D., οὐκέτι πόρρω διθυράμβων φθέγγομαι, my words are not far from the style of dithyrambs. 2. That in respect of which one is far advanced, as Symposium 217, D., διελεγόμην πόρρω τῶν νυκτῶν, I conversed to a late hour of the night, infra 486, A. πόρρω ἀεὶ τῆς φιλοσοφίας ἐλαύνοντας, always pushing forwards in philosophy, and in the text the sense can be, to too late a period of his youth.

D. It must be remembered, that καλὸς κἀγαθὸς ἀνήρ, in the mouth of Callicles, means quite another thing from what the same words would intend if used by Socrates. In earlier times the optimates were so called, i. e. the name was given to men of a certain birth. By the standard of Callicles, it would belong to a man of the highest rank in public estimation. The moral character of the individual gave him a right to this title, in the estimation of Socrates Comp. Welcker præf. to Theognis. p. 25. —— ἐν τοῖς συμβολαίοις, in stipulations, or business transactions in general. The word denotes both private and public contracts, bargains, and treaties of commerce. —— ἠθῶν, characters.

E. τὸ τοῦ E. See 465, D. The following lines are from the Antiope, and, as the Schol. says, from a speech of Zethus to Amphion. Valckenaer, in his Diatribe on the frag. of Eurip. (the seventh and eighth chapters of which are devoted to this play), gives these words to Amphion. —— ἵνα αὐτὸς αὑτοῦ, etc., where, i. e. in whatsoever, he happens to do his best, whereinsoever he most excels. One MS. only has τυγχάνει, a reading which the editors before Stallb. generally preferred. But it is now admitted on all hands, that in the poets relative words occasionally are joined to the subjunctive without ἄν. Cousin translates this line "afin de se surpasser lui-même." It is strange that he did not see that in the very next line Plato interprets the ancient and poetical ἵνα, where, by ὅπου ἄν. —— For αὐτὸς αὑτοῦ, see Soph. § 144. N. 4, and § 232; and for βέλτιστος αὑτοῦ, § 177. N. 5. The comparative with the reflexive pronoun in the genitive denotes the having gone beyond a previous or usual state; the superlative with the same, the possession of the quality in the highest degree to which the person spoken of attains.

485 A. εὐνοίᾳ τῇ ἑαυτοῦ, out of regard to himself, through self-love. The genitive is objective, as is the possessive pronoun, 486, A., εὐνοίᾳ τῇ σῇ. —— ὅσον παιδείας χάριν, just for the sake of education. —— ὁμοιότατον πάσχω, I feel very much the same thing. To ὅμοιος in the second clause, ὡς succeeds, instead of ὅπερ or οἷον. Comp. Xen. Symposium, 4. 37, ὅμοιά μοι δοκοῦσι πάσχειν ὥσπερ εἴ τις πολλὰ ἐσθίων μηδέποτε ἐμπίπλαιτο.

D. ἔφη ὁ ποιητής, in Iliad 9. 441. —— μηδέποτε. Heusdius μηδὲν excidisse suspicabatur. Sed vere monuit Boeckhius (in Plat. Minonem et Leges comment. p. 112) sæpius ita τι et μηδὲν omitti. Stallb.

E. ἱκανόν, satisfactory, answerable to his powers, or to the expectations formed of him. —— ἐπιεικῶς ἔχω φιλικῶς, am quite friendly.

486 A. In the Antiope of Euripides, a dialogue between the brothers Zethus and Amphion was contained, in which the former, who was a shepherd, exhorts the other to give up the art of music to which he had devoted himself.

The dialogue, as the remains show, involved a brilliant comparison between the life of the practical man and of one devoted to the arts. —— μειρακιώδει . . . μορφώματι, you strive to ornament a soul so nobly endowed by a puerile form, or outside. μορφώματι denotes external decoration; here the musical and poetical pursuits of Amphion. —— οὔτ' ἂν δίκης, etc., nor in the counsels of justice canst thou put forth thy words, nor take hold of any thing probable and persuasive; i. e. Zethus denies to his brother the power to defend himself in suits at law, and to use the arts of persuasion. —— ἀπαγάγοι. The word points at the ἀπαγωγὴ of Attic law, a summary process by which the accused could be dragged before the proper magistrate, and locked in prison, without previous citation. One of the crimes to which this process was applicable was ἀσέβεια, the offence for which Socrates, though by another process, was actually tried. There is an allusion below, no doubt, to what actually happened; to the seeming helplessness and unskilfulness of Socrates at his trial; to his accusers, who were men of little influence or repute; and especially to the leading one, Meletus, a bad poet and a bad man; as well as to the penalty of death, which they attached to their indictment. —— ἀδικεῖν, says Stallb., accipiendum pro ἠδικηκέναι. Heindorf on Protag. p. 310, D., makes the same remark, and brings a number of examples in proof of it. One is from Lysias, p. 678, Reiske, οἱ δ' ἠδικηκότες ἐκπριάμενοι τοὺς κατηγόρους οὐδὲν ἔδοξαν ἀδικεῖν. According to Ast, the present includes the past, = to have done, and to be still doing wrong. This is often true, but it will not explain such a case as this from Lysias, p. 136, Reiske, cited by Heindorf; ἀξιῶ δέ, ὦ βουλή, εἰ μὲν ἀδικῶ, μηδεμιᾶς συγγνώμης τυγχάνειν, where one crime some time before committed is spoken of. The true explanation is, perhaps, that ἀδικῶ properly means

I am a wrong doer, as well as I am doing wrong. But he is a wrong doer who has done wrong.

B. κατηγόρου . . . μοχθηροῦ, a very common and paltry sort of accuser; referring to the accuser's standing in general. —— θανάτου . . . τιμᾶσθαι, to lay his damages against you at death, which happily is an expression we do not use, because our law, unlike that of Athens, never places human life in the power of a vile or revengeful accuser, and of a throng of unrestricted judges. τιμᾶσθαι, to make his own estimate, set his price, is the usual word for the plaintiff's claim of satisfaction, whether pecuniary or penal. The court were said τιμᾶν. The defendant was said ἀντιτιμᾶσθαι, to estimate in his turn what ought to be the verdict, or ὑποτιμᾶσθαι, to give his reduced estimate; in case he had been voted guilty by the judges. And all this was allowed only in certain suits called ἀγῶνες τιμητοί, or those in which the laws had not settled the penalty, but left it to the judges. One of these was ἀσέβεια, for which Socrates was tried. On being found guilty, his ὑποτίμημα was called for; and instead of naming some small mulct which might have saved his life, he named support in the Prytaneum. This led the judges, who usually chose between the accuser's estimate and that of the accused, to sentence him to death.

C. ἐπὶ κόρρης τύπτειν, to strike a person upon the side of the head or temples, is spoken only of blows with the flat hand, and was the highest insult at Athens. See 527, D. —— πραγμάτων εὐμουσίαν. This expression is from Eurip., and alludes to Amphion's pursuit. His brother says, no longer practise music, but musicalness of conduct, i. e. that which is in harmony with your nature and powers.

D. ἀγαθά. A. Gellius (10. 22,) has quoted the passage from φιλοσοφία γάρ, 484, C. to this place, but misapprehends its import. —— τὴν ἀρίστην is in opposition to τινα τῶν λίθων.

Just above we should expect οἷς βασανίζουσι for ᾗ, referring to τούτων τῶν λίθων; but ᾗ comes from Plato's having τινα λίθον in his mind. —— προσαγαγών, admovens, is used with allusion to gold, which was brought to the touchstone to be rubbed upon it, that a judgment might be formed by the color. The order here is, πρὸς ἣν προσαγαγὼν αὐτὴν, ἔμελλον εὖ εἴσεσθαι εἰ. Comp. Herodot. 7. 10, "pure gold we do not distinguish by itself, but when we rub it (viz. on the touchstone) by the side of other gold, then we distinguish the better."

E. ἄν = ἃ ἄν. —— αὐτὰ τἀληθῆ, true in themselves, or the very truth.

B. μᾶλλον τοῦ δέοντος. These words are redundant, 487
i. e. the comparative alone would convey the same sense. μᾶλλον is often thus used after a comparative; and in the same way πέρα just below, 487, D.

C. Andron is mentioned in Protag. 315, C. He was probably the father of Androtion, an orator and disciple of Isocrates, against whom an oration of Demosthenes was written. —— ἐπήκουσα. So Bekker, Ast, and others, with most MSS. Stallb. prefers ὑπήκουσα, I overheard. (This he retracts in his second edition.)

D. εὐλαβεῖσθαι . . . διαφθαρέντες. Strikingly like Ecclesiastes vii. 16, "neither make thyself overwise. Why shouldst thou destroy thyself?"

E. δῆλον ὅτι are often interposed in the middle of a sentence, without having an effect on the construction. And so οἶσθ' ὅτι. —— τέλος τῆς ἀληθείας, de veritate perfecta et consummata accipio. Heindorf. —— τὸν ἄνδρα, i. e. mankind. The article is used because ἀνὴρ has its widest generic sense, and thus forms a definite whole.

A. εὖ ἴσθι τοῦτο ὅτι. τοῦτο traxerim ad ἐξαμαρτάνω. 488
Nam Demostheni familiaris formula εὖ ἴσθι τοῦθ' ὅτι, Platoni, quod sciam, non item. Heindorf.

B. ἄγειν. See 484, B., note. If ἄγειν is there correctly explained by Boeckh, we must suppose that Socrates plays upon the word, without essentially injuring the sense of the passage from Pindar.

C. ἀκροᾶσθαι, obedire, like ἀκούειν. —— τότε, i. e. antea, quum de his rebus disputares. Sic τότε passim ponitur. Stallb.

D. οἱ δὴ καί, etc. Since, indeed, they even make laws for the one, i. e. to control the one. The relative, as often elsewhere, renders a reason; i. e. = the demonstrative with γάρ. τίθεμαι νόμον is used of a people, or one empowered by them, making laws: τίθημι νόμον of a sovereign or a divine lawgiver.

489 A. ὅπως μὴ ἁλώσει. See Soph. § 213. N. 5. —— αἰσχυνόμενος. Socrates refers with admirable irony to 482, C., D. —— ἵνα βεβαιώσωμαι, etc., that I may get confirmation (for it) from you, seeing that a man who is competent to decide has admitted it.

B. κινδυνεύεις οὐκ ἀληθῆ λέγειν, it seems that you were not speaking the truth, for λέγειν is the infinitive of the imperfect. —— ἃ . . . κακουργῶ. He quotes what Callicles said, p. 483, A. —— ὀνόματα θηρεύων, verba aucupans. Comp. 490, A. The same metaphor is seen in our word captious. —— ῥήματι ἁμαρτεῖν, to use a wrong expression.

C. ἢ οἴει με λέγειν, etc. Or do you think my opinion to be, that if a rabble should be collected of slaves and of all sorts of men, of no account except by reason of their bodily strength; and these persons should say any thing, that these very things which they say, ought to have the force of law. Join τῷ ἰσχυρίσασθαι together. This verb can mean pollere, contendere, fidere. For the first meaning, which is less common but seems to belong to it here, comp. Dio Cass. 44, p. 406, Reimar, χαλεπὸν ἰσχυριζόμενόν τι τῷ σώματι φρονιμώτατον ἐκβῆναι, difficile est corpore esse valido, et animo prudenti. φῶσιν must be taken absolutely without an object in the sense of decreeing, determining, but with contemptuous disparagement; unless we read with Heindorf ἅττα for αὐτά. And αὐτὰ ταῦτα refers to the edicts implied in φῶσιν.

D. τοὺς δύο ... τοῦ ἑνός. As the numerals are opposed to one another, they have a certain definiteness. Hence the article. So τὰ δύο μέρη, sc. τῶν τριῶν, two thirds. —— τί ποτε λέγεις τοὺς βελτίους is as legitimate an expression as τίνας ποτε, which Routh wished to put into its place.

E. προδίδασκε. Schol. περιττεύει ἡ πρόθεσις Ἀττικῶς. I believe that in προδιδάσκειν, προμανθάνειν, (Aristoph. Clouds 476, 966,) πρὸ means forwards, and that it is prefixed without adding much to the meaning of the verbs, because the idea of advance is involved in learning and teaching. This word alludes to a school, as is shown by ἀποφοιτήσω. —— οὐ μὰ τὸν Ζῆθον. Comp. 485, E. Most MSS. want οὐ, which, however, is necessary here, for although μὰ is almost confined to oaths expressly or impliedly negative, it is in itself merely affirmative, being connected, perhaps, in origin with μήν, μέν. —— ᾧ σὺ χρώμενος, etc., whose words you used of me just now with much raillery. —— ὀνόματα λέγεις, you utter mere words.

B. πολλοὶ ἀθρόοι, multi simul. Sæpenumero sic jun- 490 guntur. Stallb.

C. ἦ οὖν τούτων τῶν σιτίων, etc. Must he then have more of these provisions than we, because he is better; or ought he, in virtue of his authority, to distribute them all, etc. —— πάντων ἐλάχιστον τῷ βελτίστῳ. Supply ἑκτέον.

D. ποίων ἱματίων, sc. δεῖ αὐτὸν πλέον ἔχειν. ποῖος is often used in questions conveying wonder, indignation, or contempt. Aristoph. Clouds 366, Ὁ Ζεὺς ... οὐ θεός ἐστιν; | ποῖος Ζεύς; οὐ μὴ ληρήσεις; οὐδ' ἔστι Ζεύς. Just below we have ποῖα ὑποδήματα φλυαρεῖς ἔχων; what shoes are you talking nonsense about ? ἔχων here has an accusative, but is sometimes used in such phrases as φλυαρεῖς ἔχων, ληρεῖς ἔχων ; which are explained, but not perhaps quite satisfactorily, by Hermann on Viger, Note 228, and Mt. § 567.

491 A. ἀτεχνῶς, absolutely. In the sense without art, the penult has the acute accent. —— ἀεὶ λέγων . . . οὐδὲν παύει. ἀεὶ is joined thus redundantly with παύομαι again, p. 517, C., and in Leges 2. 662, E. Socrates was often thus reproached or derided, for drawing his illustrations from homely sources. He was led to it by love of simplicity, contempt for pretension, the desire to find a general truth by means of familiar instances and frequent conversations with artisans. See a fine passage in Sympos. 221, E. —— περὶ τίνων . . . πλέον ἔχων. Heind. remarks, that περὶ τίνας is the usual formula with πλέον ἔχειν. —— τοὺς κρείττους οἵ εἰσιν, etc , by the better, namely, by who they are I do not mean, etc. οἵ εἰσιν dictum est cum abundantia quadam qualem Callicles in hac oratione sectatur passim. Poterat enim omitti. Stallb.

B. For κατηγορεῖν with the genitive of the person, see Soph. § 184. 2.

D. τί δέ ; . . . ἀρχομένους ; The reading and pointing here are quite uncertain. The passage in brackets is omitted by Bekker, after one MS. It has the look of an explanation of τί δέ. Nor does Socrates afterwards do any thing with ἀρχομένους, while ἄρχοντας is easily supplied with αὑτῶν. The sense without this passage is, But what ? Does justice consist in this, that those who rule themselves should have more than others. Stallbaum's reading in his second ed. is αὑτῶν . . . τί [ἢ τί] ἄρχοντας ἢ ἀρχομένους ; where τί is quatenus, qua in parte. But how can ἀρχομένους be the subject of πλέον ἔχειν ? or how could he say quatenus sibimet ipsis imperantes unless he had already spoken of governing one's self. —— ἢ τοῦτο μὲν οὐδὲν δεῖ.

δεῖ sometimes takes an accusative of the thing, when that is a pronoun.

E. ὡς ἡδὺς εἶ answers nearly to the French comme vous êtes plaisant ! how ridiculous or foolish you are ! γλυκὺς is used in the same way. —— τοὺς ἠλιθίους λέγεις τοὺς σώφρονας, you mean those fools the temperate. The one accusative is in apposition with the other ; unless, with Stallb., we make τοὺς ἠλιθίους the predicate-accusative ; in which case the sense is, by the temperate you mean the silly. The sophists struck a disastrous blow against morality by giving it this title. Comp. Repub. 348, D. "What ?" says Socrates to the Sophist Thrasymachus, "do you call justice (κακίαν) badness ?" "No," said he, "but (πάνυ γενναίαν εὐήθειαν) very noble folly." —— πάνυ γε σφόδρα, sc. τοῦτο λέγεις.

B. οἷς . . . ὑπῆρξεν . . . υἱέσιν εἶναι ἢ αὐτοὺς . . . ἱκανοὺς 492 εἶναι. For this union in one sentence of the dative dependent on the verb, and the accusative construed with the infinitive, comp. 510, E. fin., and Soph. Electra 962. —— τί κάκιον εἴη, for τί ἂν . . . κάκιον εἴη. Comp. τίς . . . κατάσχοι, Soph. Antig. 605, Mt. § 515, Obs. ἄν may have dropped out here, as τί itself is wanting in ten MSS., both being absorbed so to speak by the two last syllables of δυναστείαν. —— οἷς ἐξόν, etc. A contracted expression for οἷ, ἐξὸν αὐτοῖς . . . αὐτοὶ ἐπαγάγοιντο, which is much the same as εἰ, ἐξὸν αὐτοῖς, etc., if, when they had it in their power, . . . they were themselves to introduce. Comp. Repub. 465, fin. "Do you remember that some one reproved us, because we, in his opinion, made (ποιοῖμεν) our guards not happy, οἷς ἐξὸν πάντα ἔχειν τὰ τῶν πολιτῶν οὐδὲν ἔχοιεν, who, when they could possess every thing belonging to the citizens, were to have nothing."

C. τὰ δὲ ἄλλα. The predicate is φλυαρία καὶ οὐδενὸς ἄξια.

D. ἀμόθεν γέ ποθεν, undecunque, from obsol. ἀμός, Attic ἅμός, = τις, whence μηδαμοῦ. This is Bekker's emendation of ἄλλοθέν ποθεν, which is evidently a false reading.

E. ὡς γε σὺ λέγεις . . . ὁ βίος, such a life as you mention. —— The lines here quoted are probably from the Polyidus of Eurip., and very similar to another fragment from his Phrixus. The second trimeter is completed by κάτω νομίζεται. The passage is parodied by Aristoph. in the Frogs 1477.

493 A. The singular passage next following is introduced by the way, and perhaps half in sport. At the beginning of an argument concerning the good and the pleasant, Socrates takes breath a moment, and changes reasoning for playful illustration. He first mentions an opinion concerning the true life, which was expressed by the Orphic and Pythagorean theologists ; — that the body is the tomb of the soul, release from which will admit it into real existence. To this dogma Plato alludes in Cratylus 400, C. He says, (ironically throughout) upon the derivation of σῶμα, that it may come from σῆμα, because some call the body the σῆμα of the soul, as being that in which in this present it is buried ; or because the soul σημαίνει by means of the body its thoughts and wishes. But he thinks that the name is due to the followers of Orpheus especially, who taught that the soul was inclosed and kept (σώζειν) in it to atone for its crimes in an earlier state. This derivation, he says, would require no change of letter. The Pythagorean Philolaus (Boeckh's Philolaus 181, Clem. Alex. 3. 3, p. 518, Potter,) says, that "the old theologists and diviners testify, that the soul is joined to the body to suffer a certain retribution, and is buried in it καθάπερ ἐν σάματι." To this and to the comparison of the body to a prison, there is frequent allusion. Socrates now passes on to an allegorical explanation of the fable of the Danaides, which illustrates the unsatisfactory nature of devotion to animal desire. It was the doctrine of some Mysteries, (the Orphic or Bacchic especially,) that the initiated fared better in the world below than the uninitiated, and use was made of this fable to show the difference in their condition. The fable was afterwards spiritualized, as we see in the text, and applied to the soul and its parts. It may be doubted who is the author of this punning allegory. Boeckh contends that it was Philolaus, who was a native of Crotona or Tarentum. But there is no evidence that this allegory, and the dogma first spoken of, are to be attributed to the same person. The schol. refers it to Empedocles, and Olympiod. (apud Stallb.) does the same. But their assertions may be mere guesses. Ast regards it as Plato's own invention, playfully ascribed to an Italian or Sicilian, for the purpose of laughing at the countrymen of Polus and Gorgias. —— τῆς δὲ ψυχῆς, etc. And that that part of the soul in which the desires lodge, is capable of being persuaded, and of changing from one side to the other. —— μυθολογῶν, expressing in the form of a fable. ——The ensuing words, as Buttmann in Heindorf's ed. observes, seem to be taken from a song of Timocreon of Rhodes, a lyric poet contemporary with the Persian war; of which song a few words in Ionic a minore dimeters preserved by Hephæstion (p. 71, Gaisford) are as follows: Σικελὸς κομψὸς ἀνὴρ ποτὶ τὰν ματέρ' ἔφα. —— κομψός. On this word, Ruhnken (Timæus s. v.) says: κομψὸν dicitur quicquid scitum et venustum est. Plerisque autem locis, apud Platonem vox habet aliquid ironiæ Socraticæ, ut non tam de vera et naturali, quam de nimia et adscititia venustate capienda videtur. Gorg. 521, E. Pro splendidis nugis sumendum est Gorg. 486, C. Neque tamen desunt loci ubi simpliciter et sine ironia ad laudem referatur: which he considers to be the case here. It answers to nice, fine, wise, and polished. I cannot help thinking, that it here contains something of irony. —— παράγων τῷ ὀνόματι, making a change in the word, altering its sound a little.

B. τῶν δὲ ἀμυήτων, etc., and that that part of the soul of the uninitiated, where the desires reside, — its incontinent and irretentive part, — he said that this was a tub full of holes; making the comparison on account of its ἀπληστία. There may be a side-thrust at rhetoric, the object of which is πείθειν, when it is said that the part of the soul which contains the desires is moved this way and that by persuasion. ἀμυήτους, besides its similarity to ἀνοήτους, seems to have a double sense, uninitiated (α, μυεῖν) and not closing, unable to contain, as if from α, μύειν. The construction is completed by supplying ἔφη, suggested by ὠνόμασε. —— τὸ ἀειδὲς δὴ λέγων, meaning of course the invisible, i. e. the intellectual, as opposed to the material. Comp. Phædo 80, D., ἦ δὲ ψυχὴ ἄρα, τὸ ἀειδές, τὸ εἰς τοιοῦτον ἕτερον τόπον οἰχόμενον, —— οὗτοι . . . κοσκίνῳ, that these uninitiated persons are, as it would seem (εἶεν ἄν), the most wretched, and carry water into the leaky tub in a similar leaky sieve. The early mysteries seem to have consisted of purifications, the effect of which was to remove guilt. Hence the initiated escaped the punishment in the future world, which was to fall on others. This was denoted by making use of certain fables of the poets, which exhibited the popular view of the punishment of great offenders, and applying them to the uninitiated.

C. ἅτε οὐ δυναμένην, etc., on account, namely, of its inability to retain, through unbelief and forgetfulness. ἀπιστίαν alludes to πίθον. —— ἐπιεικῶς. Non explicuerim cum Heindorfio satis, admodum, sed habet vim affirmandi atque concedendi, ut Latinorum utique, sane quidem. Stallb. Ut candide loquar. Routh. —— ὑπό τι, aliquatenus, quo- dammodo. Stallb. —— δηλοῖ μήν, etc. Yet they make that clear, by the exhibition of which I wish to persuade you, — if I in any wise can, — to change your mind. —— μεταθέσθαι, sc. γνώμην or ψῆφον. The next words explain μεταθέσθαι, and therefore have no need of καί, which is in some editions. Just below, μετατίθεσαι is used in what is called the constructio prægnans like ἐξελέγχω, p. 482, B. The sense is, and do you change your opinion, and say that, etc.

D. ἐκ τοῦ αὐτοῦ γυμνασίου τῇ νῦν, from the same school with that just now, from some allegorizing sophist. For ὁ αὐτός followed by the dative, in brief phrases, see Soph. § 195. N. 3.

E. νάματα ἑκάστου τούτων, liquors belonging to, or put into each of these tubs.

B. χαραδριοῦ. A bird so called from the ravines and 494 beds of torrents where it lives, of a yellowish color, and very voracious. ἅμα τῷ ἐσθίειν ἐκκρίνει, says the Schol. The Schol. on this place and many others mention, that these birds were reputed to cure the jaundice by being looked at ; whence those who brought them into town for sale kept them covered, lest they should effect a cure for nothing. More about the bird will be found in Schneider on Aristot. Hist. Animal. Vol. IV. 80 seq. He thinks it to be the charadrius œdicnemus or c. hiaticula of Linnæus. —— τὸ τοιόνδε λέγεις οἷον, do you allow that there is such a thing as.

C. λέγω, καί, etc. The construction here changes from the infinitive to the participle after λέγω. The sense is, yes, and I speak of (allow that there is such a thing as) a man having all the other desires, and able to live happily by taking pleasure in feeding them. —— ὅπως μή, i. e. σκόπει ὅπως μή, as usual. ἀπαιυχυνεῖ is used with allusion to what Callicles has said of the modesty of Gorgias and Polus, as in 489, A. —— κνώμενον διατελοῦντα τὸν βίον explains the preceding clause. —— δημηγόρος, coarse, vulgar.

D. ἀνδρεῖος γὰρ εἶ. This alludes ironically to his definition of the βέλτιστοι as being the ἀνδρεῖοι (491, C.).

E. τὸ . . . κεφάλαιον, id quod rerum hujus generis (i. e. turpissimarum) caput est. Ast. κεφάλαιον is in apposition with ὁ βίος. —— ἀνέδην, freely or openly.

495 A. ἀνομολογούμενος, inconsistent, disagreeing; from ὁμολογούμενος, used as an adjective, and α. —— διαφθείρεις . . . λόγους, you make what we have said before good for nothing.

B. καὶ γὰρ σύ. Well, what of that? For you do too, i. e. παρὰ τὰ δοκοῦντα σαυτῷ λέγεις.

C. διελοῦ τάδε, etc. Explain the following. You mean something probably by ἐπιστήμη (certain knowledge), do you not? —— ἄλλο τι οὖν, etc. Did you not accordingly, on the ground that knowledge was a different thing from manliness, speak of these as two. The allusion is to 491, A., B , in this and the prior question. With τὴν ἀνδρείαν, οὖσαν is to be supplied. The accus. absol. is often found without the participle of εἰμί expressed. Bekker, without MS. authority, adds ὂν after ἕτερον, which is a very probable conjecture, as ὂν may easily have been swallowed up by ἕτερον. The participle ὄν would be attracted in gender to the predicate.

D. ὁ Ἀχαρνεύς. Socrates playfully but severely imitates the solemn style of covenants in which the demus of the parties was mentioned. Some of the demi, as that to which Callicles belonged, had no corresponding adjective forms. The want was supplied by an adverb in θεν taken with the article.

496 A. περὶ ὅτου . . . ἀπολαβών, look at this with regard to any part of the body you please, taking it by itself, or separately.

C. ὑπερφυῶς ὡς. Comp. 477, D.

D. οὐκοῦν τούτου οὗ λέγεις, etc. In that of which we are speaking, the one part, viz. διψῶντα, being thirsty, is then feeling pain, is it not? They were speaking of διψῶντα πίνειν.

E. κατὰ τὸ πίνειν χαίρειν λέγεις; do you speak of taking pleasure so far forth as the act of drinking is concerned? i. e. does the pleasure go with the drinking? —— λυπούμενον; at the same time that the person feels pain? —— εἴτε ψυχῆς εἴτε σώματος. Stallb. says, "hi genitivi vereor ut a præcedenti τόπον καὶ χρόνον pendeant." And he would read ψυχῆς πέρι. But there can be no objection to taking τόπον with the genitives; and χρόνον is excused by being in its company.

A. ἀκκίζει. Olymp. apud Stallb. προσποιῇ μωρίαν καὶ 497 τὸ μὴ εἰδέναι. Mœris defines ἀκκισμὸς as the Attic expression for προσποίησις. From examples of the use of the word, its meaning evidently is, to pretend that you do not, particularly to decline taking a thing (as food at table) when you want it. —— ὅτι ἔχων λῃρεῖς. These words are either a gloss on ἄττα σοφίζει, or, what is more probable, καὶ . . . νουθετεῖς must be given to Callicles. So Stallb., in his second ed., after the conjecture of a recent writer. Comp. for the phrase, 490, E. note.

B. οὐ σὴ αὕτη ἡ τιμή, this damage or cost is not yours, i. e. this does you no harm.

C. ὅτι τὰ μεγάλα μεμύησαι. There is an elegant allusion to the mysteries of Ceres; which were divided into the small, held in the city, and the great, held chiefly at Eleusis. The latter could not be witnessed until a year or more after initiation into the other. The sentiment is something like that in Artegall's words to the Giant.

> "For how canst thou those greater secrets know,
> That doest not know the least thing of them all?
> Ill can he rule the great, that cannot reach the small."

—— ὅθεν ἀπέλιπες ἀποκρίνου, answer beginning where you left off. The usual construction of ἄρχω with an adverb of motion is here adopted by ἀποκρίνομαι.

498 A. ἀμφότεροι ἔμοιγε μᾶλλον, i. e. χαίρειν δοκοῦσι. This is said in contempt, as if Socrates were not deserving of a sensible answer.

C. ἢ καὶ ἔτι μᾶλλον, etc. If cowards, who, according to Callicles, are the bad, feel more pleasure and pain than brave men when enemies retire and advance; and if pleasure and pain are the same as good and evil, then the bad are both bad and good in a higher degree than the good, which is absurd. After μᾶλλον ἀγαθοί, the MSS. have οἱ ἀγαθοί, which Routh and succeeding editors have justly left out, as wholly perverting the sense.

E. δὶς γάρ τοι, etc. A proverb, imputed by the Schol. to Empedocles, a part of one of whose hexameters (v. 164 in Sturz's Emped.) is καὶ δὶς γὰρ δ δεῖ καλόν ἐστιν ἐνισπεῖν. τοι, you know, is often used in making familiar remarks or citing well known passages. A little below, in 499, B., πάλαι τοι, it has, according to Stallb., "vim confirmandi cum quadam admiratione vel indignatione," = really, or don't you know.

499 B. ὥς δή, see 468, E. —— ἰοὺ sometimes expresses grief, sometimes, as here, wonder, or joy. It is oxytoned by all the editors of Plato. Others would write ἰού, either always, or when it does not denote grief.

C. αὖ, again, refers to 491, C. He is again inconsistent with himself. —— ἑκόντος εἶναι, if you could help it, if you had your way about it. See Soph. § 221. N. 3. According to Hermann (Append. to Viger, de pleonasmo), it is not simply sponte, but quantum quis sponte quid faciat, and is used "de eo potissimum quod quis facere detrectat." Dr. Arnold (on Thucyd. 2. 89), after Hermann, says that ἑκὼν εἶναι "is used generally in negative sentences where the speaker wishes to qualify his denial or refusal, by saying that he will not do it if he can help it, but that very possibly he may not be able to help it." He adds, that in Prometheus 266, ἑκὼν ἑκὼν ἥμαρτον, ἑκὼν εἶναι would make nonsense. —— τὸ παρὸν εὖ ποιεῖν, to do well what is in one's power, to make the best of what you have. This proverb again occurs in Leges. 12. 959, C. —— ἡδοναί τινες . . . αἱ μὲν . . . αἱ δέ. The constant use of ὁ μέν, ὁ δέ, in antitheses, seems to be the reason why, (by a kind of apposition, perhaps,) they follow τινες here. Instead of τινες μὲν . . . ἄλλαι δέ, some, . . . others, we have, as if the contrast needed to be made stronger, some, these I say . . . those. Comp. Eurip. Hec. 1185, πολλαὶ γὰρ ἡμῶν, αἱ μὲν εἴσ' ἐπίφθονοι | αἱ δ', etc. In Æschin. c. Ctes. (§ 11, Bekk.), οἱ μὲν follows τινες, and the second οἱ μὲν is suppressed, as is often the case with ὁ μέν, ὁ δὲ alone. The formula is found also in Plat. Repub. 8. 560, A.

D. εἰ ἄρα τούτων. Græci frequenter relativam orationis structuram permutant cum conditionali. Stallb. The relative structure would be αἳ μὲν ἄρα τούτων, etc.

A. ἐκ τρίτων, and ἐκ τρίτου, in the third place, third. 500
Eurip. Orest. 1173, σωτηρίαν σοι, τῷδέ τ', ἐκ τρίτου τ' ἐμοί. Sympos. 213, B., ὑπολύετε Ἀλκιβιάδην, ἵνα ἐκ τρίτων κατακέηται.

B. See 464, B. seq. —— παρασκευαί, the Schol. observes, is a middle term, standing for τέχναι and ἐμπειρίαι both, like ἐπιτηδεύσεις. —— μέχρι ἡδονῆς, terminating in pleasure. This is explained by the next words, where αὐτὸ τοῦτο refers to ἡδονήν, i. e. τὸ ἡδύ. —— καὶ ἐτίθην, etc., and among those pursuits which relate to the pleasures, I set down cookery as a knack, and not an art ; but of those which have to do with good (I set down) medicine as an art. —— πρὸς φιλίου, supply Διός. —— μηδ' ὅ τι ἂν τύχῃς, etc., and do not, contrary to your opinion, answer whatever comes into your head, nor take what I say as though I were in sport. For μηδὲ after μήτε, see Mt. § 609.

C. οὗ τί ἂν μᾶλλον . . . ἢ τοῦτο. The last words are added to recall οὗ to mind, and τοῦτο takes the construction of τί rather than of περὶ τούτου οὗ. It often happens, that ἤ and quam are so inserted after a genitive depending on a comparative. —— ἐπὶ ὅν, i. e. τοῦτον ἐφ' ὅν. —— τὰ τοῦ ἀνδρὸς δὴ ταῦτα πράττοντα, whether I ought to spend my life in doing those deeds of the real man, forsooth, that you spoke of. The reference is to 485, A.–D. δή is ironical. —— ἢ ἐπὶ τόνδε τὸν βίον. We should expect τόνδε τὸν βίον, sc. ζῆν; but Plato forms this clause as though he had written πότερον ἐμέ παρακαλεῖς ἐπὶ τοῦτον, etc.

E. Socrates breaks off in the middle of the sentence, to know whether Callicles is so far of the same opinion.

501 A. ἡ δ' ἰατρική, i. e. δοκεῖ μοι τέχνη εἶναι. Just below, ἡ ἰατρικὴ is added to explain ἡ μέν. Comp. ὁ μὲν . . . ὁ κολαζόμενος, 476, E. —— ἡ δ' ἑτέρα τῆς ἡδονῆς . . . ἐπ' αὐτὴν ἔρχεται. There is a striking change of construction here. The sentence begins with ἡδονῆς, as if Plato had in his mind the form of the preceding sentence, and were going to say, τῆς ἡδονῆς οὔτε τὴν φύσιν ἔσκεπται οὔτε τὴν αἰτίαν. But this thought, which afterwards appears in the participial form, is postponed, and the intervening clause, πρὸς ἣν ἡ θεραπεία . . . ἅπασα, determined him to say, ἐπ' αὐτὴν ἔρχεται, accommodated to πρὸς ἥν, and to leave ἡδονῆς in the lurch, so to speak. It may be asked, why, when he read it over, he did not dismiss ἡδονῆς from its irregular position. The answer is, that the Greeks were governed in their style by nature, — a higher rule than grammar, and did not object to such irregularities of structure, as arise from the nature of the mind, and are heard in good conversation. —— ἀτέχνως, and not ἀτεχνῶς. Comp. 491, A. —— ἀλόγως τε παντάπασιν, in a manner altogether irra- tional, making I may say (i. e. almost) no estimates (or discriminations), a mere practice and experience.

B. ᾧ δὴ καὶ πορίζεται. ᾧ refers to τῷ μνήμην σώζεσθαι τοῦ εἰωθότος γίγνεσθαι. —— καὶ εἶναί τινες, i. e. καὶ εἰ δοκοῦσί σοι εἶναί τινες. It might have been said equally well, εἶναί τινας, etc. —— ὥσπερ ἐκεῖ, i. e. as in the case of the body. —— οὔτε μέλον αὐταῖς, etc., nor having any concern about aught else but gratification merely, no matter whether it be for the better or the worse. Here the structure changes to the impersonal participle (Soph. § 168. N. 2), and the subject of the prior clause becomes αὐταῖς.

C. ἐμοὶ . . . δοκοῦσι εἶναι, it seems to me that there are such, or they seem to me to exist. The words refer to εἶναί τινες πραγματεῖαι, etc. It is strange that Stallb. and Ast, overlooking this plain sense, understand κολακεία as the predicate. —— συγκατατίθεσαι. The word means properly, to drop one's vote in the same vessel with another person, as a judge in the court. ἡμῖν is ironical, as he had compelled Gorgias and Polus to agree with him.

D. οὐκ, ἀλλὰ καί. οὐκ denies the previous negative proposition. —— χαρίζεσθαι ἔστι, i. e. ἔξεστι.

E. τοιαύτη τις . . . διώκειν. The infinitive explains the demonstrative, and depends on δοκεῖ repeated. —— ἄλλο οὐδὲν φροντίζειν. This verb sometimes takes a genitive, and sometimes an accusative. Soph. § 182. N. 1. —— ἡ κιθαριστικὴ ἡ ἐν ἀγῶσι. Plato condemned all music on the flute, as tending to render the young unmanly, and fond of pleasure. He was, however, for retaining the lyre and harp in education, but disapproved of some of the occasions where they were used, such as the public contests of choruses, dramatic or dithyrambic, thinking that pleasure and not good was their object, and that they tended to agitate and not to calm the soul. Comp.

Repub. 3, p. 398 – 403. —— ἡ τῶν χορῶν διδασκαλία, the exhibition of choruses, so called because the instruction of the chorus was the principal preparative. The chorus in dithyrambic poetry is especially intended. —— Κιννησίας of Thebes, so called, it is said, because ἐν τοῖς χοροῖς ἐχρῆτο πολλῇ κινήσει. He was much laughed at for his poetry by the comedians (Aristoph. Birds 1377 and Schol.), and attacked by the orators on account of his character (Lysias in Athenæus 551, 552).

502 A. τί δὲ . . . Μέλης; i. e. ἐδόκει σοι, as above τί ἡ διδασκαλία καὶ ποίησις; i. e. καταφαίνεταί σοι. A little below, τί δὲ δὴ ἡ σεμνὴ, etc., the construction is different, namely, τί δὲ δή ἐστι τοῦτο ἐφ' ᾧ ἐσπούδακε ἡ σεμνή, etc. What is said here is a mere passing fling at Meles on account of the badness of his odes.

B. ἡ . . . θαυμαστή, ἡ τῆς τραγῳδίας ποίησις. The ordinary collocation, as Stallb. remarks, would be, ἡ θαυμαστὴ ποίησις, ἡ τῆς τραγῳδίας. He cites Herodot. 7. 196, ὁ ναυτικὸς ὁ τῶν βαρβάρων στρατός. —— διαμάχεσθαι . . . ὅπως μὴ ἐρεῖ. Is its aim . . . to insist upon it . . . that it will not say, etc. —— εἰ δέ τι τυγχάνει ἀηδές. For ὄν omitted, comp. Soph. Electr. 313. —— ποτέρως . . . παρεσκευάσθαι, utro modo tibi videtur comparata esse. For Plato's view of tragedy, comp. Repub. 8, p. 568, C., 2. 378, seq., and a noble passage, Leges. 7. 817. Another admirable passage treats of the corruption of tragedy by popular influence. Leges. 2. 659.

C. εἴ τις περιέλοιτο. Aristides, in opposing this passage, and the Schol. have περιέλοι, which Coray and Stallb. prefer. Ast, in defending the text, says, that εἰ περιέλοι denotes if one were to strip off, εἰ περιέλοιτο, if one were to strip off for himself, i. e. in his own mind to conceive of it as stripped off. —— ἄλλο τι ἢ λόγοι γίγνονται. The verb is attracted in number to the predicate λόγοι.

D. οὐκοῦν . . . ἂν εἴη, It (tragedy) would be then a rhetorical species of popular speaking. —— δῆμον τοιοῦτον οἷον παίδων, i. e. to a people (or audience) composed of boys, etc. The grammatical construction, which would be οἷός ἐστι (δῆμος) παίδων, is forsaken through a singular kind of attraction, by which οἷος, ὅσος, ἡλίκος, with the noun or adjective they accompany, adopt the case of the antecedent. It has been inferred from this, and a few other passages of Plato, that women attended the theatre at Athens. Comp. Leges 2. 658, D., 7. 817, C.

A. οὐχ ἁπλοῦν, etc. = τοῦτο ὃ ἐρωτᾷς οὐκέτι ἐστὶν ἁπλοῦν, 503
i. e. does not admit of a simple answer. —— διαμάχεσθαι λέγοντα, to persist in saying, or steadily to say.

B. τί οὐχὶ . . . αὐτὸν ἔφρασας. Mt. § 503, c., says, "after τί οὐ an aorist often follows, where we should have looked for a present." A degree of urgency is contained in this mode of speaking. It may be explained by the practice of expressing a wish by means of an interrogative sentence. "Why did you not tell me?" = "I wish you had already told me," and by implication, "tell me at once." —— αἰτίαν ἔχουσιν, have it ascribed to them that, here in a good sense.

C. οὔκ ἀκούεις. Præsens hujus verbi de durante fama, — perpetuo ponitur. Stallb. i. e. it is used of something which is said and may be heard until now. Comp. the editor's note on Prometh. 683 (ed. sec.). —— νεωστί, about twenty-three years before. —— οὗ καὶ ἀκήκοας. See 455, E. For Plato's opinion of Pericles, see the Introduction. —— εἰ ἔστι γε . . . ἦν σὺ ἔλεγες ἀρετήν, ἀληθής. Comp. for ἀρετήν, Soph. § 151. Rem. 6. The apodosis of this sentence, which might be "they are good men," is omitted. "When a proposition with εἰ μέν, or ἦν μέν, has another with εἰ δέ opposed to it, the apodosis is often suppressed in one of the two." Mt. § 617. In the ensuing clause, the predicate, ἐστὶν ἀληθές, is left out, and ὅτι before the infinitive is redundant. Examples are given by Heindorf, on Phædo 63, C. ὅτι was used as though δεῖ ἀποτελεῖν was to follow; but when Plato came to that part of the sentence, he accommodated ἀποτελεῖν to εἰ δὲ μὴ τοῦτο: "if this, viz. ἀποπιμπλάναι, is not virtue, but this, viz. ἀποτελεῖν, etc., is so."

D. τοῦτο δὲ τέχνη τις εἶναι. The nominative here is used by anacoluthon, as if, instead of ἠναγκάσθημεν ὁμολογεῖν, Plato had written ὡμολογήθη. —— οὕτωσὶν ἀτρέμα, quite calmly, or pretty calmly. οὕτως, like sic in Latin, throws into the adverb before which it stands a certain modification of its meaning, which cannot be easily expressed. Comp. Eurip. Alcest. 680 for an analogous use of οὕτως with verbs.

E. ὥσπερ καὶ οἱ ἄλλοι, etc. ἄλλοι is used here as in 473, C. The verb προφέρει leaves the number of δημιουργοί, through the influence of ἕκαστος, which is added in apposition to that noun. Comp. Mt. § 302, Obs. —— οἷον εἰ βούλει ἰδεῖν. In this sentence the apodosis is omitted. One can supply in thought ῥᾳδίως τοῦτο ὄψει. But the true account of the sentence is, that the apodosis should have begun at ὡς εἰς τάξιν ("if you wish to look at painters, etc., — you will see that, etc."), but by a change of style the clause ὡς εἰς τάξιν is made to depend on ἰδεῖν; and the apodosis is forgotten, under the impression that an imperative, ἴδε instead of εἰ βούλει ἰδεῖν, had commenced the sentence.

504 B. καὶ μὴν καὶ τὰ σώματά φαμεν, i. e. τάξεως τυχόντα χρηστὰ εἶναι.

C. εἰπεῖν ὥσπερ ἐκείνῳ τὸ ὄνομα, to mention the name for it, as you did for that. In the MSS. ἐκεῖνο stands, which, if genuine, is put briefly for ἐκείνου τὸ ὄνομα.

E. ἢ ἄλλο ὁτιοῦν, etc., or any thing else which sometimes will not be of more use to it (the body) than the contrary (i. e. abstinence from such gratifications will be) according to a right view of the case; — nay, even of less. So this clause must be rendered as it stands. But I am persuaded, notwithstanding what Stallb. says, that ἤ ought to be inserted before κατά, as Heindorf proposes, or γε turned into δέ. For since γε shows that the clause κατὰ . . . λόγον relates to the foregoing, καὶ ἔλαττον stands quite by itself; and the asyndeton (καὶ being etiam) is intolerable.

B. οὐκοῦν . . . κολάζειν. ἀφ' ὧν ἐπιθυμεῖ belongs to 505 εἴργειν.

C. οὗτος ἀνήρ. See 467, B. —— κολαζόμενος is obviously in apposition with πάσχων; but we might have also had κολάζεσθαι in apposition with τοῦτο. According to Aristotle on Rhet. 1. 10. 17, cited by Stallb., κολάζειν (to chastise, correct, lit. to cut off, prune) differs from τιμωρεῖσθαι (to take satisfaction from, punish,) in this; that the former takes place for the sake of the sufferer, the latter for that of the doer. —— μεταξὺ τὸν λόγον καταλύομεν, are we ending the discourse in the middle. Some inferior MSS. have καταλύσομεν, are we going to end, and some καταλύωμεν, which (or rather καταλύσωμεν, as the action is momentary) would be shall we end. The present denotes that they are doing that which is equivalent to stopping, or that they are beginning to stop. —— αὐτὸς γνώσει, you yourself must judge, i. e. I wish to stop, but leave it to you.

D. θέμις. This word, being here an accusative, must be indeclinable. Of this use few will doubt, after reading what Elmsley and Hermann (Soph. Œd. Col. 1191), and Buttmann (largest Gram. 1. § 58, and 2. p. 405) have written. The other examples occur in Œd. Col. u. s., Xen. Œcon. 11. 11, and Æsch. Suppl. 331. In Æsch. Choeph. 632, it is a neuter nominative. No phrases are found besides θέμις ἐστί, θέμις εἶναι. This is a strange but not a solitary anomaly. Comp. χρεών, δεῖνα sometimes indeclinable, κρᾶτα in Sophocles nominative and accusative. —— περιίῃ, sc. ὁ μῦθος. The style changes from the plural to the singular. Comp. for the expression, Leges 6. 752, A., οὔκουν . . . ἂν μῦθον ἀκέφαλον καταλίποιμι, πλανώμενος γὰρ ἂν ἅπάντη τοιοῦτος ὢν ἄμορφος φαίνοιτο.

E. τὸ τοῦ Ἐπιχάρμου. Athenæus (7. 308, C., and 8. 362, D.) gives his words in a trochaic tetrameter, τὰ πρὸ τοῦ δύ' ἄνδρες ἔλεγον εἰς ἐγὼν ἀποχρέω. —— ἀναγκαιότατον εἶναι οὕτως. Supplent ποιεῖν ellipsi inaudita. Equidem οὕτως interpretor: in hoc rerum statu, quum tu nolis amplius mecum colloqui. Stallb. οὕτως seems to me to be loosely used for τοῦτο. Comp. Soph. Antig. 706, ὡς φῂς σὺ — τοῦτ' ὀρθῶς ἔχειν, for ὃ φῂς σύ.

506 A. οὐδὲ γὰρ . . . εἰδὼς λέγω. Socrates often places himself in the attitude of a searcher after truth, unable of himself to find it, and hoping that others know where it is.

B. ἕως . . . Ζήθου, till I had given him back the speech of Amphion for that of Zethus, i. e. until I had defended philosophy from his attack. See 485, E. ἕως with an imperfect or aorist indicative accompanies another clause containing the same tenses with ἄν, when a res non facta is spoken of.

C. ἀχθευθήσομαι. This form is condemned by Mœris as un-Attic, but is found several times in Attic writers, where, however, it may have come from the scribes. ἀχθέσομαι is the approved form. —— εὐεργέτης . . . ἀναγεγράψει, an allusion to the honorary votes recorded on marbles, in favor of foreigners who had rendered Athens a service. —— λέγε αὐτός. αὐτός is by yourself, without another speaker, and so in σοῦ αὐτοῖ διόντος above.

D. οὐ τῷ εἰκῇ. An elegant and certain emendation of Stallb. (ed. sec.) for οὐχ οὕτως εἰκῇ. For the latter, see 503, D. —— κάλλιστα παραγίγνεται. One would expect καλλίστη. Coray wishes to strike out the word; Heindorf to read μάλιστα. The sense is, attends upon it, or is present most beautifully, i. e. is present in its greatest beauty, or highest perfection.

A. ἦν δὲ αὕτη, i. e. now this we found to be. ἦν points 507 to the time when such a soul was (subjectively to them, i. e. appeared to be) ἄφρων, etc.

B. ἃ δεῖ . . . φεύγειν καὶ διώκειν. With the definition of the σώφρων ἀνήρ here given, Routh compares Aristotle's in the Eth. Nicom. 3, sub fin.: ἐπιθυμεῖ ὁ σώφρων ὧν δεῖ καὶ ὡς δεῖ καὶ ὅτε.

C. τὸν δ' εὖ πράττοντα . . . εὐδαίμονα εἶναι. Plato passes in this same way from εὖ πράττειν to εὐδαίμονα εἶναι in Repub. 1. 353, E., Charmides 172, A., Alcibiad. 1. 116, B. As εὖ πράττειν has the two senses of acting well, and being prosperous, Plato may seem to have unfairly used this ambiguity in his argument. So Heindorf and Stallb. view the passage. Routh, on the contrary, says, "Vult philosophus consequens esse necessario ex antecedentibus eum qui recte agit felicem esse. Vix enim potest credi ut Plato duplici sensu verborum εὖ πράττειν ad argumentum probandum abuti vellet." Finally Ast, after Schleierm., correctly, as I think, observes, that Plato "in his conclusionem non ducit ex ambiguo, — sed usum loquendi cogitandus est in rem suam convertere, eumque quodammodo corrigere voluisse, ex ea enim quam posuit ratione, — nisi bonum quod est, nihil est prosperum ac beatum."

D. βουλόμενον εὐδαίμονα εἶναι . . . διωκτέον. The subject of the action of a verbal may be in the accusative or in the dative. —— ὡς ἔχει ποδῶν = ὡς τάχιστα. Comp. Soph. § 188. N. —— παρασκευαστέον is the verbal of the middle voice here, = δεῖ παρασκευάσασθαι. Mt. § 447. 2. —— ἰδιώτης (when opposed to the state), an individual. —— In the next sentence, εἰς τοῦτο refers to ὅπως . . . ἔσεσθαι, and οὕτω πράττειν to συντείνοντα and what follows it.

E. ἀνήνυτον κακόν, an endless or cureless evil, is in apposition with the participial clause preceding it, and in the accusative. Soph. § 167. N. 4. —— φασὶ δ' οἱ σοφοὶ, etc. The allusion is more particularly to Empedocles, who made φιλία and νεῖκος fundamental causes in his world of phenomena; the former, or the attracting principle, the cause of union among things unlike, of organization and of motion when one is made out of many, and the latter or the dissolving principle the cause of separation. He is the Agrigentine who taught in verse, that "quæ in rerum natura constarent, quæque moverentur, ea contrahere amicitiam, dissipare concordiam." Cic. de Amicit. 7. His causes for the phenomena of the world were physical; and Socrates here gives playfully a moral turn to his doctrine.

508 A. τὸ ὅλον τοῦτο . . . κόσμον καλοῦσι. The universe owed the name κόσμος, order, system, to Pythagoras. Comp. Xen. Mem. I. 1. 11, ὃ καλούμενος ὑπὸ τῶν σοφιστῶν κόσμος, which shows that even then the appellation had not become very current. —— ἡ ἰσότης ἡ γεωμετρική. Geometrical equality is that of ratios, arithmetical, of numbers. It exists figuratively in morals and politics, when the receipts of one are to his claims as those of another to his, i. e. when justice prevails and assigns to each according to his due, and not according to his power of receiving. But πλεονεξία or selfishness disturbs and destroys this kind of equality. In the state, this equality takes power from the bad, i. e. from the unjust and ignorant, and gives it to the wise and virtuous, because it is right that only they should govern who can govern well.

There is a noble passage on the two equalities in the Leges 6, p. 757, B., cited by Routh.

B. ἐξελεγκτέος . . . ὡς. See 467, A., note. —— κακίας δὲ οἱ ἄθλιοι. The predicate ἄθλιοι is omitted. See 470, A. It is the more easily omitted here, because the preceding words, εὐδαίμονες οἱ εὐδαίμονες, clearly indicate the construction. Stallb. has added ἄθλιοι, without authority or sufficient reason. —— τί τὰ συμβαίνοντα. This use of τί in the predicate with a plural subject is not uncommon. Comp. Æschin. c. Ctes., ἀπόδειξιν ποιῆσαι τί ποτ' ἦν ἃ ἔπραξας, καὶ τί ποτ' ἦν ἃ ἔλεγες. (§ 165, Bekker.) The same formula is repeated just below, τί ποτ' ἐστὶν ἃ . . . ὀνειδίζεις.

D. εἰμὶ δὲ ἐπὶ τῷ βουλομένῳ, etc. And that I am in the power of any one who has the will, as those punished by civil infamy are in any one's hand who wishes it (lit. belong to any one). There were three kinds of civil infamy at Athens, and they are particularly described by Andocides (p. 35, Reiske). The lowest consisted in a deprivation of certain particular rights, as that of bringing an action as a public accuser. The next involved the taking away of all civil rights; and to this the highest added confiscation. As in the two latter kinds, the person affected with ἀτιμία could not appear in court as a prosecutor or a witness, or complain of his wrongs before the people, he was plainly in the power of his enemies. —— νεανικὸν denotes high-spirited, or rather overbearing. The clause is in apposition with τύπτειν ἐπὶ κόῤῥης. Comp. 507, E. The same is true of τὸ ἔσχατον, as it respects ἀποκτεῖναι. Socrates refers to 486, A. – C.

E. τέμνεσθαι, when taken with σῶμα, is in frusta dissecari.

A. καὶ εἰ ἀγροικότερον . . . ἐστι. These words are used 509 to excuse the confidence and want of deference to others, which Socrates here displays. Comp. 462, E., 486, C. In the latter passage we have εἰ καὶ ἀ., and here καὶ εἰ ἀ. According to Herm. (on Viger, note 307), referred to by Stallb., καὶ εἰ, etiam si, is used concerning that which we only assume as true; εἰ καί, quamquam, concerning that which we declare to be true. Socrates, then, does not here admit that his expression is impolite; but in 486, C., Callicles acknowledges by εἰ καί his trespass against the rules of good breeding. —— οὕτωσὶν ut Latinorum sic est primo aspectu. Ast.

B. τίνα ἂν βοήθειαν, etc. By his inability to afford what kind of aid to himself would a man be in truth ridiculous. This alludes to 486, B., μήτε αὐτὸν αὑτῷ δυνάμενον βοηθεῖν. —— ταύτην εἶναι τὴν αἰσχίστην βοήθειαν μὴ δύνασθαι βοηθεῖν is for αἴσχιστον εἶναι ταύτην τὴν βοήθειαν μὴ δύνασθαι βοηθεῖν, that it is most disgraceful not to be able to render this assistance, etc. (viz. this assistance which will avert the greatest evil). With this very strange instance of attraction, if it be such, we may compare the expression in our own language which Routh adduces, this is the most shameful thing to be without, for it is most shameful to be without this thing.

C. τὴν τοῦ δευτέρου κακοῦ, sc. βοήθειαν, and that the aid given to prevent the evil next in magnitude is second (second in shame if inadequate, and in honor if adequate; for this latter is implied). βοήθεια κακῶν is like ἀλκὴ κακῶν in Euripides. —— καὶ τἆλλα οὕτως, sc. εἶναι, not ἔχει, which Stallb. supplies.

D. ἀδικήσεται. See Soph. § 207. N. 6. —— τί δὲ δὴ τοῦ ἀδικεῖν, well, but what about doing wrong? This genitive without a preposition may be compared with that which accompanies verbs of speaking. Comp. Soph. Electr. 317.

E. τί οὐκ . . . ἀπεκρίνω. See 503, B., note. The imperfect ἀπεκρίνου is in most MSS.; but in this formula the aorist is always used. —— μηδένα βουλόμενον ἀδικεῖν. See 468, C., and the Introduction.

A. ὅπως μὴ ἀδικήσωμεν. See 480, A., note. 510

B. φίλος μοι δοκεῖ, etc. Here ὅνπερ refers forward to ὁ ὅμοιος, and ὡς οἷόν τε μάλιστα is taken with φίλος. οἱ παλαιοί τε καὶ σοφοὶ alludes especially to Hom. Odys. 17. 218, ὡς αἰεὶ τὸν ὅμοιον ἄγει θεὸς ὡς τὸν ὅμοιον. The thought is found also in Sympos. 195, B., ὁ γὰρ παλαιὸς λόγος εὖ ἔχει, ὡς ὅμοιος ὁμοίῳ ἀεὶ πελάζει, and in Lysis 214, where it is said that the bad, being unlike themselves, that is, variable and unstable, cannot be friends. Comp. also Laws 716, C., τῷ ὁμοίῳ τὸ ὅμοιον ὄντι μετρίῳ φίλον ἂν εἴη, τὰ δ' ἄμετρα οὐτ' ἀλλήλοις οὔτε τοῖς ἐμμέτροις.

C. δύναιτο φίλος γενέσθαι. Repentina subjecti mutatio, says Stallb. This may be, but it is possible also that φίλος may be used here actively (fond of, friendly to), and with οὐδ' ἂν οὗτος just below passively (beloved by, dear to), in which case there would be no change of person here. So Ast. —— ἐν ταύτῃ τῇ πόλει. See 468, E., note.

D. χαίρων, impune, the opposite of κλαίων, passim apud dramaticos. And so gaudens is used in Latin. —— αὕτη . . . ὁδός ἐστιν. αὕτη, the subject of ἐστι, refers to ἐθίζειν, but is attracted, as often happens, in gender, to the predicate ὁδός.

E. ἔσται ἐπὶ τὸ οἵῳ τε εἶναι, will be in favor of, or will tend to his being able. Here the construction of the dative with the infinitive is followed by that of the accusative. See 492, B.

B. οὐκοῦν . . . ἀγανακτητόν; Well, then, is not this just 511 the thing to rouse indignation?

D. προσεσταλμένη, simple, properly spoken of garments, drawn close to the body, in contrast to a garment which spreads out with numerous folds and plaits. —— ἀλλὰ ταὐτὰ διαπραξαμένη, etc. But when it has effected the same things with the forensic art, it charges, I presume, but two obols if it has brought a man safe from Ægina hither; and if from Egypt or the Pontus, — though it should ask very high for this great benefit, when it has conveyed in safety what I just now spoke of, the man himself, and his children, and property, and women; having landed them in the port, it demands but two drachms. Ast and Coray wish to change the order in this sentence. I see not why; for it is not more broken than often happens in earnest conversation. ἐπράξατο is the aorist of indefinite time. With ἐὰν πάμπολυ, supply πράττηται.

512 A. λογίζεται οὖν ὅτι οὐκ, etc. Here οὐκ belongs to βιωτέον ἐστὶ καὶ ὀνήσειεν, which is the primary clause. But the sentence assumes an antithetical structure, the clauses εἰ μέν τις, . . . εἰ δέ τις, and οὗτος μέν, τούτῳ δὲ being paired off against one another. On this form of sentences, Mt. § 622. 4, remarks, that "clauses are put in contrast with one another by means of μὲν and δέ, of which only the second clause suits the connexion, while the first in other languages would be treated as a parenthesis." Preserving the Greek order and form nearly, we may translate: "he reflects that it cannot be (οὐκ), if a man afflicted with great and incurable diseases, and saved from drowning by him, is miserable because he lost not his life, that he on the other hand ought to live, who has many incurable maladies in that which is more precious than the body, the soul, and that he (the person so reflecting) will do him good if he deliver him from the dangers of the sea, or the tribunal, or any other place. Nay, he knows," etc. The use of the optative ὀνήσειεν is to me at least perplexing. Stallb. renders it, with its attendant words, neque a se ullo modo juvari posse, and then in defence of it refers to Mt. § 529, on the oratio obliqua. But if I am not deceived, such a form as λογίζεται (being a present not equivalent to a historical tense) ὅτι οὐκ ὀνήσειεν would not be Greek, and if it were, must mean, not can benefit, but probably benefits. Heindorf conjectured ὀνήσειεν ἄν, can (not) do him good, which in some degree removes the difficulty. I beg leave to offer an opposite conjecture, ὀνήσει, on the supposition that the final syllable εν may owe its birth to ἄν wrongly repeated.

B. οὐ νόμος ἐστί, it is not the custom. —— μὴ ὅτι κυβερνήτου, i. e. μὴ εἴπῃς ὅτι, not to say, or to pass by the pilot, who is not mentioned in order to select a stronger case, that of the general. Comp. οὐχ ὅτι, 450, E., note. —— ἐλάττω σώζειν = ἐλάττονα σωτηρίαν πορίζειν, or ἀπεργάζεσθαι. —— μή σοι δοκεῖ κατὰ τὸν δικανικὸν εἶναι; does he seem to you to be on a level with (and not rather above) the forensic man? Comp. Repub. 466, B., μή πῃ κατὰ τὸν τῶν σκυτοτόμων φαίνεται βίον; does it seem to you to rank with the shoemaker's kind of life?

C. λέγων καὶ παρακαλῶν ἐπὶ τὸ δεῖν. Briefly for λέγων δεῖν, καὶ παρακαλῶν ἐπὶ τὸ δεῖν. —— ὡς οὐδὲν τἆλλά ἐστιν, on the ground that every thing else is of no value (in comparison with engineering). —— ἀποκαλέσαις. This compound of καλέω, as Stallb. remarks, is often used when a name is given in anger or contempt, = to call by a nickname, to call contemptuously, or with a scornful air. Examples may be found in Æschin. c. Ctes., and in Reiske's index to Demosth. —— ἐξ ὧν τὰ σαυτοῦ ἐπαινεῖς = ἐκ τῶν ἐπαίνων οὓς τὴν σαυτοῦ τέχνην ἐπαινεῖς.

D. μὴ γὰρ τοῦτο . . . ἐατέον ἐστί. μὴ denoting suspicion that something is true, or mild expression of opinion may be joined with an indicative; and the like may be said of ὅρα μὴ also. Comp. Soph. Electr. 581, 584, (where τίθης, and not τιθῇς, is supported by the MSS.), Alcibiad. 2. 139, D., ἀλλ' ὅρα μὴ οὐχ οὕτω ταῦτα ἔχει. μὴ may here be translated by perhaps, or I suspect. The sense is, I suspect that a man deserving the name ought to throw away the idea of living as long as ever he can, and not love his life too well; and yielding the disposal of all such things to the deity, as well as believing what the women say, that no one, whosoever he be, can escape his destiny, that he ought to consider thereupon how he can best live during the life which he is probably about to live, etc. A fine parallel passage occurs in Leges 2. 661, C. ἐπιτρέπειν, in the sense of committing or referring to, and of giving up to, takes a dative of a person often with a genitive with περί. Æschin. c. Ctes. § 83, εἰ ἐπιτρέπειν ἐθέλοι πόλει τινὶ ἴσῃ καὶ ὁμοίᾳ περὶ τῶν ἐγκλημάτων, if he wished to refer the grounds of complaint to some impartial and disinterested state. Alcibiad. 1. 117, D., τῷ κυβερνήτῃ ἐπιτρέψας ἂν ἡσυχίαν ἔχοις; would you let the pilot have his own way, and be quiet? For οὐδ' εἷς, more emphatic than οὐδείς, comp. Eurip. Alcest. 671 (note in my ed.).

513 A. καὶ νῦν δὲ ἄρα δεῖ depends on σκεπτέον ἆρα. —— τὰς τὴν σελήνην καθαιρούσας. The Thessalian sorceresses, who drew down the moon by their incantations, drew down mischief also upon themselves. They lost, it was thought, their eyes or their children, to which last τοῖς φιλτάτοις alludes. Even an astrologer, in predicting an eclipse of the moon, which was akin, in the minds of the vulgar, to magical arts, was supposed to incur calamity. Hence ἐπὶ σαυτῷ σελήνην καθαίρεις, or καθέλκεις, is used proverbially of those who draw down calamities upon themselves by their conduct. The next words, σὺν τοῖς φιλτάτοις, must mean with the loss of what we hold most dear, i. e. as Socrates estimates things, of virtue and truth. σὺν here properly denotes the means, and it is only by inference from the connexion, that the phrase can imply the loss of. The preposition, as Stallb. observes, seems to be chosen with allusion to Iliad 4. 161, σύν τε μεγάλῳ ἀπέτισαν | σὺν σφῇσιν κεφαλῇσι γυναιξί τε καὶ τεκέεσσι.

B. ἐν τῇ πόλει τῇδε, i. e. in Athens. See 469, D., and 468, E., note. —— ἀνόμοιον . . . χεῖρον, so long as you are unlike the political institutions either on the better side or on the worse, i. e. so long as you are not assimilated exactly to the democracy of Athens, but are either like the true philosopher, in favor of better institutions, under which knowledge and virtue, and not the popular will, shall govern, and resemble such institutions in your character; or, on the other hand, have the selfish spirit in the extreme, like the tyrant who first corrupts, and then destroys, popular liberty. Thus, I suppose, the politics of Plato, as set forth in the Republic and Laws, require us to understand these words. —— τι γνήσιον ἀπεργάζεσθαι, etc., to effect any genuine, or real result in regard to obtaining the friendship of the Athenian people, i. e. to be on terms of true friendship with Athens. δήμῳ depends on φιλίαν. For τῷ Πυριλάμπους, see 481, D. —— ὡς ἐπιθυμεῖς πολιτικὸς εἶναι. Ast, after one MS., omits πολιτικός, but Stallb. justly says of it, iteratur non sine vi et gravitate. There is, as it seems to me, even something of scorn in the emphatical repetition of the word. ὡς is since, seeing that; not as, i. e. according to (your wishes).

E. ἡ δέ γε ἕτερα . . . ὅπως. Supply ὁμιλεῖ, as ὁμιλοῦσα is understood just above with ἢ πρὸς ἡδονήν. —— ἐπιχειρητέον . . . θεραπεύειν. The infinitive is added epexegetically, and the datives depend on the verbal. Comp. Soph. Electr. 543, 1277. For the construction of ποιοῦντας, see 492, B., note. It is without a copula as explaining οὕτως, and ὡς is taken with βελτίστους only.

A. ἐὰν μὴ . . . ἡντινοῦν, explains and defines ἄνευ τού- 514
του. Comp. a similar apposition of a clause beginning with ἐὰν μὴ in Soph. Antig. 87. —— δημοσίᾳ πράξαντες τῶν πολιτικῶν πραγμάτων, after we had engaged in a public capacity in any transactions of the state. The genitive is taken partitively. Soph. § 178. 1. The words πολιτικῶν πραγμάτων denote any employment in the state's service, as that of an ἐργολάβος, or contractor, like Phidias, and of an ἀρχιτέκτων, like Ictinus, the builder of the Parthenon.

B. εἰ ἐπιστάμεθα, and a little below, εἰ ᾠκοδομήκαμεν. After would it be incumbent on us to examine, we should add in English, whether we knew εἰ ἠπιστάμεθα, relative to ἔδει ἄν, and not εἰ ἐπιστάμεθα, which is absolute: and so whether we had builded (in the pluperfect), not whether we have builded. But the Greeks, in many kinds of dependent clauses, preferred the absolute to the relative form, as here. The cause of this lay in their liveliness of mind, which made the past present and the possible real, and led them to the use of oratio recta. —— For εὑρίσκομεν (imperfect), see Soph. § 80. N. 4. The Atticists and MSS. vary in regard to the augment of verbs beginning with ευ. The earlier practice seems to have been, to leave the diphthong unchanged. Mt. § 167. 6. Below, 514, E., two of the best MSS. give ηὑρίσκομεν.

C. ἰδίᾳ . . . ἡμῶν. According to Ast, ἡμῶν depends on ἰδίᾳ, which would alone express the idea, were not ἡμῶν wanted for the contrast with μετὰ τῶν διδασκάλων. Those who would reject such an expression as ἰδίᾳ ἡμῶν, which needs the support of parallel examples, must read with Stallb., after one MSS., ἰδίᾳ ὑφ' ἡμῶν. —— οὕτω μὲν διακειμένων, etc. It would be the part of prudent men, if so situated, to engage in public works. Here ἦν has ἄν, but just below is without it. I think, with Ast, that although ἦν is often used without ἄν (see Mt. § 508, Obs. 2), yet here the influence of ἄν can extend to the second ἦν.

D. A very similar passage may be found in Laches 186, B., C. In the first sentence, ἄν belongs to ἐπεσκεψά- μεθα, which verb is taken with πάντα . . . ἄλλα, as well as with εἰ παρεκαλοῦμεν. The aorist, with ἄν following the imperfect, here denotes transitory action referrible to present time (if we were urging . . . we would examine: see Hermann de partic. ἄν, 1. 10), or possibly, (since we have ἐσκόπουν just below,) there may be an inaccuracy of style, like that of using the potential pluperfect for the imperfect, — would have for would. Comp. 447, D., for the opposite use of the imperfect (εἰ ἐτύγχανεν ὤν . . . ἀπεκρίνατο), in speaking of something continuing in past time. Some would read ἐπισκεπτόμεθα here, but it is scarcely Attic. See 476, A., note.

E. ἀνθρώπους . . . ἐτύχομεν. The style passes freely from the first person plural, as a representative of a general truth, to the third, and then back again. There is no reason why we should suspect ἀνθρώπους, or read ἔτυχον. —— ὅπως ἐτύχομεν, = in an ordinary way, as we could, utcunque. —— τὸ λεγόμενον δὴ τοῦτο. See 447, A. δὴ is just or even. —— ἐν τῷ πίθῳ, etc., to try to learn the potter's art by beginning with the tub, — the largest vessel, and therefore the hardest to make. This proverb occurs again in Laches 187, B., in company with its opposite, ἐν τῷ Καρὶ ἡμῖν ὁ κίνδυνος, i. e. to risk what you value least, attempt what you can best afford to fail in; which refers to the Carian mercenaries in war, whose blood was less precious than their employer's.

B. σὸν ἰδιωτεύοντος. Soph. § 174. 515

D. For what is here said of "the four," see the Introduction.

E. ἀκούω. See 503, C. —— εἰς μισθοφορίαν . . . καταστήσαντα, by being the first to bring them into the practice of taking pay for performing their political duties. Pericles introduced the practice of paying the judges. The pay was one obolus per diem at first, and then three.

After the death of Pericles, the people also drew pay for attending in the assembly. All this is explained at large in that admirable book, Boeckh's Civil Economy of Athens, Book II. §§ 14, 15. —— τῶν τὰ ὦτα κατεαγότων. See 469, D. This phrase is explained fully by Protag. 342, B. "The Lacedæmonians," Socrates there says, "conceal their philosophy, and thus deceive those in other states who affect Spartan manners, and who, in imitation of them, have their ears bruised by blows received in boxing, (ὦτα κατάγνυνται μιμούμενοι αὐτούς,) and bind the cæstus round their hands and study gymnastics, and wear short tunics, just as though the Lacedæmonians surpassed the rest of Greece by such means." The phrase, then, denotes the partisans of Sparta, those who admire Spartan institutions, and are ill-affected towards Athens.

516 A. χιλιὴν αὐτοῦ κατεψηφίσαντο. Thucyd. merely says (2. 65) χρήμασιν ἐζημίωσαν. Plutarch mentions an accusation and a fine (Vit. Pericl. § 35), as does Diodorus also (12. 45); but it was no doubt false: he was χρημάτων διαφανῶς ἀδωρότατος by the testimony of the most impartial of historians. See Appendix. —— ὅτων ἐπιμελητής. Comp. Xen. Memorab. I. 2. 32, for a similar passage. —— ἀπέδειξε . . . ποιοῦντας, if he had caused them to do. This verb and ἀποφαίνω are often used in the sense of causing something to appear, of effecting, rendering, and, like φαίνω, δείκνυμι, take their complement in the form of a participle.

B. καὶ τόδε . . . χάρισαι. There is a similar play upon χαρίζομαι in Repub. 1. 351, C., σοὶ γάρ, ἔφη, χαρίζομαι. Εὖ γε σὺ ποιῶν· ἀλλὰ δὴ καὶ τόδε μοι χάρισαι καὶ λέγε.

C. ὡς ἔφη Ὅμηρος. Nusquam disertis verbis hoc dictum in eo quem hodie habemus Homero, nisi quis huc trahere velit quod Routhius fecit Odyss. 6. 120, 9. 175, ἦ ῥ' οἵγ' ὑβρισταί τε καὶ ἄγριοι, οὐδὲ δίκαιοι. Heindorf. Plato puts the ἀγαθοὶ and ἥμεροι together, in Repub. 5.

470, E., and makes τὸ ἥμερον a part of the philosophic nature in Repub. 3. 410, E. —— ὃν ἥκιστ' ἂν ἐβούλετο, i. e. εἰς ὅν.

D. What is here said of Cimon and Themistocles is well known. What is said of Miltiades rests on the authority of Plato, and of the Scholiast on Aristides 3. 677, Dindorf, whom Valck. on Herodot. 6. 136, first cited from the MS. The Scholiast says ὅτε ἐκρίνετο ἐπὶ τῇ Πάρῳ (i. e. on account of his fruitless attack upon the island of Paros soon after the battle of Marathon), ἠθέλησαν αὐτὸν καταχρημνῆσαι, ὁ δὲ πρύτανις εἰσελθὼν ἐξητήσατο αὐτόν. By this information, we are enabled to reconcile Plato with Herodot. u. s. It was on the day of the trial, that the prytanis, or the epistates, came into court as one of the friends of Miltiades, (of whose advocacy Herodot. speaks,) and by his intercessions led the judges to lower the penalty from death to a heavy fine. But for that, death, by being thrown into the pit, would have been his portion. —— τὸν ἐν Μαραθῶνι, him who was at Marathon, the general there. ἐν is used because the action was "in Marathonio agro." See Soph. Electr. 1. —— τὸ βάραθρον is defined by Timæus (Lex. Platon. s. v.), "a place like a well, where the condemned were thrown," and in Bekker's Anecdot. 1. 219, is said to be "an excavation in Keiriadæ, a demus of the Œneid tribe, where they threw down the capitally condemned, as the Lacedæmonians did into Kæadas." Herodot. 7. 133, says, that the heralds of Darius were thrown by the Athenians into this place. Comp. Aristoph. Clouds 1450, and the Schol. on Aristoph. Plut. 431.

E. οὔκουν οἵ γε ἀγαθοὶ ἡνίοχοι, etc. This sentence is formed like that explained in the note on 512, A. The sense is, it is not true that good drivers are not at first thrown from their chariots, but when they have tended their horses, and have become better drivers themselves, that they are then thrown out. Ζεῦγος is often used of the vehicle, as well as of the yoke or pair of animals drawing it.

517 A. τῶν μέντοι ἔμπροσθεν. Here, by a kind of zeugma, ἔλεγες, readily suggested by ὁμολόγεις, is to be supplied, together with τινας, which is contained in οὐδένα. See Soph. Antig. 29. —— οὐ γὰρ ἂν ἐξέπεσον. The metaphor is borrowed from charioteers, and is the more natural, as persons who lost their rank or authority were said ἐκπεσεῖν. Comp. Soph. Antig. 679. —— οὔτε τῇ κολακικῇ. If they had used the true art of rhetoric, that is, had been good politicians, they would have made the people better and not have had to rue its ingratitude: if the flattering art of rhetoric, they would have escaped from dangers, because that art, according to the Sophists, σώζει ἐκ τῶν μεγίστων κινδύνων μάλιστα μὲν ἑαυτόν. Aristides triumphs in a supposed inconsistency of Plato, who had before called "the four" κόλακας, and now says that they did not use τῇ κολακικῇ ῥητορικῇ. But he does not see into the meaning. The words contain a sneer at the rhetoricians. They were κόλακες, inasmuch as they studied to gratify, not to benefit; and carrying such a motive into their public addresses, they imbued all their words with it. But if the false art of rhetoric can rescue from dangers, and makes that its first aim, they fell short of it. In other words, the art cannot gain its own dearest ends. They had the principles of the false rhetoric, but could not gain that for which the art was esteemed.

B. πολλοῦ γε δεῖ ... μὴ ... ἐργάσηται. πολλοῦ δεῖ is usually followed by an infinitive, and Stallb. says that he knows of no example like this. The reason for the construction seems to be, that πολλοῦ δεῖ, being in sense a negative, adopts the construction appropriate to οὐ. οὐ μὴ ἐργάσηται would be a familiar formula. —— ὃς βούλει, a singular expression for (τις) ὃν βούλει. The verb must be regarded as coalescing with ὅς to form one notion, like quivis in Latin. —— ὡς γε διακόνους εἶναι πόλεως, as to their being servants of the state, or considering them merely as (ὡς γε) being servants of the state. Stallb. thinks, that the phrase arises, by a confusio duarum locutionum, out of ὡς . . . διακόνους, and διακόνους εἶναι. But the infinitive with ὡς can be used in this relation to the main verb, as well as in others. —— καὶ μὴ ἐπιτρέπειν, and not to let them have their own way. The infinitives limit διέφερον.

C. οὐδὲν παυόμεθα . . . ἀεί. Comp. 491, A. —— ἀγνοοῦντες ἀλλήλων ὅ τι λέγομεν. ἀγνοέω takes a genitive, like μανθάνω and other verbs of learning or understanding. Soph. § 182. —— ᾗ δυνατὸν εἶναι is for ᾗ δ. ἐστι, by a change of style from direct to suspended discourse. Supply ὡμολογήκαμεν.

D. ῥιγῷ is for ῥιγοῖ, subjunctive of ῥιγόω; and so ῥιγῶν for ῥιγοῦν infinitive, in Aristoph. Clouds 442. This is quite analogous to the contraction of πεινάω, and a few others in αω, by η instead of α, but is used with no other verb in Attic except ἱδρόω. Buttmann (largest Gr. 1. 506, and note in Heindorf,) thinks that both contractions are relics of a general method prevailing in old Ionic. —— τοῦτον γὰρ πορισττικὸν εἶναι, etc. This sentence changes its structure, and proceeds as if ὄντα, and not εἶναι, had stood here. The anacoluthon is caused, no doubt, by the explanatory clause ᾗ κάπηλον ὄντα . . . σκυτοδεψόν, which suggested another construction.

A. ταὐτὰ οὖν ταῦτα, etc. Now at one time you seem to 518 be aware, that I say that the self-same thing holds good of the soul also, and you agree to it, as if understanding what I mean. τοτὲ μὲν answers to ὀλίγον δὲ ὕστερον, and δὲ is, in a sense, out of its place.

B. προτείνεσθαι, to hold forward, as a sample of what one has got, hence to take, or select as a specimen. —— ὁμοιοτάτους . . . ὥσπερ. See 485, A. —— Θεαρίων must have been the fashionable baker at Athens. He is thus spoken of in a fragment of the Gerytades of Aristophanes (Athenæus 3. 112. E.), ἥκω Θεαρίωνος ἀρτοπώλιον | λιπών, ἵν' ἐστὶν κριβάνων ἐδώδια, which is a parody of the beginning of the Hecuba. And a longer fragment from the Omphale of Antiphanes, preserved in the same place, asks (by way of parody on Soph. Electr. 257, perhaps,) "how a man of noble birth could ever go out of the house where he saw the white loaves of bread . . . οὓς δημόται | Θεαρίων ἔδειξεν. —— ἀρτοκόπος. In a number of MSS., ἀρτοποιός appears. Still another word for the same thing is ἀρτοπόπος, which has most commendation from the Atticists. I think it likely that this has been unlawfully thrust out of its place by the other words in some instances. See Lobeck on Phrynichus, 222. —— Μίθαικος, etc. Mithœcus, who wrote the treatise called "la cuisine Sicilienne." The Sicilians were in the gastronomic art to the Greeks what the French are now to the world, and Mithæcus was a Syracusan cook. Repub. 3. 404, D., Συρακοσίαν τράπεζαν καὶ Σικελικὴν ποικιλίαν ὄψων, ὡς ἔοικας, οὐκ αἰνεῖς. Athenæus 12. 518, C., διαβόητοί εἰσιν ἐπὶ τρυφῇ καὶ αἱ Σικελῶν τράπεζαι. Comp. also Cicero de Fin. 2. 28. According to Maximus Tyrius (23. 1), cited by Routh, Mithæcus went to Sparta, but they, thinking that too many cooks would spoil their broth, drove him away.

C. παρασκευαστὰς ἀνθρώπους. ἄνθρωπος is often added in contempt, having something of the force of our fellow. ἀνήρ is used on the contrary with an honorable sense. This is shown at large in Valckenaer's Opusc. 2. 243, ed. Lips. —— οἵ, ἂν οὕτω τύχωσιν, etc. Who, it may be, after they have filled and fattened the bodies of the men, and while they are praised by them, will cause the loss (not only of this increase of flesh but) of their old flesh besides.

D. ὅταν δὴ αὐτοῖς ἥκῃ, when now their former repletion shall have brought on disease a good while afterwards. ἥκω φέρων is often nearly the same as φέρω, and can only be figuratively explained here of the repletion acting as a cause bringing in its train disease as the effect.

E. Nothing is truer than these remarks. The seeds of present national evil are sown in the past, and yet we blame the men of the present for what we suffer, and praise the men of the past, who are the true source of our calamities. It is thus that some, who look with alarm on the turn our affairs are taking, worship Jefferson as a political saint. —— καί φασι . . . αὐτούς is for καὶ οὕς φασι, by a change of style from the relative to the demonstrative.

A. καταβολή. περιοδικὴ λῆψις πυρετοῦ interprete Timæo Lex. p. 154 ubi v. Ruhnken. Heindorf. —— Ἀλκιβιάδου. 519 As he had some time before left Athens for the last time, Plato is here forgetful of dates. See 481, D., note, and Appendix, No. I.

B. ἀγανακτούντων, sc. αὐτῶν, these politicians, not τινῶν which Stallb. supplies.

C. Comp. p. 460, C., and Xen. Memorab. 1. 2. 7. —— κινδυνεύει ταὐτὸν εἶναι, (τούτοις,) ὅσοι, the same thing seems to hold good of those who, etc. But Mt. § 632, has a different explanation of the form of the sentence.

D. καὶ τούτου τοῦ λόγου. For καί, Heindorf, without authority, writes καίτοι. But καί, in the beginning of imperative and interrogative sentences, mark liveliness of transition (Mt. § 620), like our and in animated questions, particularly in those where objections are refuted.

E. συχνοὺς τείνω τῶν λόγων. The construction seems to be τινας τῶν λόγων συχνοὺς τείνω, i. e. ὥστε συχνοὺς εἶναι, some things which I have to say I dwell largely upon. But if λόγων depends on συχνούς, as it well can (comp.

Soph. § 177. 1), the sense must be, I think, a good many of my discourses I extend in length. —— πρὸς φιλίου. See 500, B.

20 A. ὅταν τύχωσιν. Comp. 514, E., 518, C. —— What is said here refers to Protagoras, Prodicus, and other professed teachers of virtue, as Heindorf remarks; and it is amusing to see the contempt felt by the friend of Gorgias, a mere teacher of words (λέγειν οἴεται δεῖν ποιεῖν δεινούς, Meno 95, C.), for the Sophists whose pretensions were as much higher, as wisdom is higher than eloquence.

B. ἢ . . . ἅμα καὶ ἑαυτῶν κατηγορεῖν. Here supply δεῖν, or ἀνάγκην εἶναι, which is readily suggested by ἐγχωρεῖν. Comp. 517, A.

C. προέσθαι, to bestow freely, and in the first instance, without knowing what return the party receiving the favor will make. Comp. Thucyd. 2. 43, κάλλιστον ἔρανον αὐτῇ προϊέμενοι, bestowing upon their country a most precious contribution. So προεμένους εὐεργεσίαν, Xen. Anab. 7. 7. 47, where Schneider adverts to this sense. —— ἄνευ μισθοῦ. Protagoras, who first openly called himself a Sophist and took pay (Protag. 349, A.), says (328, B.), that he had a price, which his student might give if he pleased; but if not, that the student went to a temple, and paid so much as he (the student) pronounced on oath the instructions to be worth. For the opinions of Socrates on this point, see among the rest, Xen. Memorab. 1. 6. 13. —— ἐνεχώρει. The absolute form without ἄν is here used for the hypothetical with it. See Mt. § 503, Obs. 2. —— τὴν χάριν, the favor due, the compensation, as a mark of a grateful mind. —— καὶ μὴ συνθέμενος . . . τὸ ἀργύριον, and should not take the money in consequence of a bargain made with him (i. e. should not take it as the payment which was stipulated), at the very time when he was imparting to him the power of swiftness. ὅ τι μάλιστα is joined with ἅμα to increase its preciseness.

E. ἀντ' εὖ ποιεῖν. There can be little doubt that Stallb. is right in separating these words, in opposition to Buttmann (2. 361, largest Gr.), who writes in one word ἀντευποιεῖν. εὖ and δυς are united only to derivative forms, except in the instance of the strange word δυσθνήσκω, used by Euripides. —— εἰ εὖ ποιήσας. Heindorf writes ὁ εὖ ποιήσας, "sed fallitur loco qui repudiat articulum non recte explicato." Hermann on Eurip. Hecuba, 485, 2d ed. The indefinite subject is understood, and εὖ ποιήσας denotes after conferring a favor.

A. ὡς διακονήσοντα. Instead of writing τὴν τοῦ διακο- 521 νεῖν, Plato deserts the construction of the nearest words, and accommodates the participles to παρακαλεῖν. See Mt. § 555. Obs. 2. Just below, Heindorf, Coray, and Stallb. think that ὡς has fallen out before κολακεύσοντα.

B. εἴ σοι Μυσόν γε ἥδιον καλεῖν. The sense of this vexed passage seems to be that which Stallb. and Olympiod., whom he cites from the MSS., give to it, if you like better to call (such a man) a Mysian, call him so; i. e. "You may give the political man the most contemptible name that you can find. Do as you like about that, since if you will not act so as to gratify the Athenians (εἰ μὴ . . . ποιήσεις) you will ——." The apodosis to εἰ . . . καλεῖν is omitted, being readily suggested by the sense of the passage. It is οὕτως κάλει, or οὐδὲν κωλύει, or something equivalent. The apodosis which εἰ μὴ . . . ποιήσεις would have had, if Socrates had not cut the sentence short, is to be found in his words. With καλεῖν must be understood τοῦτον, this political man, whom in fact, though not in so many words, Socrates calls a κόλακα. But the connexion with the foregoing must be owned to be rather loose. The Mysians stood low among the people of Asia Minor. Μυσῶν ἔσχατος (Theætet. 209, B.), is a proverb for the vilest of the vile. Cicero, in his Or. pro Flacco, § 27, says, "Quid porro in sermone Græco, tam tritum atque celebratum est, quam, si quis despicatui ducitur, ut Mysorum ultimus esse dicatur?"

C. οὐχ ἕξει ὅ τι χρήσεται αὐτοῖς. αὐτοῖς is his property, before spoken of in ἐάν τι ἔχω. In 465, C., and 466, A., the indicative, but in many places the subjunctive follows ἔχω in this formula. The distinction is, according to Stallb. on Euthydem. 287, C., that the subj. deliberates on that "quod pro præsenti rerum conditione fieri debeat." If the action is continued, the present subj. is used; otherwise the aorist. Comp. 521, E. just below. When the future occurs, on the contrary, "non de una aliqua aut præsenti dubitatione sermo est, sed res in universum significatur ideoque de futuri temporis perpetuitate cogitandum est." —— ὥς μοι δοκεῖς. ὡς is exclamatory. —— καὶ οὐκ ἂν εἰσαχθείς, etc., and as though you could not be brought (upon trial) into court. The participle, as ἄν indicates (Soph. § 222. 6), is equivalent to the optative; καὶ ὥσπερ οὐκ ἂν εἰσαχθείης. Stallb. thinks that ἄν serves to give an optative force to οἰκῶν also; but that is unnecessary. ὡς οἰκῶν ἐκποδὼν is as though you were dwelling aloof; as if you were isolated, (the consequence of which would be, that he could not be accused,) not as though you could live isolated.

D. ὅ τι τύχοι. Mireris Heindorf. ὅ τι ἂν τύχοι corrigentem. Nam optativus post relativa in obliqua oratione haudquaquam infrequens est. Addito ἄν hoc loco scribendum erat τύχῃ. Stallb. —— The dissatisfaction with the political institutions of Athens, which is here clearly implied, was felt by Socrates to some degree, but far more by Plato, whose ideal turn of m nd was not fitted to find satisfaction in the present under any system, particularly under one where demagogues reigned, and philosophers had to drink poison. —— πονηρός. An allusion, no doubt, to the actual accusers. —— οὐδέν γε ἄτοπον, sc. εἴη.

E. τὰ κομψὰ ταῦτα. An allusion to what Callicles says, 486, C. —— ὅδε εἴργασται ἀνήρ. ὅδε, like οὗτος, 489, B., used of a person who is present and pointed at, has no article. —— καὶ αὐτοὺς καὶ τοὺς νεωτάτους. αὐτοὺς is taken with ὑμᾶς εἴργασται, and serves to contrast the whole ὑμᾶς with the part νεωτάτους. καὶ = and especially. —— νεωτάτους διαφθείρει. An allusion to the actual charge against Socrates. Comp. 522, B.

A. For εὐωχεῖν governing two accusatives, see Mt. 522 § 421. Obs. 1. This construction, (which γεύω also sometimes takes,) seems to be owing to this; that the verb means substantially to make to eat, and needs an object for each of these notions. ——The sentiment conveyed by this comparison of the cook and the physician is expressed in another way by Crates of Thebes, a Cynic philosopher who flourished at Athens in Alexander's time (Diog. Laert. 6. 86), τίθει μαγείρῳ μνᾶς δέκ', ἰατρῷ δραχμήν· | κόλακι τάλαντα πέντε, συμβούλῳ καπνόν· | πόρνῃ τάλαντον, φιλοσόφῳ τριώβολον.

B. οὔτε γὰρ ἡδονάς. To οὔτε, ἐάν τε answers. An affirmative and a negative proposition are often thus bound together by οὔτε and τε; but οὔτε must come first. αὐτοῖς the judges implied in δικαστήριον. —— οὔτε οἷς πορίζεται, i. e. οὔτε τούτους, οἷς ταῦτα (referring to ἡδοναί) πορίζεται. —— ἀπορεῖν ποιοῦντα. This was a frequent charge against Socrates. The doubt he threw upon their former opinions, and the unsettled state of mind which he produced, may have been unwelcome to a few, and regarded as dangerous by a few more, but probably nothing made him more unpopular than his provoking way of bringing men who argued with him to a stand, so that they did not know what to say. Meno says, (79, E., cited by Heindorf,) "O Socrates, I used to hear it said of you, before I became acquainted with you, that you do nothing else except αὐτός τε ἀπορεῖς, καὶ τοὺς ἄλλους ποιεῖς ἀπορεῖν."

C. πράττω τὸ ὑμέτερον δὴ τοῦτο, and herein I am doing just (δὴ) what is for your interest. Ast takes πάντα ταῦτα with πράττω, as well as with λέγω, and ὑμέτερον . . . τοῦτο as added in apposition. —— οὕτως διακείμενος. Videtur οὕτως etiam sequente consona litera usurpatum esse ubi vi et pondere suo pollet plurimum. Stallb. —— ἐν αὐτῷ ὑπάρχοι. Heindorf wishes to erase ἐν, or write ἔν, with some reason, as ὑπάρχω takes with it a simple dative.

D. βοήθεια ἑαυτῷ. This noun with the dative denotes help afforded to; with the genitive, against (comp. βοήθεια βαρβάρων, Plat. Epist. 7. 332, E.), or to any one. —— There is an allusion here to 486, B.

E. αὐτὸ τὸ ἀποθνήσκειν. Comp. for the sentiment Plato's Apol. 28, B., et seq. —— ὡς τοῦτο οὕτως ἔχει depends on λόγον λέξαι, as if it were λόγῳ δεῖξαι ὡς . . . ἔχει.

523 A. φασί, i. e. as story-tellers say, when they begin a story. —— λόγον opposed to μῦθον is a historical narrative, a true story, as opposed to a fictitious narrative. ——Ὅμηρος λέγει. Iliad. 15. 187. —— καὶ ἀεὶ καὶ νῦν ἔτι, et semper et nunc etiam. Ast. ἔστιν includes a past tense.

B. νεωστί, in modern times, used relatively to the days of Saturn. —— οἳ ἐκ . . . νήσων. The preposition is accommodated to ἰόντες (see Soph. Electr. 137), because the officers set over the blessed islands came from thence.

C. ἑκατέρωσε, in each direction, to the blessed islands, and to the prison of punishment.

D. προκεκαλυμμένοι = ἔχοντες προκεκαλυμμένον. See Æsch. Prometh. 362, Soph. Electr. 54. The sense is, having eyes and ears, and the whole body, spread as a veil before the soul. —— αὐτοῖς . . . ἐπίπροσθεν γίγνεται, are in their way. —— τοῦτο αὐτῶν, this property of theirs, this in them.

E. ἐξαίφνης ἀποθανόντος = εὐθὺς ἀποθανόντος, the moment he is dead. Soph. § 222. N. 4. —— δύο ἐκ τῆς Ἀσίας. Routh explains this by their being born of Europa, a Phœnician, and adds, that Minos was regarded by some as a stranger in Crete. "Sed Cretam insulam Asiæ assignasse videntur sicut Libyam modo Europæ modo Asiæ contribuerunt; ut duas orbis terrarum partes posuerint, Asiam et Europam." Ast. But no proof has been found elsewhere, that Crete was assigned to Asia.

A, ἐν τῷ λειμῶνι, etc. Virgil, Æneid 6. 540, 524

> "Hic locus est, partes ubi se via findit in ambos:
> Dextera, quæ Ditis magni sub mœnia tendit,
> Hac iter Elysium nobis: at læva malorum
> Exercet pœnas, et ad impia Tartara mittit."

B. οὐ πολὺ ἧττον . . . ἥνπερ καὶ ὅτε ἔζη. A free and rather irregular construction, instead of οὐ πολὺ ἧττον . . . ἢ ὅτε ἔζη. ἥνπερ is brought in through the influence of τὴν ἕξιν τὴν αὑτοῦ, and alters the ensuing words to suit itself.

D. οἷος εἶναι παρεσκεύαστο, etc., such as he had prepared himself to be while living in regard to his body, i. e. such as were his ways of using his body. Just below, ἔνδηλα ταῦτα are used as if, instead of οἷος εἶναι, οἷα ἔχει had preceded, and ταῦτα refers to the qualities implied in οἷος, etc.

E. κατεῖδεν . . . ψυχῆς. The aorist marks indefinite time; ψυχῆς depends on οὐδέν; nothing belonging to, or in the soul. —— ἀλλὰ διαμεμαστιγωμένην, etc. Tacit. Annal. 6. 6, "Neque frustra præstantissimus sapientiæ firmare solitus est, si recludantur tyrannorum mentes, posse adspici laniatus et ictus; quando, ut corpora verberibus, ita sævitia, libidine, malis consultis animus dilaceretur."

B. οἱ ὠφελούμενοι . . . καὶ διδόντες, i. e. those who, while 5 25 they suffer, are made better . . . are such as, etc.

C. τοῖς ἀεί. See 464, D., Prometh. 937.

D. τοὺς πολλοὺς . . . παραδειγμάτων. By a constructio ad sensum, παραδειγμάτων used of the persons who serve as examples, is joined to πολλούς, as if it were masculine. —— Ὅμηρος. Odys. 11. 575, seq.

E. ἐκ τῶν . . . ἀνθρωποι, the men who prove to be even VERY wicked are of the class of the powerful. Here, and in 526, A., γίγνεσθαι means to become subjectively, i. e. to become in the view of others, to be found out to be.

526 C. ἐπισημηνάμενος ἐάν τε, etc., putting his mark upon him to show whether he thinks him curable or not. Comp. Repub. 10. 614, which I will give in English. "When, therefore, his soul went out of his body, he began a journey, with a number of others, and they came to a wonderful place, where there were two openings in the ground close by one another, and others opposite to them above in the sky. Between these, judges sat, who, whenever they finished judging, bade the just take the road on the right and upwards through the sky, having first attached certificates (σημεῖα) to those who had been judged, in front; and ordered the unjust to take the road to the left and leading downward, with marks behind indicating all their conduct." —— οὐ πολυπραγμονήσαντος, who has not been "a busybody in other men's matters," who has not gone out of his own sphere of duties, to perform a part belonging to another. In Repub. 4. 433, B., it is made a definition of justice, that a man τὰ αὑτοῦ πράττει καὶ οὐ πολυπραγμονεῖ. Here the words especially point at taking an active part in politics, which, for a man who is not yet qualified for political life, is undertaking another's duty to the neglect of his own.

C., D. ἑκάτερος . . . νέκυσσιν. This passage is considered to be spurious by Heindorf and Ast, for reasons, which, as far as I can see, are altogether insufficient.

E. ἀντιπαρακαλῶ. ἀντὶ denotes in my turn, in reply to the exhortations which you gave me to engage in politics. Just below, ἀντὶ . . . ἀγώνων denotes worth all the trials here, i. e. to be set against, or equal in importance to all the trials before human tribunals, where rhetoric, as its advocates alleged, would save a man from condemnation. ἐνθάδε, ἐκεῖ, and ἐκεῖσε are often used of this life, and of death or a future state; the context of course suggesting the explanation. Comp. Soph. Antig. 76, Electr. 356, Eurip. Alcest. 363.

A. τὸν τῆς Αἰγίνης υἱόν. Æacus (son of Jupiter and 527 Ægina), as being the judge for all from Europe. Olympiod. apud Stallb. says, "he adds Ægina because Callicles was from Ægina." But as the Platonic Scholiast can have known nothing about Callicles, I suspect that Αἰγίνης is an error in transcribing for Εὐρώπης, occasioned by the similar word preceding it. —— χασμήσει, etc. This noble passage alludes to 486, B. —— τυπτήσει. The Attic form of the future of τύπτω, according to Thomas Magister and Mœris sub voce. Comp. Aristoph. Clouds 1443, 1379. The later writers used all the forms from τυπτέω, unless it be the present and imperfect.

B. ἐκεῖσε . . . συμφέρων, advantageous there. See 526, E. The adverb of motion is used, because the journey from this world is thought of. It is the same as when we go thither. Comp. the opposite in Æschin. c. Ctes. § 97, Bekker, "he said that he wished to report to you τὴν ἐκ Πελοποννήσου πρεσβείαν ἣν ἐπρέσβευσε, his embassy into Peloponnesus, strictly the embassy into P. from which he had returned. —— ἠρεμεῖ, remains quiet, unshaken, i. e. unrefuted. —— οὐ τὸ δοκεῖν εἶναι ἀγαθὸν ἀλλὰ τὸ εἶναι. Comp. the noble words in Repub. 2. 361, A., ἐσχάτη ἀδικία δοκεῖν δίκαιον εἶναι, μὴ ὄντα. Æschylus was the source of the expression, Sept. c. Theb. 574, οὐ γὰρ δοκεῖν ἄριστος ἀλλ' εἶναι θέλει, upon which words all the theatre turned and looked at Aristides, according to Plutarch in his life.

C. οὕτω χρηστέον. οὕτω is immediately explained by ἐπὶ τὸ δίκαιον ἀεί. —— ἐνταῦθα, to that kind of life. ἐνταῦθα came perhaps to be used with a verb of motion, because with the motion its end, rest in the place, is often thought of. —— ὡς ὁ λόγος σημαίνει, as the discourse shows. Stallb. gives ὥς ὅ σὸς λόγος, with the best of the MSS., to which Ast very justly objects. The same false reading appears 511, B., 460, C., and Socrates could not call the argument, so far as it proved this point, the argument of Callicles, to whom he here speaks.

D. πατάξαι. The interpreters are divided between πατάξαι, with which ἔασόν τινα and σε, from σου, just above, are to be supplied, and πάταξαι sine te verberari. Buttmann even denies that the middle can have this sense, and, I incline to think, with reason. It may denote strike yourself, or get yourself struck (i. e. do something which shall cause the action of striking to come back upon yourself), but not allow yourself to be struck, i. e., in this place, "bear such an infliction without thinking it the greatest evil in the world." Stallb. in defence of the middle so used, cites from Aristoph. Clouds 494, φέρ' ἴδω τί δρᾷς, ἤν τίς σε τύπτῃ ; where Strepsiades replies, τύπτομαι : this word Stallb. takes in the sense of ἐῶ ἐμαυτὸν τύπτεσθαι. I apprehend, that τύπτομαι is in the passive. "What do you do," says Socrates, "if a person beats you ?" "I am beaten," is the reply, i. e. I do nothing but suffer, I get beaten. We need not be troubled by σύ γε θαῤῥῶν ; for σύ is occasionally repeated with γε in the second clause, with a certain increase of force in the exhortation. Comp. Herodot. 7. 10, "I shall hear of you as being torn to pieces by dogs and birds, ἤ που ἐν γῇ τῇ Ἀθηναίων ἢ σέ γε ἐν τῇ Λακεδαιμονίων ;" Soph. Œd. Tyr. 1101, τίς σε . . .

ἔτικτε . . . Πανὸς . . . προσπτλασθεῖσ', ἢ σέ γε . . . Λοξίου; The same is true of ὅ γε, and tu in Latin. Nor do I see how θαῤῥῶν opposes this construction any more than θαῤῥούντως would. The sense then is, yes, indeed, and do you calmly let him give you this dishonorable blow. —— Stallb., I find, has given up his defence of πάταξαι, imperative middle, in his second edition.

E. οἷς οὐδέποτε ταὐτὰ δοκεῖ. Comp. 491, B. He includes himself in the censure to give it a milder form.

APPENDIX.

No. I.

Where and when does Plato represent this Dialogue to have taken place?

1. Where? In the house of Callicles, say all with whose opinion I am acquainted, except Schleiermacher. He decides in favor of some public place, such as the Lyceum, where other conversations of Socrates were held. His reasons, given in a note on his translation of Gorgias (Vol. III. 473 of his Plato), are principally these. 1. Socrates (447, B.) seems to be going into the place where Gorgias is. He meets Callicles without, who says, "whenever you wish to come to my house, Gorgias will exhibit to you, for he lodges with me." (See the note on that place.) The words, whenever you wish to come, must relate to some future time. What does Callicles do, then, if they are at his house, (Schl. leaves to be implied,) but shut the door in his visitors' faces. To tell a stranger just entering your house to call at any time, without asking him in, is to turn him away. 2. Schl. finds it strange and not consistent with Athenian politeness, that Callicles should have deserted his guests, and be going away from his own house. To these reasons of Schleiermacher's may be added two others. 3. If Socrates and his friend were at the door of Callicles' house to hear Gorgias display his rhetorical powers, and if Chærephon knew Gorgias well, why should they need the information that Gorgias lodged there. 4. Perhaps it may be regarded as a slight argument, that Socrates says (506, A.), ἐῶμεν χαίρειν καὶ ἀπίωμεν: to which Gorgias replies, "it does not seem to me that we ought yet ἀπιέναι." For ἀπιέναι must have the same subject as the preceding ἀπίωμεν. Here, then, Socrates expects that the other parties to the conversation will go away from the place, when the discourse is broken off; and Gorgias repeats what Socrates had said, including himself among those who would leave the place. But this could not be, if they were where Gorgias was staying.

No one within my knowledge has examined what Schleiermacher says on this point, or given reasons for choosing the house of Callicles as the scene of the Dialogue, except Cousin. His reasons, I must think, have little weight. 1. There would have been some allusion, direct or indirect, to the place, if a public one. The same might be said, with equal reason, I think, on the other side. 2. It was mainly in private houses, as Plato affirms in Hippias Major, that Gorgias spoke. Plato's expression is ἰδίᾳ ἐπιδείξεις ποιούμενος, and ἰδίᾳ, contrasted with ἐν τῷ δήμῳ just preceding, means nothing more than in other places besides the assembly. 3. Of Callicles leaving his guests, and going out to talk with Socrates, he says, "nothing is more natural, than to go to meet persons who are visiting you, and whom you are to receive, at the entrance of your house." If I mistake not, the porter would have admitted the strangers, and the master of the house have been in a distant part of the building. 4. To Schleiermacher's main remark, he replies, that, as Gorgias was fatigued, Callicles could not ask him to repeat his exhibition, and therefore begged the visitors to call at another time. But need they be turned away? Might they not be invited in, without the necessity of a new exhibition on the part of Gorgias?

2. When? The passage 473, E., which is treated of at large in the note, has been usually supposed to determine the time. But several scholars, as Boeckh (which I learn from C. F. Hermann's work, 1. 634,) and Foss, have ascribed an earlier date to the Dialogue, and one so early even as the first visit of Gorgias to Athens. The arguments, so far as I know them, with a single exception, are of little importance. They are, 1. Pericles is spoken of as νεωστὶ τετελευτηκώς, 503, C. But νεωστὶ may be widely used. Comp. 523. "Nuper, id est paucis ante sæculis." Cic. de Nat. Deor. 2. 50. It was twenty-four years before 405, B. C. And Pericles in this passage is contrasted tacitly with Themistocles, Cimon, and Miltiades, whose deaths were considerably earlier. 2. Archelaus is said to have committed the crimes by which he gained the throne, "yesterday and the day before." But this is very plainly a rhetorical contrast with the παλαιοῖς πράγμασιν, just before spoken of. See 470, D. 3. Demus, son of Pyrilampes, was a youth when the Wasps was written, seventeen years before 405, B. C. See 481, E. Suppose him thirty-two in 405, Plato, I imagine, if he had been aware, at the time of writing, of his exact age, would not have scrupled to say what he does. 4. The passage, 473, E., where Socrates speaks of his ignorance of the way how to put the question when he was a presiding officer, is inconsistent with Apology 32, B., which refers to the famous occasion in 406, B. C. Socrates, therefore, must allude to something else. I can scarcely conceive how any one, used to the style of the Platonic Socrates, can take what he says 473, E. as sober earnest. 5. In 481, D., and 519, A., Alcibiades is spoken of as beloved by Socrates after their intimacy must long have ceased, and as likely to be punished by the Athenians, after his last departure from Athens, and a little before his death. This appears to me the most serious objection to the year 405. But I apprehend that this is by no means the only instance in which Plato assigns the relations of one time to another, changing the more immaterial circumstances, as the tragic poets did those of the fables, to suit his design.

No. II.

On what is said of Pericles, p. 516, A., and on the character given to him in this Dialogue.

An eminent historian, Thirlwall, Hist. of Greece, Vol. III. Chap. 18, and Appendix 2, has examined the passage above quoted, and thinks that Plato's charge of peculation at this time arose out of a confusion of dates and circumstances. This may be so, but there are two things which ought to be said on behalf of Plato, before we fully condemn him for injustice towards his great countryman. The first is, that he expresses no opinion as to the justice of the charge. If it is admitted to be unjust, his argument is so much the stronger, for it turns upon the ingratitude of a people towards its public servants. Indeed, taken in connexion with the charges against Themistocles, Cimon, and Miltiades, it wears the appearance of an unfounded accusation. The other is, that the fact may have been as Plato represents it: the people, in a sudden outburst of displeasure, may have at this time fined him, upon a charge of peculation so frivolous, that Thucydides does not think it worthy of mention. The circumstances were these: Pericles was deposed from his office of general (Plut. Pericl. § 35, Diodor. 12. 45), — it may be at one of the epicheirotoniæ, or in consequence of a special process, an eisangelia. A suit was brought against him, — probably a γραφή, though Plutarch calls it a δίκη. Cleon, Simmias, or Lacratidas, was his accuser, and he was fined in a sum variously estimated at fifteen, fifty (Plut.), and eighty talents (Diodor.). The nature of the suit is not stated, but it certainly may have been κλοπὴ δημοσίων πραγμάτων, based upon some trifling circumstance, occurring at a time when moneys would be under his control, as commander of the forces. The general Timotheus, with no more reason, perhaps, was accused of treason, and then, at the rendering of his accounts (euthynæ), charged with bribery, and fined one hundred talents. To this it may be added, that Aristides, in his vindication of Pericles, nowhere, so far as I have observed, taxes Plato with inaccuracy, but follows his statement, as if he thought it true. And this he does, in a work where he accuses Plato of anachronisms and misquotations. (Aristid. 2. 319, 327, de Quatuorv. ed. Dindorf. In the latter place the Sophist says: "if one should ask Plato whether, supposing he had been one of Pericles' judges when he was tried for peculation, he would have been one to condemn him, and would have given more weight to the words of Cleon than to those of Pericles, or," etc.)

Plato, then, in this very serious and not at all ironical passage (see Thirlwall, 3. 91), may have given no credit to the charge against Pericles, and, notwithstanding the silence of historians as to the nature of the suit, may be right in calling it one for peculation.

Upon another point, — Plato's consistency in the character which he gives to Pericles, — I will say but a word. There are three passages which concern us here; Gorg. 515, C. – 517, Meno 99, B. – 100, B., compared with 94, B., and Phædrus 269 A. – 270, B. In Meno, εὐδοξία, or correct opinion, is ascribed to Pericles, without wisdom, and in Phædrus he has the credit of possessing consummate eloquence, derived from the discipline of Anaxagoras. In Gorgias, he is denied to be a true orator, but in Phædrus is declared to be πάντων τελεώτατος εἰς τὴν ῥητορικήν. The seeming inconsistency can be explained by taking into consideration, that Plato judges of the orator in Gorgias by a moral standard, and in Phædrus looks at him as capable of producing a work of art; and perhaps by this consideration also, that while he would grant to Pericles all that knowledge of the mind which the physical instructions of Anaxagoras could furnish, he might still refuse to him the attributes of a truly philosophical artist.

JAMES MUNROE AND COMPANY,

134 WASHINGTON STREET.

INTRODUCTION TO THE STUDY OF THE GREEK CLASSIC POETS. Designed principally for the Use of Young Persons at School and College. By HENRY NELSON COLERIDGE, Esq., A. M., late Fellow of King's College, Cambridge. Containing, 1. General Introduction. 2. Homer.

Of the above work the North American Review says, "The subject of the Homeric Poetry, to which the greater part of the volume is devoted, is admirably discussed. There is ample learning without pedantry or ostentation, and good sense, good taste, and scholar like elegance of style. The various theories on the origin of the Homeric poems are stated with clearness and distinctness. The manifold beauties of the Iliad and Odyssey, are developed with critical sagacity, and with a warmth of sensibility which never becomes overstrained or extravagant."

II. THE ANTIGONE OF SOPHOCLES, with Notes, &c. pp. 134.

III. THE PROMETHEUS OF ÆSCHYLUS, with Notes, &c. pp. 98.

IV. THE ELECTRA OF SOPHOCLES, with Notes, &c. pp. 214.

This Course has been introduced into Harvard, Yale, Dartmouth, Bowdoin, &c.

Of the Alcestis and the Antigone the North American Review says,

"The form in which Mr. Woolsey has given these works to the public is neat and convenient; and they are printed with Mr. Folsom's well-known accuracy The text of the Alcestis, selected by Mr. Woolsey, is that of William Dindorf, contained in the Poetæ Scenici Græci, published at Leipzig and London in 1830. This text has received the approbation of Hermann, from whose judgment in such matters there lies no appeal. A well-written preface contains a clear statement of the subject matter of the play, with a critique on the several characters brought out in the development of the plot. A brief, but comprehensive view of the poetical genius of Euripides, in which his beauties are pointed out, and his faults touched upon, with a discriminating hand, gives additional interest to the volume. The body of notes at the end are remarkable for a union of deep learning, acute judgment, and fine taste.

"The preface and commentary to the Antigone are even more creditable to Mr Woolsey's ability than those to the Alcestis. The sketch of the poem, in the preface, is written with clearness and brevity. The difficulties in this play, that call for a commentator's explanation, are far more numerous than in the Alcestis. In Mr. Woolsey's commentaries on these numberless knotty passages, he puts them together in a more intelligible form, and shows a sharper perception of delicate shades of meaning, than we have ever met with in the explanations of any other edition whatever.

"We conclude this notice by again expressing our satisfaction at the appearance of these works. They are not only honorable to the taste and talent of Mr. Woolsey, but will bring reputation to the classical scholarship of our country. Among all the books of this kind, prepared either at home or in England, for students and private readers, we are not acquainted with any which are equal to these in variety of merit. Trollope's Pentalogia does not bear the slightest comparison with them, in the copiousness, elegance, or value of the commentary. The series of tragedies for schools and colleges, published by Valpy, and edited by Major and Brasse, are useful books on the whole; but the notes are mostly dry verbal discussions, often showing a curiosa felicitas in misunderstanding the poetical spirit of the passages attempted to be illustrated. We are glad to learn that Professor Woolsey is at work on two more tragedies, the Prometheus Bound and the Electra. When these shall have been published, the lovers of classical literature will be provided with a series of the master-pieces of the Attic drama, illustrated by the blended lights of grammatical, philological, and historical learning, under the guidance of a discriminating judgment, and a ready sympathy with all that is beautiful in poetical inspiration, and sublime in moral sentiment."

Of the Prometheus and Electra the same Review speaks as follows: —

"Professor Woolsey has now completed his proposed course of Greek Tragedies. We hope the reception of these admirable works among the teachers and scholars of our country will induce Mr. Woolsey to follow up the career he has so brilliantly entered upon. It is an uncommon thing in any country, for a mind of nice poetical sensibilities to be engaged in critical labors, or to have the necessary patience in the acquisition of exact knowledge, to qualify it for such a task; but so fortunate a conjunction between profound and accurate learning and delicate taste, when it does take place, brings out something which men will not willingly let die."

GREEK TEXT-BOOKS,

BY

ALPHEUS CROSBY,

PROFESSOR OF THE GREEK LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE IN DARTMOUTH COLLEGE.

A GRAMMAR OF THE GREEK LANGUAGE. Part First. A Practical Grammar of the Attic and Common Dialects, with the Elements of General Grammar. 12mo. pp. xviii. and 239.

In this work, an attempt has been made to meet the wants both of the beginner and of the more advanced student. The volume is complete with the exception of the Syntax, which is now in press. Instructors, both in classical schools and in colleges, are respectfully invited to examine the work so far as published.

TABLES ILLUSTRATIVE OF GREEK INFLECTION.

12mo. pp. 69.

In this volume, the Tables contained in the Grammar are reprinted for the convenience and economy of beginners in learning the Greek paradigms. It is believed, that those who may not adopt the Grammar will still find important advantages in the use of the Tables. The Preface, and a few pages as a specimen, are subjoined for examination.

THE SAME WORK IN LARGE QUARTO, for the convenience of more advanced Students in consulting and comparing the Greek paradigms.

One page of the quarto contains six pages of the duodecimo edition. So that, in the former, a single opening presents to the eye all the tables of declension; another, the whole regular conjugation of the verb, including its terminations, paradigm, and translation; a third, all the tables of the verbs in $\mu\iota$; &c.

In Press,

A SYNTAX OF THE GREEK LANGUAGE, with the Elements of General Syntax.

This treatise will extend to about 150 pages, and will form the fourth and concluding Book of the Grammar before mentioned. It will be sold separately to those who may have the preceding part of the volume.

THE ANABASIS OF XENOPHON, with English Notes.

The text will chiefly follow the celebrated edition of L. Dindorf, and will be printed in the same large and handsome type with Professor Woolsey's Select Tragedies. The notes will be designed particularly for those who are commencing the study of the language, and will be adapted to the author's Greek Grammar. A specimen of the text is subjoined.

Ἐπεὶ δὲ ἠσθένει Δαρεῖος καὶ ὑπώπτευε τελευτὴν τοῦ βίου, ἐβούλετο τὼ παῖδε ἀμφοτέρω παρεῖναι. 2. Ὁ μὲν οὖν πρεσβύτερος παρὼν ἐτύγχανε· Κῦρον δὲ μεταπέμπεται ἀπὸ τῆς ἀρχῆς, ἧς αὐτὸν σατράπην ἐποίησε· καὶ στρατηγὸν δὲ αὐτὸν ἀπέδειξε πάντων, ὅσοι εἰς Καστωλοῦ πεδίον ἀθροίζονται. Ἀναβαίνει οὖν ὁ Κῦρος, λαβὼν Τισσαφέρνην ὡς φίλον· καὶ τῶν Ἑλλήνων δὲ ἔχων ὁπλίτας ἀνέβη τριακοσίους, ἄρχοντα δὲ αὐτῶν Ξενίαν Παρράσιον. 3. Ἐπειδὴ δὲ ἐτελεύτησε Δαρεῖος, καὶ κατέστη εἰς τὴν βασιλείαν Ἀρταξέρξης, Τισσαφέρνης διαβάλλει τὸν Κῦρον πρὸς τὸν ἀδελφὸν, ὡς ἐπιβουλεύοι αὐτῷ. Ὁ δὲ πείθεταί τε καὶ συλλαμβάνει Κῦρον ὡς ἀποκτενῶν· ἡ δὲ μήτηρ ἐξαιτησαμένη αὐτὸν ἀποπέμπει πάλιν ἐπὶ τὴν ἀρχήν. 4. Ὁ δ' ὡς ἀπῆλθε κινδυνεύσας καὶ ἀτιμασθεὶς, βουλεύεται, ὅπως μήποτε ἔτι ἔσται ἐπὶ τῷ ἀδελφῷ, ἀλλ', ἢν δύνηται, βασιλεύσει ἀντ' ἐκείνου. Παρύσατις μὲν δὴ ἡ μήτηρ ὑπῆρχε τῷ Κύρῳ, φιλοῦσα αὐτὸν μᾶλλον ἢ τὸν βασιλεύοντα Ἀρταξέρξην. 5. Ὅστις δ' ἀφικνεῖτο τῶν παρὰ βασιλέως πρὸς αὐτὸν, πάντας οὕτω διατιθεὶς ἀπεπέμπετο, ὥστε αὐτῷ μᾶλλον φίλους εἶναι ἢ βασιλεῖ. Καὶ τῶν παρ' ἑαυτῷ δὲ βαρβάρων ἐπεμελεῖτο, ὡς πολεμεῖν τε ἱκανοὶ εἴησαν, καὶ εὐνοϊκῶς ἔχοιεν αὐτῷ.

6. Τὴν δὲ Ἑλληνικὴν δύναμιν ἤθροιζεν, ὡς μάλιστα ἐδύνατο ἐπικρυπτόμενος, ὅπως ὅτι ἀπαρασκευαστότατον λάβοι βασιλέα. Ὧδε οὖν ἐποιεῖτο τὴν συλλογήν· ὁπόσας εἶχε φυλακὰς ἐν ταῖς πόλεσι, παρήγγειλε τοῖς φρουράρχοις ἑκάστοις, λαμβάνειν ἄνδρας Πελοποννησίους ὅτι πλείστους καὶ βελτίστους, ὡς ἐπιβουλεύοντος Τισσαφέρνους ταῖς πόλεσι. Καὶ γὰρ ἦσαν αἱ Ἰωνικαὶ πόλεις Τισσαφέρνους τὸ ἀρχαῖον, ἐκ βασιλέως δεδομέναι· τότε δ' ἀφεστήκεσαν πρὸς Κῦρον πᾶσαι, πλὴν Μιλήτου. 7. Ἐν Μιλήτῳ δὲ Τισσαφέρνης, προαισθόμενος τὰ αὐτὰ ταῦτα βουλευομένους, [ἀποστῆναι πρὸς Κῦρον,] τοὺς μὲν αὐτῶν ἀπέκτεινε, τοὺς δ' ἐξέβαλεν. Ὁ δὲ Κῦρος ὑπολαβὼν τοὺς φεύγοντας, συλλέξας στράτευμα, ἐπολιόρκει Μίλητον καὶ κατὰ γῆν καὶ κατὰ θάλατταν, καὶ ἐπειρᾶτο κατάγειν τοὺς ἐκπεπτωκότας. Καὶ αὕτη αὖ ἄλλη πρόφασις ἦν αὐτῷ τοῦ ἀθροίζειν στράτευμα. 8. Πρὸς δὲ βασιλέα πέμπων ἠξίου, ἀδελφὸς ὢν αὐτοῦ, δοθῆναί οἱ ταύτας τὰς πόλεις μᾶλλον, ἢ Τισσαφέρνην ἄρχειν αὐτῶν· καὶ ἡ μήτηρ συνέπραττεν αὐτῷ ταῦτα· ὥστε βασιλεὺς τῆς μὲν πρὸς ἑαυτὸν ἐπιβουλῆς οὐκ ᾐσθάνετο, Τισσαφέρνει δὲ ἐνόμιζε πολεμοῦντα αὐτὸν ἀμφὶ τὰ στρατεύματα δαπανᾶν· ὥστε οὐδὲν ἤχθετο αὐτῶν πολεμούντων· καὶ γὰρ ὁ Κῦρος ἀπέπεμπε τοὺς γιγνομένους δασμοὺς βασιλεῖ ἐκ τῶν πόλεων, ὧν Τισσαφέρνης ἐτύγχανεν ἔχων.

9. Ἄλλο δὲ στράτευμα αὐτῷ συνελέγετο ἐν Χερρονήσῳ τῇ καταντιπέρας Ἀβύδου τόνδε τὸν τρόπον. Κλέαρχος Λακεδαιμόνιος φυγὰς ἦν· τούτῳ συγγενόμενος ὁ Κῦρος, ἠγάσθη τε αὐτὸν, καὶ δίδωσιν αὐτῷ μυρίους δαρεικούς. Ὁ δὲ λαβὼν τὸ χρυσίον, στράτευμα συνέλεξεν ἀπὸ τούτων τῶν χρημάτων, καὶ ἐπολέμει, ἐκ Χερρονήσου ὁρμώμενος, τοῖς Θρᾳξὶ τοῖς ὑπὲρ Ἑλλήσποντον οἰκοῦσι, καὶ ὠφέλει τοὺς Ἕλληνας· ὥστε καὶ χρήματα συνεβάλλοντο αὐτῷ εἰς τὴν τροφὴν τῶν στρατιωτῶν αἱ Ἑλλησποντιακαὶ πόλεις ἑκοῦσαι. Τοῦτο δ' αὖ οὕτω τρεφόμενον ἐλάνθανεν αὐτῷ τὸ στράτευμα.

10. Ἀρίστιππος δὲ ὁ Θετταλὸς ξένος ὢν ἐτύγχανεν αὐτῷ, καὶ πιεζόμενος ὑπὸ τῶν οἰκοι ἀντιστασιωτῶν, ἔρχεται πρὸς τὸν Κῦρον, καὶ αἰτεῖ αὐτὸν εἰς δισχιλίους ξένους καὶ τριῶν μηνῶν μισθὸν, ὡς οὕτω περιγενόμενος ἂν τῶν ἀντιστασιωτῶν. Ὁ δὲ Κῦρος δίδωσιν αὐτῷ εἰς τετρακισχιλίους καὶ ἓξ μηνῶν μισθόν· καὶ δεῖται αὐτοῦ, μὴ πρόσθεν καταλῦσαι πρὸς τοὺς ἀντιστασιώτας, πρὶν ἂν αὐτῷ συμβουλεύσηται. Οὕτω δὲ αὖ τὸ ἐν Θετταλίᾳ ἐλάνθανεν αὐτῷ τρεφόμενον στράτευμα. 11. Πρόξενον δὲ τὸν Βοιώτιον, ξένον ὄντα αὐτῷ, ἐκέλευσε λαβόντα ἄνδρας ὅτι πλείστους παραγενέσθαι, ὡς εἰς Πεισίδας βουλόμενος στρατεύεσθαι, ὡς πράγματα παρεχόντων Πεισιδῶν τῇ ἑαυτοῦ χώρᾳ. Σοφαίνετον δὲ τὸν Στυμφάλιον, καὶ Σωκράτην τὸν Ἀχαιὸν, ξένους ὄντας καὶ τούτους, ἐκέλευσεν ἄνδρας λαβόντας ἐλθεῖν ὅτι πλείστους, ὡς πολεμήσων Τισσαφέρνει σὺν τοῖς φυγάσι τῶν Μιλησίων. Καὶ ἐποίουν οὕτως οὗτοι.

II.

1. Ἐπεὶ δ' ἐδόκει αὐτῷ ἤδη πορεύεσθαι ἄνω, τὴν μὲν πρόφασιν ἐποιεῖτο, ὡς Πεισίδας βουλόμενος ἐκβαλεῖν παντάπασιν ἐκ τῆς χώρας· καὶ ἀθροίζει, ὡς ἐπὶ τούτους, τό τε βαρβαρικὸν καὶ τὸ Ἑλληνικὸν ἐνταῦθα στράτευμα· καὶ παραγγέλλει τῷ τε Κλεάρχῳ, λαβόντι ἥκειν ὅσον ἦν αὐτῷ στράτευμα· καὶ τῷ Ἀριστίππῳ συναλλαγέντι πρὸς τοὺς οἴκοι, ἀποπέμψαι πρὸς ἑαυτὸν ὃ εἶχε στράτευμα· καὶ Ξενίᾳ τῷ Ἀρκάδι, ὃς αὐτῷ προεστήκει τοῦ ἐν ταῖς πόλεσι ξενικοῦ, ἥκειν παραγγέλλει, λαβόντα τοὺς ἄνδρας, πλὴν ὁπόσοι ἱκανοὶ ἦσαν τὰς ἀκροπόλεις φυλάττειν. 2. Ἐκάλεσε δὲ καὶ τοὺς Μίλητον πολιορκοῦντας, καὶ τοὺς φυγάδας ἐκέλευσε σὺν αὐτῷ στρατεύεσθαι, ὑποσχόμενος αὐτοῖς, εἰ καλῶς καταπράξειεν ἐφ' ἃ ἐστρατεύετο, μὴ πρόσθεν παύσασθαι πρὶν αὐτοὺς καταγάγοι οἴκαδε. Οἱ δὲ ἡδέως ἐπείθοντο (ἐπίστευον γὰρ αὐτῷ), καὶ λαβόντες τὰ ὅπλα, παρῆσαν εἰς Σάρδεις.

3. Ξενίας μὲν δὴ τοὺς ἐκ τῶν πόλεων λαβὼν παρεγένετο εἰς Σάρδεις, ὁπλίτας εἰς τετρακισχιλίους· Πρόξενος δὲ παρῆν, ἔχων ὁπλίτας μὲν εἰς πεντακοσίους καὶ χιλίους, γυμνήτας δὲ πεντακοσίους· Σοφαίνετος δὲ ὁ Στυμφάλιος, ὁπλίτας ἔχων χιλίους· Σωκράτης δὲ ὁ Ἀχαιὸς, ὁπλίτας ἔχων ὡς πεντακοσίους· Πασίων δὲ ὁ Μεγαρεὺς εἰς ἑπτακοσίους ἔχων ἄνδρας παρεγένετο· ἦν δὲ καὶ οὗτος καὶ ὁ Σωκράτης τῶν ἀμφὶ Μίλητον στρατευομένων. 4. "The Language of the Greeks was truly like themselves, it was conformable to their transcendent and universal Genius. * * * * The Greek Tongue, from its propriety and universality, is made for all that is great, and all that is beautiful, in every Subject, and under every Form of writing." — Harris's Hermes, Bk. III. Ch. 5.

"Greek, — the shrine of the genius of the old world; as universal as our race, as individual as ourselves; of infinite flexibility, of indefatigable strength, with the complication and the distinctness of nature herself; to which nothing was vulgar, from which nothing was excluded; speaking to the ear like Italian, speaking to the mind like English; with words like pictures, with words like the gossamer film of the summer; at once the variety and picturesqueness of Homer, the gloom and the intensity of Æschylus; not compressed to the closest by Thucydides, not fathomed to the bottom by Plato, not sounding with all its thunders, nor lit up with all its ardors even under the Promethean touch of Demosthenes!" — Coleridge's Study of the Greek Classic Poets, Gen. PREFACE TO THE TABLES.

The following tables have been prepared as part of a Greek Grammar. They are published separately in two forms; in duodecimo, for the convenience and economy of beginners in learning the Greek paradigms, and in large quarto, for the convenience of more advanced students in consulting and comparing them. To avoid confusion, and the disturbance of those local associations which are so important in learning the grammar of a language, every duodecimo page of the tables, whether in the duodecimo or in the quarto edition, presents, with a single exception, precisely the same appearance as in the larger work to which it belongs. Even the numbers denoting the book, chapter, section, and page, are throughout the same; and, indeed, in the duodecimo edition of the tables, every opening, with a single exception, is simply an opening in the grammar.

The principles upon which these tables have been constructed, are the following;

I. To avoid needless repetition. There is a certain ellipsis in grammatical tables, as well as in discourse, which relieves not only the material instruments of the mind, but the mind itself, and which assists alike the understanding and the memory. When the student has learned that, in the neuter gender, the nominative, accusative, and vocative are always the same, why, in each neuter paradigm that he studies, must his eye and mind be taxed with the examination of nine forms instead of three? why, in his daily exercises in declension, must his tongue triple its labor, and more than triple the weariness of the teacher's ear? To relieve, so far as possible, both instructor and pupil of that mechanical drudgery, which wastes, without profit, the time, strength, and spirit, which should be devoted to higher effort, these tables have been constructed with the following ellipses, which the student will supply at once from general rules.

1. In the paradigms of DECLENSION, the vocative singular is omitted whenever it has the same form with the nominative, and the following cases are omitted throughout;

α. The vocative plural, because it is always the same with the nominative.

β. The dative dual, because it is always the same with the genitive.

γ. The accusative and vocative dual, because they are always the same with the nominative.

δ. The neuter accusative and vocative, in all the numbers, because they are always the same with the nominative.

2. In the paradigms of ADJECTIVES, and of words similarly inflected, the columns of the masculine and neuter genders are united in the genitive and dative of all the numbers, and in the nominative dual; because in these cases the two genders never differ.

3. In the paradigms of CONJUGATION, the first person dual is omitted throughout, as having the same form with the first person plural, and the third person dual is omitted, whenever it has the same form with the second person dual, that is, in the primary tenses of the indicative, and in the subjunctive. The form in μεσθον, though perhaps too hastily pronounced by Elmsley an invention of the Alexandrine grammarians, is yet, at most, only an exceedingly rare variety of the first person dual. The teacher who meets with it in his recitation room, may pretty safely call his class, as the crier called the Roman people upon the celebration of the Secular games, "to gaze upon that which they had never seen before, and would never see again." In the secondary tenses of the indicative, and in the optative, this form does not occur at all; and, in the remaining tenses, there have been found only five examples, two of which are quoted by Athenæus from a word-hunter (ὀνοματοθήρας), whose affectation he is ridiculing, while the three classical examples are all poetic, occurring, one in Homer (Il. ψ, 485), and the other two in Sophocles (El. 950 and Phil. 1079). And yet, in the single paradigm of τύπτω, as I learned it in my boyhood, this "needless Alexandrine," occurs no fewer than twenty-six times, that is, almost nine times as often as in the whole range of the Greek classics.

> "Which, like a wounded snake, drags its slow length along,"

4. The compound forms of the PERFECT PASSIVE SUBJUNCTIVE and OPTATIVE are omitted, as belonging rather to Syntax than to inflection.

II. To give the forms just as they appear upon the Greek page, that is, without abbreviation and without hyphens. A dissected and abbreviated mode of printing the paradigms exposes the young student to mistake, and familiarizes the eye, and of course the mind, with fragments, instead of complete forms. If these fragments were separated upon analytical principles, the evil would be less; but they are usually cut off just where convenience in printing may direct, so that they contain, sometimes a part of the termination, sometimes the whole termination, and sometimes the termination with a part of the root. Hyphens are useful in the analysis of forms, but a table of paradigms seems not to be the most appropriate place for them. In the following tables, the terminations are given by themselves, and the paradigms are so arranged in columns, that the eye of the student will usually separate, at a glance, the root from the termination.

III. To represent the language according to its actual use, and not according to the theories or fancies of the Alexandrine and Byzantine grammarians. Hence, for example,

1. The purely imaginary first perfect active imperative has been discarded.

2. For the imaginary imperative forms ἵσταθι, τίθετι, δίδοθι, δείκνυθι, have been substituted the actual forms ἵστη, τίθει, δίδου, δείκνυ.

3. Together with analogical but rare forms, have been given the usual forms, which in many grammars are noticed only as exceptions or dialectic peculiarities. Thus, βουλευέτωσαν and βουλευόντων, βουλεύσαις and βουλεύσειας, ἐβεβουλεύκεισαν and ἠβεβουλεύκεισαν (§ 284); βουλευσάσθωσαν and βουλευσάσθων, βουλευθείησαν and βουλευθεῖεν (§ 285); ἐτίθην and ἐτίθουν (§ 300); ἧς and ἦσθα, ἔσεται and ἔσται (§ 305).

4. The second future active and middle, which, except as a euphonic form of the first future, is purely imaginary, has been wholly rejected.

IV. To distinguish between regular and irregular usage. What student, from the common paradigms, does not receive the impression, sometimes never corrected, that the second perfect and pluperfect, the second aorist and future, and the third future belong as regularly to the Greek verb, as the first tenses bearing the same name; when, in point of fact, the Attic dialect, even including poetic usage, presents only about fifty verbs which have the second perfect and pluperfect; eighty-five, which have the second aorist active; fifty, which have the second aorist and future passive; and forty, which have the second aorist middle? The gleanings of all the other dialects will not double these numbers. Carmichael, who has given us most fully the statistics of the Greek verb, and whose labors deserve all praise, has gathered, from all the dialects, a list of only eighty-eight verbs which have the second perfect, one hundred and forty-five which have the second aorist active, eighty-four which have the second aorist passive, and fifty-eight which have the second aorist middle. And, of his catalogue of nearly eight hundred verbs, embracing the most common verbs of the language, only fifty-five have the third future, and, in the Attic dialect, only twenty-eight.

To some there may appear to be an impiety in attacking the venerable shade of τύπτω· but alas! it is little more than a shade, and, with all my early and long cherished attachment to it, I am forced, after examination, to exclaim, in the language of Electra, and to ask why, in an age characterized by its devotion to truth, a false representation of an irregular verb should be still set forth as the paradigm of regular conjugation, and made the Procrustes' bed, to which all other verbs must be stretched or pruned. The actual future of τύπτω is not τύψω, but τυπτήσω, the perfect passive is both τέτυμμαι and τετύπτημαι, the second aorist ἔτυπον is a rare poetic form, the first and second perfect and pluperfect active are not found in classic Greek, if, indeed, found at all, and the second future active and middle are the mere figments of grammatical fancy. And yet all the regular verbs in the language must be gravely pronounced defective, because they do not conform to this imaginary model.

Ἀντὶ φιλτάτης
Μορφῆς, σποδόν τε καὶ σκιὰν ἀνωφελῆ,

In the following tables, the example of the learned Kühner has been followed, in selecting βουλεύω as the paradigm of regular conjugation. This verb is strictly regular, it glides smoothly over the tongue, is not liable to be mispronounced, and presents, to the eye, the prefixes, root, and terminations, with entire distinctness throughout. This is followed by shorter paradigms, in part merely synoptical, which exhibit the different classes of verbs, with their varieties of formation. It is scarcely necessary to remark, that, in the table of translation (§ 283), the form of the verb must be adapted to the number and person of the pronoun; thus, I am planning, thou art planning, &c.; or that, in the translation of the middle voice, the forms of "plan" are to be changed into the corresponding forms of "deliberate"; and, in that of the passive voice, into the corresponding forms of "be planned."

V. To arrange the whole in the most convenient manner for study and reference. The inflection of each word is exhibited upon a single page, or, if this is not possible, except in the case of βουλεύω, at a single opening. Words which the student may wish to compare, are presented, as far as possible, at the same opening. Thus a single opening exhibits all the nouns of the first and second declension, another, the declension of the numerals, article, and pronouns, another, the verbs ἵημι, εἰμί, and εἶμι, &c. In the quarto edition, a single opening presents all the tables of declension; another, the whole regular conjugation of the verb, including its terminations, paradigm, and translation; a third, all the verbs in μι, &c.

With respect to the manner in which these tables should be used, so much depends upon the age and attainments of the student, that no directions could be given which might not require to be greatly modified in particular cases. I would, however, recommend,

1. That the paradigms should not be learned en masse, but gradually, in connexion with the study of the principles and rules of the grammar, and with other exercises.

2. That some of the paradigms should rather be used for reference, than formally committed to memory. It will be seen at once, that some of them have been inserted merely for the sake of exhibiting differences of accent, or individual peculiarities.

3. That in adjectives and words similarly inflected, each gender should be repeated by itself. The association of forms which is fixed in learning the nouns, will not then be broken up in passing to the adjectives. The order in which the genders are repeated, seems to be indifferent. In the tables, the neuter is placed next to the masculine, because it is of the same declension, and has, in part, the same forms.

4. That in the first learning, and common repetition of the paradigms, the dual should be omitted. It is little more than a mere variety of the plural, of comparatively rare occurrence, and, from its regular simplicity of structure, may always be supplied with perfect ease from the tables of terminations, or from general rules. That it may be omitted or repeated at pleasure, it is placed last in the following tables. If any should object to this arrangement, as interfering with old associations, let them remember, that the book is designed for those whose only grammatical associations connect the plural immediately with the singular. I have no desire to change the habits of those who have already learned the Greek paradigms, but to discover, if possible, the best method for those who are yet to learn them.

5. That, in learning and consulting the paradigms, the student should constantly compare them with each other, with the tables of terminations, and with the rules of the grammar.

6. That the humble volume should not be dismissed from service, till the paradigms are impressed upon the tablets of the memory as legibly as upon the printed page, — till they have become so familiar to the student, that whenever he has occasion to repeat them, "the words," in the expressive language of Milton, "like so many nimble and airy servitors, shall trip about him at command, and in well-ordered files, as he would wish, fall aptly into their own places."
